APPENDIX H.

INSPECTORS' REPORTS FOR THE YEAR 1881.

REPORT OF THOMAS BRODRIBB, ESQUIRE, M.A., METROPOLITAN WESTERN DISTRICT.

SIR,

Kew, 20th June 1882.

I have the honor to submit a general report for the year 1881.

THE METROPOLITAN WESTERN DISTRICT.

During the past year, one country school, Tooborac, 1225, was closed, and one at Goodman's Creek, No. 2450, was established. I had felt it my duty to recommend the closing of St. John's, 558, in Latrobe street, as, on account of its situation, all the children on its roll could with little inconvenience attend other schools; and on the 31st of last March it was accordingly discontinued. By this course, no child is seriously incommoded, while the yearly saving to the department will exceed £200.

As a new school is about to be opened at Brooklyn, the number of schools in this district remains unchanged at 120, many of these being very large, and 16 of them having from 300 to 1,000 pupils in average attendance.

In Hotham, two schools, Nos. 307 and 459, are in close proximity, each being held partly in leased premises, more or less unsuitable, and almost wholly unprovided with fireplaces. A two-storeyed brick building is, however, approaching completion, and will supersede these two schools.

During last year, owing to various causes, I was frequently withdrawn from inspection duties, besides being occupied for more than four months with the Board of Examiners' work, so that my total time available for the overseeing of schools amounted to only three months; and, had it not been for the steady and untiring application of Mr. Ware, my associate in the district, there must have been many arrears. Happily, owing to Mr. Ware's diligence and economy of time, all the schools were examined once, all but 15 received a second inspection, and to several schools extra visits were paid. Here also I must acknowledge some acceptable aid from Mr. Curlew, who was good enough to inspect the Bacchus Marsh portion of this district.

EDUCATIONAL PROVISION.

This district takes in the north and west of Melbourne, extending for 20 miles westward, and including a few schools as far as 60 miles northward. It is a matter of great satisfaction to think that there is in it no group of children shut out from the means of education. Whether all children go to school is another matter; but that they can do so is almost a certainty. The main difficulty, it seems, is with those who attend no school. Pupils on the rolls are looked after; but those who never enter school are in danger of being wholly overlooked. Hence may result an inconsistency: parents who send their children irregularly to school may be punished, while those who never send them at all may get off scot-free. The same difficulty is said to exist in England.

INSTRUCTION.

My time available for inspection in 1881 was so much less than in any previous year that I am disposed to say little about the district work; but enough was seen to show that the schools were advancing rather than retrograding. Two or three matters only are selected for special remark.

Reading.—Even in the higher classes, the children rarely read with expression. Fluency and verbal accuracy are more or less secured, but the performance lacks that warmth and coloring which keener interest and clearer comprehension might impart to it. "Good reading," as an ex-colleague once remarked to me, "goes with good breeding;" it is the resultant of many influences of culture, and in a high degree is hardly to be looked for in our schools. The English inspectors constantly complain of the tame and monotonous attempts which they have to pass as reading. Perhaps things would be better could we give our children more books, and interest them more in their reading lessons. More books we certainly want, especially for the younger children; and as nothing enchains the attention of little folks more than stories (crede experto), there is no doubt that great strides could be made with reading books containing abundant extracts from Grimm's Home Stories, Hans Christian Andersen's Fairy Tales, and Alice's Adventures in Wonderland, and Through the Looking Glass. If it be objected that grotesqueness and comicality pervade the two charming books last named, one may reply that "children of a larger growth" are indulged in humorous as well as in serious literature; and that what is found to give sapidity and enjoyment to them, should do the same to their young congeners, to whom it would bring a new pleasure, a quickened interest in work, and a love for books. For elder children, such tales as Robinson Crusoe or the Vicar of Wakefield would have the same effect; and I do not know any more wholesome or engrossing reading for them than Miss Yonge's Book of Golden Deeds, a cheap edition of which can be got for a shilling.

The present reading books, Nelson's Royal Readers, have much to recommend them; but No. I. is too short, and it insufficiently bridges over the space from the first to the second class. In at least the three lowest classes a second reader is a desideratum. I attach great importance to imbuing children with interest in their reading lessons, and heartily wish we had a small library attached to every school. At this moment I can remember only one—that belonging to the excellent school at Woodend, No. 647. It would be a good thing if school libraries were aided by a small grant in aid of money locally gathered; in this manner a very little would go a long way. To imbue our scholars with a taste for reading would provide them with resources of profit and pleasure, and with safeguards against idleness or mischief.

Writing.—In the caligraphic art we are far behind our forefathers. Take the familiar warrant for the execution of Charles the First, a facsimile of which every teacher may see in the Public Library.

Where shall we now find together 59 signatures that show such fluency and boldness of stroke, or even such legibility? Nay, take any of our books 50 to 100 years old and notice the inscribed names of the owners—generally they compare all too favorably with the penmanship of to-day. However, there is a slight reaction in the direction of better writing; and with girls that vulgarity known as “ladies’ angular hand” is at last being checked; but one would like to see more effort made towards correctness of outline, fluency of stroke, simplicity of form, and extreme legibility.

Geography.—This may become a very interesting study, if taught with intelligence and suitable association; but usually it is not so taught, and the fault rests only partly with teachers, some share of the blame being due to our programme. I should be willing to see less geography taught, if the time thereby saved were otherwise profitably occupied. Instead of burdening the memory with geographical facts, we might devote the time to some other study, such as letter-writing or simple composition, whereby a child’s constructive powers would be more exercised than his memory.

Technical Instruction.—For the promotion of technical instruction, a sum of £4,000 is annually voted to the two mining schools of Ballarat and Sandhurst. I was once directed to furnish a report having reference to those institutions, and will now remark that this large sum, whether properly or otherwise expended, is at least dispensed without State supervision or control of any kind. How far the Working Men’s College, so generously promoted by the Hon. Francis Ormond, may meet the want of special training, one cannot yet say; the Schools of Mines may doubtless do much; but it seems certain that so large a sum as £4,000 should not be granted without some measure of conditions, control, and inspection.

In my last report, an opinion was ventured as to a not uncommonly expressed fear that the general prevalence of popular instruction might cause a distaste for manual trades or for domestic service. I am still of opinion that this apprehension is not well grounded; but seeing how other countries are making strides in industrial development, and that a necessity is recognised for making workmen intelligent agents rather than skilful machines, it behoves us to look ahead, lest, if we do not technically educate our artisans, we be left behind in the race of industrial progress.

While not an advocate for adding much to our State-school course of instruction, I am yet inclined to favor any plan that would teach our pupils at least a couple of the following subjects (such instruction to be not necessarily free):—Carpentry, drawing, music, horticulture, and domestic economy. Horticulture could be taught in the school grounds; and for the other subjects, schools in centres of population might combine. These pursuits would train eye, ear, fingers, and would give wholesome tastes, profitable occupation, or innocent amusement. It may here be mentioned that in the township of Kew, and in the Church of England Grammar School, St. Kilda road, classes for carpentry are held, and prove very successful.

Extra Subjects.—These are taught in about one school in ten, and often with fair success. In England, during the last few years, special subjects have been added for the voluntary examination of pupils in senior classes. These subjects are mainly English literature, physiology, physical geography, and domestic economy. Some others, as French, botany, mechanics, &c., are taken up by a very few children. Of English literature the knowledge gained by a schoolboy must be excessively meagre; but if (as is required) a candidate’s memory becomes stored with some hundreds of lines of choice poetry learned by heart, the result must be highly salutary; nor can we refuse to acknowledge that the domestic economy laid down for girls comprises elements of the truest and most valuable knowledge, when we read among its subdivisions the following:—Clothing; washing; food, its functions, composition, and culinary treatment; rules for health, and the management of the sick room.

Religious Instruction.—While on the subject of teaching, I may remark that the Rev. Robert Potter, of St. Mary’s, Hotham, attends weekly at School No. 459, with a couple of ladies, for the purpose of giving religious instruction. Mr. Taylor, the Church of England minister of Woodend, also makes some similar provision for the two Woodend schools. I am not aware whether any other schools in this district are provided with week-day religious instruction; but about 79 per cent. of the pupils attend Sunday-schools.

SCHOOL AGES.

This question has received exhaustive treatment from the public press, and from the Conference of Inspectors which, by direction of the Minister of Education, met to consider and report upon the matter. With the majority of State-school children, the first going to school means the beginning of their A, B, C. It is undesirable that this work should be postponed until six years of age; though in the opinion of most educationalists it should not be begun much before five. The Conference recommended four and a half as the minimum age for enrolment; but hesitated to advise that even younger children should not be permitted to attend without enrolment—in other words, without payment—on the ground that, if the latter were prevented from going to school with their brothers and sisters, some of the elder ones would often have to be kept at home to mind them. Nor must it be lost sight of that, if children begin school too late, the prolongation of their school course to an age when they should be at work is only one of several resulting drawbacks.

The number of children in the schools above 15 years of age is exceedingly small; and it was not thought right to restrict their attendance. One may, however, suggest that the upward compulsory limit of 15 is high as compared with that of other countries, in which the limit of 14, 13, or even 12 is prescribed. Most of our pupils seem to leave school between the ages of 13 and 14; but I have not collected a sufficient number of instances to guide to an exact conclusion. The standard certificate exempts children from further compulsory attendance; but many pupils remain at school after obtaining it. Lately I made a calculation as to the average age at which this certificate was obtained. In 100 consecutive cases in towns, the average age was 12 years and 10 months; in 100 consecutive country cases, it was 12 years and 11 months, or one month longer. Of these 200 children, 14 had passed their 15th birthday, while 18 were from 10 to 11, the youngest child being just 10.

The minimum attendance prescribed by the Education Act (30 days per quarter) is a little more than half of the total school days; and, within distances of two miles, it might reasonably be raised to 36 days, which would lengthen the year’s compulsory attendance by more than five weeks; while, at a future time, for short distances, it might even be advantageous to raise this term to 40 days. As a measure of economy this course seems ultimately desirable. The result would be that a child’s school course would be less protracted, his education would be sooner accomplished, and at an earlier age he would be ready and fit for employment.

It may be remarked en passant that, in framing the compulsory clauses of the Education Act, the special circumstances of half-time schools were apparently overlooked. In the Easter quarter of this year there were only 50 school days; so that a half-time scholar could not possibly attend for the 30 days prescribed.

In England, compulsory attendance is regulated by the Acts of 1870 and 1876; under which bye-laws may be framed; and compulsory attendance at school under bye-laws is now the law for about 73 per cent. of the whole population of England and Wales, or for about 97 per cent. of the borough population. In districts not provided with bye-laws, no child between 10 and 14 is entitled to go to work, even for half time, who has not either—

- (1.) Passed in reading, writing, and arithmetic, the fourth class standard (a slightly more difficult test than our own standard of education); or
- (2.) Attended an efficient school regularly for five years. (Regular attendance is defined as having made 250 attendances in the year.)

It may here be permissible to repeat a former recommendation—that employers of children within the compulsory limits of age should be allowed by legislative sanction to employ only those who had attained to the standard of education. I was lately assured that very young children are sometimes sent to work—children in some cases under 10, and not beyond the second class in acquirements, occasionally leaving school to work in factories.

The difficulty attending compulsory education is less to compel attendance than to ascertain who are liable; and perhaps the readiest way to cast the educational net so that none may escape its meshes will be to adopt and develop a suggestion embodied in Mr. Pearson's report (see page 43), wherein the Commissioner recommends that each school shall form the registry of a district or sub-district for the purpose of ascertaining and recording the school population.

TEACHERS.

During their labors, the Royal Commission on Education devoted some consideration to the number of offences committed by teachers against society. Several of these were grave offences, and were properly punished by dismissal. Public attention, however, being suddenly focused upon the laches of teachers, probably caused at the time a widespread but erroneous notion that teachers as a class were worse conducted than other sections of the community. Now every large flock has some black sheep; and among several thousands of persons it may not be unreasonably feared that there will be found some offenders against morality; but it is only due to the teachers that those who, by opportunities of frequent intercourse, know them well should speak out and say what justice demands: that on the whole the teachers are an extremely steady and well conducted body; and that in sobriety and morality they will bear comparison with any other class in the community. Further, it may be said that the tone of our teaching staff is rising. In former years we had a sprinkling of the failures from other professions; now the ranks are being constantly recruited from young persons who purpose to make teaching the business of their lives; and such are people whose purpose gives some guarantee of good conduct.

The age for admission to pupil-teachership in England has been raised a year; it would be well to do so in Victoria; pupil-teachers under 15 not being generally mature enough either in body or mind for their work. To provide all passed pupil-teachers with employment is a real difficulty; it is worthy of consideration whether pupil-teachers at the end of their course ought necessarily to be further employed. At present, every first-class pupil-teacher obtains the license to teach by passing through his course; but in future appointments, unless he enter the Training Institution, or at least obtain a certificate of competency, I do not think he should be recognised as having a claim to further employment. At the same time, the pupil-teacher course of study should be so modified as to lead up to the training course; and the work of both study and teaching should be arranged so as not to make too severe demands upon the strength of young and growing persons.

The best material for future instructors is to be found in our pupil-teachers; and if, by a slightly altered system, we can pass them through the Training Institution, we shall then secure a most suitable supply of candidates with an educational apprenticeship completed, and with a good top-course put upon the structure of their knowledge.

The able Superintendent of the Training Institution has drawn out a scheme for connecting the pupil-teacher course with that of the institution: it is to be hoped that ere long it may be more than a mere suggestion; but I should like also to see a system adopted whereby teachers might enter for the study and practice of the art of teaching alone. If too Mr. Gladman were appointed to lecture at the University on Pedagogy, other teachers than those employed in State schools might enjoy the benefit of his lectures, and the art of teaching, as such, would have a public exponent and a visible location. The question of transferring all the Department's examinations to the University had occurred to my mind before being asked about it by the Education Commission; and, while seeing certain advantages in such a course, I should hesitate to advise any hasty step in this direction, at least until the University could provide examinations exactly suited to the requirements of the Department. The present examination for the teacher's certificate is so practical, and so thoroughly a test of needful technical knowledge, that no degree examination could exactly take its place, though a degree might serve as a valuable and distinctive addition.

One thing further should be noted—we want more specific infant training. The Kinder Garten system or any similar plan for coping with the difficulties of infant teaching, and for developing harmoniously the powers of very young children, is almost new to this colony; and to my knowledge the only school conducted on the Kinder Garten principle is that very interesting one established by Miss Vaughan in Walsh street, South Yarra.

CONCLUSION.

A passage in the English Education Report of 1879-1880 is so suggestive that I desire to quote it:—"In the short school life of our children they cannot, at the best, do more than gain a superficial acquaintance with a few subjects of study. But a habit of observation, and of careful connected reading, with a love of acquiring knowledge, may well be begun in school, and if begun will often be continued when the children leave it." This, assuredly, is what we must aim at—not by any means a smattering of Herr Teufelsdröck's Allerleiwissenschaft—not indeed a series of daubs and splashes of instruction—not a veneering of showy ologies, or the dry bones of science without the spirit that makes them live—but such a system as may make our pupils thoughtful, industrious, and careful; such a training as, while burdening the memory less, may yet more quicken the intelligence and create a wholesome habit of observation.

To teach us how to think, not what to think—to do rather than to know—should be the aim of every true educator; and like a new St. George, he should rise up and do his utmost to slay the dragon Cram, that lurks in every scheme of instruction, and that may do so much to vitiate and destroy the highest purpose of education.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

The Secretary, Education Department.

T. BRODRIBB.

REPORT OF CHARLES A. TOPP, ESQUIRE, M.A., LL.B., METROPOLITAN EASTERN DISTRICT.

Sir,

Kew, 6th May 1882.

I have the honor to submit my general report for the year 1881.

No alterations have been made in the boundaries of my inspectoral district, which remains as described in my last annual report.

At the close of the year the number of State schools in the district was 63; in addition to these, there were three schools which, though not paid as State schools, were subject to inspection, viz., the Coranderk native school, the Richmond Servants' Training School, and the Abbotsford Industrial and Reformatory School.

During 1881, as in previous years, a large portion of my time was spent at the office in work arising from my membership of the Board of Examiners, and in other duties of various kinds.

Owing to these causes, during the first six months of the year, only five weeks were available for inspection, while during the latter half of the year inspection was further hindered by illness, which compelled me to relinquish work of all kinds for some weeks. The inspection of the district would therefore have been extremely imperfect but for the assistance of Messrs. Gamble and Hepburn, who devoted some weeks to the examination of schools which I was unable to undertake. To the former of these gentlemen I am indebted for relieving me of the toilsome and tedious work of examining the large schools of Richmond and East Collingwood.

The following statistics for 1881 are similar to those furnished in my report for the year 1880:—

SCHOOL PROVISION AND BUILDINGS.

Only one new schoolhouse was erected in the district during 1881, viz., that at Ivanhoe. The model country schoolhouse shown at the Melbourne International Exhibition in 1880 was removed to this locality, taking the place of an old rented building.

There now remain but seven State schools which have to depend wholly or partially for their accommodation on rented buildings. The Queenstown school, two of those at Nunawading, the Hoddle-street (Collingwood) school, the Wandin school, and that at Ferntree Gully, are held in rented buildings, while at Kew a considerable portion of the children have to be taught in a hired room. In the last-named borough the difficulty as to site has been removed by the purchase of an additional allotment, so that adequate school provision under one roof may shortly be expected. The rented building at Queenstown is likely to be soon superseded by the substitution of a State schoolhouse, to be removed from a neighboring locality, where it is no longer required. The delay in the erection of a proper schoolhouse at Ferntree Gully is due, I understand, to disagreement among the residents as to site. It is questionable whether either of the two Nunawading schools (No. 469 and No. 2242) will be required for any length of time, and it would therefore be unwise to build State schoolhouses in these places. As I stated in my last general report, the Hoddle-street schoolrooms are in almost every respect unfit for school purposes. It is very desirable that early steps should be taken to provide better accommodation for the 300 children who attend this school.

In one or two cases the State schools in the district need enlargement or improvement. Thus the Burwood schoolhouse has for some years been rather crowded, and, though the population is at a standstill, an enlargement of the schoolroom so as to give about 200 feet more of floor space might be safely undertaken. At Camberwell much discomfort and inconvenience is caused by the absence of porches at either door. The extension of the railway to this suburb may also necessitate the erection of an infant room. The Coranderrk native school is conducted in a building of very inconvenient shape. At the other native stations I have visited suitable schoolhouses have formed a prominent feature in the little settlement. It would seem a very proper expenditure of a portion of the grant paid for the maintenance of this station to provide a commodious schoolhouse and suitable furniture for the use of the black children.

Only one application for a new school was made during 1881. This has not yet been dealt with, but I believe the population in the locality will prove to be too scanty to warrant the establishment of a school.

At one or two places, owing to families leaving or growing up, the school provision is now excessive. At Fernshaw, at Gruyere, and at Woori Yaloak, the attendance has become so small that half-time schools would be sufficient; but as there are no neighbouring settlements with which these schools could severally be joined on the half-time system, they are at present continued as full-time schools. Kinglake school, No. 2188, was closed during 1881 owing to the attendance having fallen to two or three.

TEACHERS.

As the character of State-school teachers has been recently brought prominently before the public, it may be of some service to those who desire to form an unprejudiced opinion on this important branch of our State-school system, if I give some statistics concerning the teaching staff in my own district. The staff of teachers in the schools of the Southern Metropolitan District, on 31st December 1881, was the following:—

Head Teachers	...	...	...	...	...	...	63
Assistants	...	...	...	...	...	...	57
Pupil-teachers	...	...	...	...	...	...	67
Work mistresses	...	...	...	...	...	...	20
Total	...	...	...	...	...	...	207

With slight fluctuations, this may be held to represent the staff of teachers in these schools during the last three years. During this period only one charge of immorality of sufficient importance to be referred to me for enquiry has been brought against this body of over 200 teachers, and this immorality occurred before the teacher joined the service.

My own opinion on the teachers who have come under my observation is that, in regard to morality, they will compare favourably with any other branch of the public service, or with any other large body whose members follow a common calling or profession. Cases of neglect of duty, of want of judgment in dealing with offenders, of using injudicious language, have occasionally been brought before me; but when we bear in mind the tedious and monotonous character of schoolmasters' work, the demands on patience and good temper which are made, the unceasing and unsparing criticism to which their actions are subjected in small country towns, their lack of congenial society or amusements in the remote bush settlements—when all these difficulties are considered, the number of complaints against teachers is surprisingly small; the number of cases where the complaints are substantiated is much smaller.

READING BOOKS.

Another topic which has lately engaged public attention is the question of the Reading Books used in State schools. These have been stigmatised as "godless," "irreligious," &c., owing to certain alterations made in the Victorian edition. A comparison of the Royal Readers used in State schools with other reading books published by various well-known English and Scotch firms for use in elementary schools may throw some light on the subject of contention. In the following comparison I selected the Fifth Reader in each series, because I happened to have more specimens of that Reader than of others:—

Royal Reader, Book V., Victorian Edition; number of pages, 416.—Number of passages in which reference is made to the Deity as the creator of the world, an overruling Providence, the hearer of prayer, &c., 37.

Chambers's Narrative Series, Book V., pp. 256.—Number of passages as above, 13.

Laurie's Fifth Standard Reader, pp. 255.—Number of passages as above, 9.

Technical Reader, Book V., pp. 219.—Number of such passages, 15.

It will be seen that the Reading Books in use in our State schools contain rather more than the usual number of passages bearing on religion, as compared with other widely-used Reading Books.

While in this respect there does not seem to be reasonable ground for complaint in regard to our school books, it is to be regretted that they do not contain articles on the history and products of the various Australian colonies, accounts of their forms of government, and descriptions of the indigenous flora and fauna of this great island. It seems worth consideration whether a return to the old practice of allowing each school to choose its own Reading Books (subject to a veto by the Department) would not be advantageous. It is probable that under such a system the competition among publishers would lead them to supply articles on colonial topics, and all cause for suspicion that the Department was using the Reading Books as a means for diffusing particular theories of religion or government would be removed. The only change necessary under such a system would be for the Department to make a small money payment to each school in lieu of the free grant of Reading Books.

INSTRUCTION.

This remains much the same as in recent years. Many of the schools have already attained as high a standard as can be expected in the several subjects according to the letter of the regulations. Where, as in reading, spelling, and writing, the regulations give a liberal definition of the subject, satisfactory knowledge is acquired and exhibited at examination; where, as in arithmetic and geography, observance of the letter of the regulations is consistent with very unintelligent instruction, the knowledge of pupils frequently falls short of what is to be wished. For instance, the regulation as to geography requires a knowledge in Class III. of certain gulfs, bays, straits, &c.; accordingly pupils can generally point out such features on the map, or state their positions, but as the regulation does not expressly state that a knowledge of the meaning of the terms gulf, bay, &c., is required, the acquaintance of pupils with the meaning of these terms which they so glibly repeat is often far from satisfactory. So again in arithmetic the rules are learnt, and sums stated are readily and accurately worked; but, if a practical question is asked, which leaves to the intelligence of the pupils the applying of the proper arithmetical rule, correct answers are not so frequent. In arithmetic, however, I have during the past year noticed a tendency to more thoughtful teaching and a more general use of problems.

In geography the instruction is still very generally confined to a mechanical repetition of the relative positions of places, and to loading the memory with lists of names. As I remarked in my last report, the Department may do much to promote intelligent instruction by so defining the subjects as to indicate the character of the information expected, and by so arranging the course that the several branches of knowledge it embraces may be taken at the proper age, in the natural order, and in suitable portions.

QUEENSLAND AND VICTORIA.

While on sick leave last year I visited Brisbane, and took the opportunity of making some enquiries into the State-school system of Queensland. A brief comparison of the Queensland and Victorian systems of public instruction may not be out of place here. I shall confine my remarks to the following heads—School Provision, Payments of Teachers, Manner of securing Efficient Instruction.

School Provision.—I remarked in my last annual report that, owing to the uniformity in our method of paying all schools, we are in some danger of leaving altogether untaught scattered bush settlements, or else of providing education for them at an extravagant rate. The difficulty is met in Queensland, where it would be more felt than in this colony, by the establishment, where an average of 30 children cannot be maintained, of provisional schools; these schools are taught in buildings provided by the inhabitants, and the teachers are paid capitation salaries of £50 to £80 per annum. The teachers of provisional schools need not be classified, but must give satisfactory evidence that they are able to teach the elements. These schools correspond very closely to the rural schools under the Board of Education. At no schools, except infant schools, are pupils enrolled under five years of age. In infant schools children are enrolled at four.

A guarantee as to the bona-fides of an application for a State school is secured by a regulation which requires the inhabitants to contribute one-fifth of the cost of the building. Both in Queensland and in New South Wales, as in Victoria, there is an architect's staff in connection with the Education Department, and independent of the Public Works.

Payments of Teachers.—There is a prevalent impression here that in Queensland teachers are paid salaries entirely dependent on their classification, that they are not subject to loss of income through reports of inspectors, or through unavoidable fluctuations in the attendance at their schools. Such a supposition is erroneous. In Queensland teachers are certainly paid fixed salaries, which depend exclusively on their classification, but a considerable part of their income is derived from a capitation allowance, which of course fluctuates even more than our allotments. Though there is no result payment, the promotion of a teacher from one subdivision to another (which carries an increase of salary of £10 or £15) depends on the inspectors' reports, and a teacher may be degraded if he receives two unfavorable reports.

Comparing the incomes of teachers in the two colonies, I find that head teachers of State schools in Queensland are paid from 15 to 25 per cent. higher salaries than those in charge of schools of the same size in Victoria. Head teachers of provisional schools and assistant teachers are paid considerably less than teachers in a similar position in Victoria. The largest Brisbane schools have an average attendance of 500.

The staff of teachers in the northern colony is much more numerous in proportion to the number of pupils than in Victoria. In the former colony there seems to be generally both an assistant and a pupil-teacher for every 50 pupils; our rate is an assistant and a pupil-teacher to every 100.

Manner of securing Efficient Instruction.—In Queensland payment by results (or rather by result examination) does not exist, and there seems to be a strong disinclination on the part of the authorities to adopt any such system. I observed however that, apparently to supply the place of a result examination, various means are devised to secure regular and efficient performance by teachers of their duties. Some of these regulations seemed to me rather vexatious, and of questionable utility for securing the purpose for which I suppose them intended. The following are some of these rules:—(1.) Five hours' instruction must be given daily, exclusive of time spent in correcting home exercises. (2.) A weekly return must be furnished to the Department showing the time lost by each member of the staff through unpunctuality or absence. (3.) The same return must show the number of children who have been late or who have attended only half a day. (4.) This return must also show the class or draft taught by each teacher during the week. (5.) In each school a work-book must be kept showing the work to be done by each class in every subject for the following week or fortnight. (6.) Promotions are to be made quarterly, and the head teacher furnishes a quarterly return showing the numbers of pupils promoted in each class, the average time spent in class, and the average age of the classes. There is, moreover, an individual examination of the children by the inspector annually, and, as I have mentioned, the promotion of the teachers from one subdivision to another depends on this report.

I had not time or opportunity to visit many schools, so as to enable me to form an estimate of the comparative merits of the Queensland and Victorian schools. Such a comparison would be interesting, and might help in determining the question of the desirability of continuing the practice of making part of the State-school teacher's income dependent on a result examination.

I am indebted for very full information in regard to the Queensland system of public instruction to the courtesy of Mr. J. G. Anderson, Under Secretary of Public Instruction, and other officers of his Department, who most kindly furnished me with copies of the regulations, forms, and returns in use, and gave me all necessary verbal explanations in regard to them.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,

CHARLES A. TOPP.

The Secretary, Department of Education.

REPORT OF ROBERT CRAIG, ESQUIRE, M.A., LL.B., METROPOLITAN (NORTH-EASTERN) DISTRICT.

SIR,

Brighton, 8th May 1882.

I have the honor to submit a general report for the year 1881.

EMPLOYMENT.

My official time during the year amounted to 2,229 hours, and was distributed thus:—Out of every 100 hours, 58 were spent in travelling, inspecting, and reporting on schools, 36 in Board of Examiners' work, and 6 in other duties.

DISTRICT, AND INSPECTION OF IT.

My district (Metropolitan North-East) was, for this year, of the same extent as it was in the previous year. The closing of some schools and the opening of others made little difference in the work of inspection: No. 174, Collins street, held in a leased building, was closed on account of the excessive rent demanded, and the children were absorbed by other schools, chiefly by the neighboring ones—St. Peter's, No. 561, and the Central school, No. 391. The half-time school at McGillivray's Swamp, worked with Break of Day, No. 1405, on the road from Whittlesea to Yea, was closed because of the low attendance; and the branch at Break of Day was kept on as full time only till another arrangement could be made, and it is in the current year again on the half-time system with Boundary Creek, No. 1482, near Yea. The half-time school at Scrubby Creek, near Whittlesea, having had for a considerable period an average attendance of only four or five, was closed; the other branch at Upper Plenty was then for a while in the enjoyment of full time, but towards the end of the year it was again reduced to half time with Glenvale, No. 727, which had previously been a full-time school, with an attendance under 20. Half-time schools at Ghin Ghin and Switzerland, in the Yea district, but on the north bank of the Goulburn, were opened in bark huts provided by the inhabitants; but the attendance has not proved so great as was anticipated, and it seems likely that they will not have a long existence. Two portable schools of the new and improved kind were established, the one at Spring Valley, Flowerdale, the other at Kerriesdale, both situated in the valley of the King Parrot Creek, to the east of Broadford.

There were 64 day schools in operation in the district in the course of the year. In this number one school of a special character—the Coburg Reformatory—is included, and the two branches of a half-time school are reckoned as a unit.

All but two were fully inspected without notice during the year. Some received, also, one or two incidental visits; and all except six were also examined for results. These six were:—No. 174, Collins street, closed before the time for its examination had arrived; No. 2405, Kerriesdale, a new school not liable to examination at the time of my visit; and four others which I had not time to examine, namely, No. 450, George street, Fitzroy; No. 2030, Exhibition street, Melbourne; No. 1401, Northcote; and No. 1675, Woodstock.

Six night schools were in operation during the year. All but one were examined for results, and some of them also received another inspection.

The day schools had present in the aggregate at one inspection 10,407 scholars, of whom 83 per cent. were of the school age, 15 per cent. were under school age, and 2 per cent. were over school age. In the Coburg Reformatory 40 per cent. of the girls were over 15 years of age.

The largest number of scholars presented for examination in one school was 1,329, at Mr. Horsfall's school, No. 1895, Collingwood; and the smallest number presented in a full-time school was 10, at Break of Day, No. 1405. It has been explained above that the circumstances causing this school to enjoy full time were temporary.

The five night schools examined presented in the aggregate 296 scholars, of whom 79 per cent. were of school age.

RESULTS.

The percentage of marks gained at examination by all the children in the full-time schools of the district during the year is 83. The average of all the percentages of the same schools is 76. The difference is owing to the greater number of children being in the more efficient schools, among which most of the largest ones are included.

Four half-time schools were examined for results. The marks gained by all combined is 70 per cent. of the marks obtainable. One of them, Durham Gully and Miller's Ponds, No. 1341 (Mr. Robert A. Morrison, teacher), obtained 86 per cent. This case confirms a remark made in my last report to the effect that industry, well directed, can achieve good results, even in a half-time school.

The Coburg Reformatory for girls is practically a half-time school, as only two hours a day are devoted in it to instruction in literary work, the rest of the school-day being taken up with needlework and other domestic duties. Owing to the enormous ages of all the classes, the percentage gained by this school was only 16 according to the rules applied to State schools, but the actual percentage of passes was 91.

The five night schools examined for results gained in combination 63 per cent. of the marks obtainable. Owing to the short hours in a night school, the irregular attendance of most of the pupils; and other drawbacks inseparable from its very nature, the pupils who have been longest on the rolls bring, as a rule, the smallest results to the teacher; and it is those who have most recently come from a day school that contribute most to his percentage. One of the regulations regarding night schools requires the pupils to be presented in a higher class at each successive examination; and it generally happens that they gain fewer and fewer passes each year. With difficulty they may indeed be prevented from losing ground, and may even make some progress in the more useful subjects—reading, spelling, writing, and arithmetic; but, relatively to the standard required at each successive examination, they apparently go backward in those subjects; and really do so in grammar and geography. Those pass best who are freshest from a day school, those worst who have been longest in the night school. The teacher thus gets most benefit from those to whom he has given least.

There is yet another aspect in which this regulation seems open to objection. It evidently assumes that all the night schools will be examined every year with tolerable regularity; so that, for instance, one shall not have an interval of exactly a year, and another an interval of a year and a half between its examinations; otherwise they would not receive equal advantages. In the case of day schools the advantage of longer time for the preparation of classes is pretty fairly counterbalanced by the disadvantage of the increased ages ; but this compensation is not, and indeed cannot well be, applied to night schools. Therefore, to keep the latter all on the same footing, the regularity of inspection assumed by the regulation is necessary. It does not, however, exist ; and, though its attainment would not be impracticable, it would be very inconvenient to inspectors, who have to regulate their tours of inspection by the general requirements of their districts. As applied to night schools, then, the present system of examining for results neither really rewards results, nor is it equal in its operation.

PROGRESS.

In most of the day schools good progress was made during the year. Those which in the previous year had attained a high degree of efficiency not only maintained but increased it ; and nearly all (I regret that I cannot say all) those teachers who had in that year not received favorable reports made in the year under review strenuous and successful endeavors to improve their schools. There was an increase of industry or of skill in the teachers, and a consequent increase of proficiency in the pupils.

The main cause of this general efficiency is unquestionably the system of examination for results. It holds out to a teacher as the reward of repeated high percentages correspondingly high emolument, considerable local renown, and a character in the Department, if not for all the qualities that go to make a good teacher, at least for two important ones, ability and steady industry. It tends, therefore, to secure throughout the service a diligent pursuit of the means best calculated to obtain a high percentage ; and, although the nature of the examination gives too much encouragement to merely mechanical teaching in some subjects, still it is undeniable that hard work, steadily continued, is a necessary condition for gaining a high percentage. There is always, therefore, a tangible inducement for the naturally indolent to exert themselves ; and those who would from a sense of duty work hard without it do not work the less hard with it. To test and reward industry is to ensure and extend it.

INSTRUCTION.

The children of the district are, as a rule, fully educated up to the standards of examination fixed for their respective classes ; and, adopting words used by Mr. Topp in his last report, "I may venture to express an opinion that, now that our schools are, as a rule, officered by qualified teachers, properly trained in method and generally anxious to do their duty, we shall see no further improvement of importance in the instruction given in State schools until the order and extent of the subjects of free instruction are re-considered and re-arranged. It rests with the Department to make the next advance." Among the improvements of which the programme seems susceptible are the following :—More suitable employment for infants, object lessons and mental arithmetic for all classes, poetry to be learnt by all classes, the earlier application of arithmetic to questions requiring some thought, and the application of grammar to the correction of vulgarisms in speech. When these, and possibly other, improvements have been placed in the programme, it will be necessary to examine upon them, as far as possible, for results, in order to secure for them the requisite degree of attention. Indeed, the present programme, without any alteration, could be rendered more fruitful and more educative than it is by a more varied and less mechanical mode of examination. Certain things now in the programme are either not taught at all or are imperfectly taught to the class for which they are prescribed, because they are not subjects of examination in the next higher class ; and if the intelligent teaching of some subjects is not very common, it is mainly because mechanical teaching suffices to obtain the desired pass in them. When a teacher was once advised to put, sometimes, an exercise in subtraction to the third class, or the fourth, in some form that would cultivate their power of applying the rule—(in a form, for example, like this : What is the difference between the number 987 and the number 1,000 ? Or like this : There are 987 sheep in a paddock ; how many more must be put in, so that there shall be 1000 in it ?)—he replied that necessarily the children would do in a given time far fewer of such exercises than of sums set for them, with the subtrahend placed under the minuend ; and, consequently, as much as they would gain in intelligence they would lose in accuracy and rapidity of work, which alone counted for anything in the examination ; and therefore it would not "pay" him to give questions requiring thought. Again, the style of the questions in geography is usually such as to foster the belief that a pass can be best secured by firmly rooting in the memory by frequent repetition a form of words, such as—"Wilson's Promontory, south of Victoria ;" and that to bestow much time in getting the names, colors, and lines on the map thoroughly understood, and in conveying facts relating to the places mentioned, is comparatively unprofitable. At all events, I have found children who, for instance, correctly stated the position of Wilson's Promontory, and who yet explained a promontory to be "a portion of water running into the land ;" and others who could name the capital of any country, and yet described the capital as "what the country stands on"! Having discovered that the meaning of geographical terms was insufficiently attended to, I made a practice, during the year, of putting questions on them, and obtained, at first, some new and amusingly absurd definitions of cape, lake, isthmus, watershed, colony, and town ; but in the latter part of the year the schools were found to be prepared for such questions. The style and scope of the examination govern the character and extent of the instruction.

No doubt, much can be done to encourage intelligent teaching by bestowing praise on those teachers who exhibit it ; and, no doubt also, inspectors take every opportunity of doing so ; but this course cannot fail to be less generally efficacious than such an alteration in the result examination as would give to superior instruction its due pecuniary reward. Praise without pay may influence some ; it needs praise with pay to influence all.

It does not seem necessary to give here particular observations on each subject of instruction. To do so would be to repeat much of what has been already well said. Teachers desirous of improving in method would do well to go carefully through past reports, and note down and collect under appropriate headings the criticisms and practical suggestions scattered through them.

EXTRA SUBJECTS.

Extra subjects are taught in nearly all the metropolitan schools of the district. At the Central school, No. 391, and at Collingwood school, No. 1895, the pupils learning some subjects are sufficiently numerous to permit of their being formed into tolerably large classes according to their attainments in them, so that an approach is made to efficient collective instruction. As a rule, however, very few pupils in a school are at the same stage in the study of any subject, and the instruction given is not serviceable to more than two or three at a time. The progress of the pupils is not commensurate with the time and labor of the teacher.

There is some ground for fearing that the teaching of the few who learn extras trespasses a little on the time and attention due to the many who do not. The temptation to commit this irregularity is, of course, strongest where pupils are being prepared for exhibitions.

The extras are not taught in the schools in the country towns of the district. There are teachers in them competent enough to teach them, but they are unwilling to take the trouble of teaching them to the small number of pupils obtainable.

So long as the extras are among the subjects of examination for the State-school exhibitions, few bright country children and no bright town child of poor parents will have a chance of winning one of these prizes. The former can rarely get instruction in extras, even if able to pay for it; and the latter cannot get it, because unable to pay for it. The institution of these exhibitions is defensible chiefly on the ground that talents which would otherwise lie dormant or be misapplied are, by this means, developed and trained so as to be of the greatest service to the community. Now, it is well known that they are often gained by children whose parents are in comfortable, if not affluent, circumstances, and who would, without such aid from the State, be furnished with a superior education.

To confine the examination for exhibitions to the subjects of the free course would extend the intelligent and thorough teaching of the free course, as it would render them more attainable by the clever children of the colony at large.

Mr. Topp and Mr. Holland have, in their last reports, expressed themselves in favor of this change. If it were adopted, "the maximum age for candidates should be fixed about a year lower than it is now, and the exhibition should be tenable for a longer period."

The number of candidates could be kept within bounds by making a rule that any who obtained less than fifty per cent. of the total marks should not be allowed to attend a second examination.

It would be an advantage if mensuration and book-keeping were on the programme of free instruction for the sixth class.

DISCIPLINE.

As a rule, the pupils appeared at inspection to be industrious, orderly, and sufficiently respectful to their teachers. The cases in which discipline had to be badly reported on were very few indeed. It may be objected that what the inspector sees is not the ordinary behaviour of the pupils, but their behaviour kept at its best during his visit, by the desire not to discredit their school while it is on its trial. Even granting that this is so, the existence of this desire is itself some evidence of good discipline; and, moreover, the demand made at a result examination on the attention, order, and honesty of the pupils is such as to disclose unmistakably to what extent these qualities are habitual.

It is frequently argued that the discipline in the State schools must be very faulty, because it lacks the direct inculcation of religious sanctions. Many of those who hold this view probably either overlook or greatly under-estimate the influences which are at work in the schools on the side of right feelings and right conduct. Passing over the fact, which has been often pointed out, that the reading books contain frequent references to religious considerations, it will be enough to observe that many of the lessons in them have a distinctly moral object, and others show indirectly the advantages and the beauty of moral conduct. The influence, too, of the teachers upon the scholars, and the necessary results of the ordinary performance of their duties preponderate greatly on the side of virtue. A large service such as that of the teachers, who are so little under supervision, and who are peculiarly exposed to some kinds of temptation, may be expected to contain a few men who will, in some respects, produce a mischievous effect on the characters of the children committed to their care; but this evil, though certainly in itself serious, is inappreciable in comparison with the influences for good exerted willingly by the great majority of the teachers, and unconsciously even by the worst, through the inevitable working of the system they are helping to administer. In every school some kinds of virtue must, in some degree, be cultivated, for its efficiency depends directly on their cultivation. It depends directly on the industry, care, and self-reliance of the pupils, and on their submission to constituted authority. In proportion, then, as efficiency is sought, these qualities are fostered. Some higher qualities, such as truthfulness, strict honesty, a high sense of honor, tender regard for the rights and feelings of others, do not so directly influence the welfare of a school, and therefore may not be so generally cultivated, but most of them are necessarily cultivated to some extent. When a pupil, for instance, brings a false excuse for absence, or for the non-performance of home tasks, the teacher is impelled by self-interest, if by no higher motive, to detect and punish the falsehood, and to give a lesson to the school on the evil of lying; and so in regard to dishonesty and violence, inasmuch as they tend to impair the harmony and security of his pupils and the reputation and attractiveness of his school, he is likewise impelled by self-interest to seize opportunities for discountenancing them; not to mention that in becoming a schoolmaster he has not ceased to be a citizen, and is still concerned, as such, in discouraging conduct opposed to the well-being of the community. It has further to be considered that the scholars themselves help, in no inconsiderable degree, to promote among one another respect for important portions of the moral code. There are some vices, indeed, of which the evil consequences are not very obvious to the young, and in regard to these it may be true that one bad child in a school makes many; but from all kinds of wrong-doing of which the evil consequences are obvious to them, such as oppression of the weak by the strong, untruthfulness, and dishonesty, their condemnation is rarely withheld. The correctness of this statement will be admitted by all who have had much to do with children, but an example of its truth may not be considered inappropriate. A boy in one of the large schools in my district having stolen another boy's book, and having been found out, had to leave; he could not bear his class-mates pointing to him and saying, "There's the fellow that stole the book."

In favor, then, of the prevalence of a healthy moral tone in the schools several powerful influences are at work. The beneficial influence of the reading books is strongly seconded by that of the great body of the teachers and by the necessary discipline of school work, and to these influences in the service of morality the influence of the scholars upon one another in promoting some virtues of importance leads no inconsiderable aid.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

ROBERT CRAIG,

Inspector of Schools.

The Secretary, Education Department.

REPORT OF CHARLES TYNAN, ESQUIRE, B.A., LL.B.,
METROPOLITAN SOUTH DISTRICT.

SIR,

I have the honor to forward my annual report on the Metropolitan South district for the year 1881.

During the year the district has been considerably enlarged in area, and consequently there has been a material increase in the number of schools on my programme of inspections.

New schools have been established at Kilenda, Yannathan, Jeetho East, and Jumbunna. New buildings to replace existing schools have been erected at Moorooduc, Emerald Hill (Dorcas street), and Dandenong, and applications have been favorably entertained and sites selected for schools at Yannathan (South), Little Lang Lang, North Lang Lang, Beaconsfield, Cruickston (McDonald's Track), Powlett River, and Gembrook.

Sites also have been selected at Osborne, Corinella, and Nar-nar-noon, for central schools to amalgamate those at present existing at Osborne and Tuerong, Grantville and Queensferry, and at Nar-nar-noon. New buildings too are in course of erection at St. Kilda (Fitzroy street), and at Sorrento.

Owing to a marked increase of population in the immediate vicinity, it has been found necessary to materially add to and extend the school buildings at St. Kilda (Brighton Road), South Melbourne, South Prahran, Frankston and Hastings.

It will thus be seen that the task of providing school accommodation, not only in those localities where there were no schools previously in existence, but also in those where, from exceptional circumstances, the increase of population was unusually large, has been vigorously pushed forward, and so thoroughly, I may add, that there is scarcely any part of the district of which I am in charge in which school accommodation, and that too of a suitable character, is beyond reasonable distance from any, even the most isolated family.

For at least three months of the year I was withdrawn from the task of inspection in order to render assistance to the Board of Examiners in dealing with the papers of the unusually large number of candidates who presented themselves for examination, and, but for the valuable assistance of Mr. Curlew, who relieved me of the schools in the south-western part of my district, I should not have been able to have completed my programme of inspection for the year. As it is, all the schools on my programme have been duly inspected during the year, and, with the exception of but three, all have been examined.

I am glad to see that the demands on the Department for free stock are gradually diminishing, both in number and amount. In many of the town and in some of the country schools the Department is not importuned for a single article. I am quite convinced that a total cessation of the use of free books depends simply on the moral influence of the teacher, and I find throughout that this moral influence exists and is exerted in inverse ratio with the number of applications made to the Department for the articles—in other words, that the morale of those schools in which free stock is quite unknown is considerably higher than those in which the Department is asked to provide free books and slates, as well as free education.

In my last report I was obliged to remark that in the organization of the majority of the country schools there was considerable room for improvement. I am pleased now to be able to report that improvement, and that too of a marked character, has taken place.

While the defects alluded to in last report have in some cases altogether disappeared, in many others laudable efforts, attended too with fair success, have been made to remedy them. The character of the instruction too in those schools is of a much better character, and the substantial increases in the result percentages of so many of them afford abundant evidence that material progress has been made, and that school work has been carried on with ability, industry, and zeal.

This satisfactory improvement in organization and instruction is due partly to improvement in the individual, but chiefly to the fact that during the year many useless teachers were removed and their places filled by competent successors, who, in almost all cases, were unmarried females. In their places, there are no better servants of the Department than these young unmarried female teachers. Their special calling seems to be the charge of small country schools. Besides being punctual in the performance of their duties, they invest their work with zeal and earnestness, and are, in nearly all cases, thoroughly reliable. They invariably raise the tone of the school to which they are appointed, and are justly popular with parents and pupils. The discipline in the schools of which they have charge is particularly good.

Judging by the results obtained at the annual examinations, and this is to my mind the best criterion, the instruction in the district generally is of a high character, and continues to show steady improvement. Regarding individual subjects, I may complain that the reading in most of the country schools lacks fluency and expression, and is generally of so unintelligent a character that but a small percentage of the pupils under examination are able to answer an easy question on the meaning of some passage in the context. In many of the town schools, on the other hand, the reading in the upper classes is of an excellent character, and for fluency, expression, and distinct enunciation could scarcely be excelled. In many of these schools I find that the teachers avail themselves of the lectures of the teacher of elocution, and are nearly all good readers themselves.

The schools generally are strong in the subject writing. Intelligent class teaching, in which the blackboard plays a most prominent part, combined with close and careful supervision of the individual copy-books, secure this satisfactory result.

In grammar and arithmetic, the subjects which really require the most teaching, and in which the greatest demand is made on the intellectual faculties of the scholars, much better work has been done during the year, and the progress in these subjects alone testifies in favor of the improved character of the instruction.

In a previous report I mentioned that the maps of Australia and Australasia now in use were not of a good character, and that separate maps of the colonies had not yet found their way into our schools. To this, in my opinion, is to some extent attributable the fact that our scholars do not possess so extensive an acquaintance with Australian geography as with that of the world generally.

The subject military drill receives a considerable amount of attention in the Metropolitan South district, and the various and complicated movements in squad and company drill are generally executed with commendable steadiness and precision. Frequently, however, I notice that the mechanical correctness of the movements is somewhat stilted, and that that military carriage and soldierly bearing in the ranks, so essentially the characteristic of the thoroughly drilled soldier, is not so observable as one might wish.

In nearly all the schools in the district in which extra subjects are taught I have had to complain of the fact that the teachers attach undue prominence to these subjects, and that either the teacher who gives instruction in them is withdrawn for the time from more important duties, or the subjects are taken at such a time as to cause interference with the ordinary school work.

Again, if the arrangements made for teaching these subjects are of such a nature that no breach of the regulations is incurred, the time devoted to instruction in them is necessarily of so limited a character that the instruction cannot be expected to go beyond a very elementary stage, or to be attended with any marked success.

In the more remote country districts, where in all probability there exists no other means of obtaining such instruction, I can understand the Department tolerating, perhaps encouraging, the teaching of extra subjects at our schools. But in the larger cities the case is quite different. Than Melbourne there is perhaps no city in the world in which, by reason of the number and character of its public and private schools, greater facilities are afforded the young student for obtaining a sound classical education; and that too at a cost not at all beyond the reach of the ordinary citizen paterfamilias; and in the city and suburbs, where these schools and colleges are both numerous and of a very high character, it is difficult to understand why the parent should prefer to pay the State-school teacher for the small modicum of classics and mathematics his son may acquire, when by a trifling additional expense he can avail himself of the great educational advantages to be obtained at the institutions referred to.

In the schools in the Metropolitan district the discipline is generally satisfactory, and with but few exceptions the morale of the schools is of a high character.

The principal, in fact almost the only offence against morality, that comes under my notice is the persistent attempts on the part of the pupils in some schools to copy and assist one another during the examination. In one school in the district this baneful practice is carried on with such skill and dexterity as to almost baffle detection and to leave on one's mind the unpleasant impression that the scholars habitually practise it, or are acting according to some preconceived plan with a view to securing a spurious success at the examination.

Of course it is entirely the fault of the teacher, who, either from defective supervision, gross indolence, careless good nature—I will not add defective moral sense—suffers his pupils to contract habits which have a strong tendency to undermine their spirit of self-reliance, and create a low morality fraught with dangerous consequences to them in after-life.

I am glad to report that the records in the district are kept in a much more satisfactory state than they were during the previous year. The remarks in my last year's report have not been without effect, for in those schools in which I had reason last year to suspect that the roll was not faithfully or carefully marked, I have now but little reason for complaint on this score.

One cannot help noticing and remarking on the fact that the percentage of pupil-teachers who succeed in passing at the annual examination for promotion is inordinately low, and that the result of these examinations is not at all satisfactory. From general observation and special enquiries, I am of opinion that the chief cause of failure in the cases of these teachers is the neglect on the part of the head teacher, either to give personally the proper instruction necessary or to see that proper instruction is given by competent assistants, as required by the regulations. In the course of the special enquiries above referred to, I ascertained that there were cases in which pupil-teachers, unable to obtain in the school the instruction to which they were legally entitled, found it necessary to avail themselves of the services of an outside paid tutor to qualify themselves for the examination.

There are still in existence in my district seven night schools, five of which were examined during the year. In two of them fair work is being done, while in the others the educational and moral advantages accruing to the pupils in attendance supply but a poor equivalent for the monthly demands made on the coffers of the State. In a previous report I stated, amongst other objections to night schools, that, as at present constituted, they allow of an evasion of the Education Act. As this statement has been questioned on several occasions, I take the opportunity of offering a few statistics, with a view of showing how far I was justified in making the statement to which exception has been taken. The office records show that, at the last examination of the seven schools at present in existence in my district, there were present in all 503 pupils, of whom 84 were over and 419 under fifteen years of age. Now as the Act fixes fifteen years as the age up to which pupils are required to give their attendance at the day schools, it is manifest that over 83 per cent. of the scholars in attendance at the night schools in the Metropolitan South district should be enrolled at the day schools and should give their attendances there. Moreover, as these night schools only exist in the more populous suburbs, where the day schools are very largely attended, this 83 per cent. might easily be absorbed by these latter schools without much change in the allotments thereof, and with but little additional expense to the State. From this it will appear that the Department virtually pays twice over for the education of most of these persons.

Again, as the attendance of this large proportion of scholars is given almost wholly with a view of complying with the law, and out of respect for the compulsory clause, it is not at all too much to assert that the educational advantages derived from such attendance are not likely to be of a high character, or to confer much benefit on persons who attend so grudgingly and of necessity. My experience not only confirms this view, but also shows in addition that while the scholars referred to receive but little benefit from their own attendance, by their behaviour and indolence they, to a great extent, impede the progress of the older scholars, who, without any fear of the law, attend simply for the purpose of receiving the educational advantages that night schools under an improved system might reasonably be expected to bestow.

Shortly, then, our present night-school system compels the State to pay nearly double for instruction of an inferior character.

I have the honor to remain, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

CHARLES TYNAN,

The Secretary Education Department,
Melbourne.

REPORT OF ALFRED CLARIBEUX CURLEWIS, ESQUIRE, M.A., GEELONG DISTRICT.

SIR,

Geelong, 7th February 1881.

I have the honor to forward my report on the Geelong district for the year 1881.

In seven of the schools I regret to have found a falling-off in the teaching and management, due, in all but one case, to the substitution of teachers not so well qualified or so energetic as their predecessors. I refrain from mentioning names, as in some cases this falling-off was mainly due to want of experience. On the other hand, there was in many schools an improvement, which would more than counterbalance this deficiency.

I have frequently to complain that children when writing are allowed to sit in an improper position, and hold the pen incorrectly. On this "write as you please" plan children may possibly be able to produce a copy-book good enough to secure a pass, but after they leave school their penmanship, being founded on no secure basis, generally degenerates. With Mr. Cox, I feel inclined to suggest that it should be made compulsory to write a page of a copy-book in the presence of the inspector.

I am glad to see that in some schools composition forms part of the course, but generally it does not receive the attention that its importance deserves.

Complaints sometimes reach my ears that many girls on leaving school for service show that they have not derived much advantage from the sewing class, especially as regards the useful but despised art of darning. These complaints are, I fear, well grounded. On several occasions last year I had to threaten that such sewing or darning as was then shown would not in future be passed. I trust that there will be no necessity this year for putting this threat into execution.

In this district at all events the pupil-teachers, so far as I can judge from their appearance, do not allow their duties to press too severely on their health. Indeed, to one who had been carefully instructed as a scholar in the programme of the successive classes up to the sixth, the work of a fourth or third class pupil-teacher should present little difficulty. The large number of failures can be accounted for only by supposing a want of this early preparation. In some cases, however, better results would be shown were a longer time given at examination for the arithmetic paper, and were this subject not taken first. Sufficient allowance would thus be made for the nervousness and inexperience attending, in the case of the third class, the first serious examination. I must confess, however, that the pupil-teachers of this district, as compared with those of Ballarat, seem to me to have less energy and ambition. I have never heard of any ambitious enough to dream of improving his status by entering the Training Institute or passing the University examinations.

During the past year there have come under my notice several cases exemplifying the necessity of giving increased power to inspectors in the case of inevitable absence of children from result examination. A change in this direction would remove some of the prejudice with which the result system is in some quarters regarded.

I agree with Mr. Holland in thinking that some plan might be devised whereby the benefits of our exhibition scheme might be extended to the scholars in our country schools. In the absence of classes in what are called "extra subjects," the "mute inglorious Milton" of the rural district is likely to remain such, the exhibitions being virtually confined to the scholars in the larger towns, where alone such classes are possible.

We have not had experience in this district of the bad effects of heated rooms, crowded with babies, &c., of which we have lately heard so much. Parents usually have sense sufficient to know whether school or home is better for the health of their children; and hot weather, instead of finding crowded rooms, is frequently assigned in the rolls as a reason for a low attendance. I do not, however, consider that the instruction given to those under five years of age is worth the money paid for it. During the last twelve months I have paid particular attention to the supervision of the infant class, and have again and again had to urge upon teachers the necessity of improving upon the present state of things. Of the six large schools in Geelong and its suburbs, only three received full marks for the infant class at result examination. In fact that of No. 1094, Swanston street, was the only one with which I was fully satisfied. As showing the good results of imparting sound instruction in the early stage of school life, and as an incentive to others to go and do likewise, I may add that in the same school Class I. (over seven years of age) and Class II. gained the unusually high percentages of 96 and 100 respectively. The teaching in both of these classes was excellent, but, had it not had a good foundation on which to build, it could not have been so successful. To give credit to whom it is due, it should be mentioned that the foundation of this prosperous condition was laid by Mr. Link, formerly head teacher of this school, and Miss Sutton, one of the present teachers.

Though here and there I have met with instances of carelessness in keeping the records, no gross cases, such as other inspectors complain of, have come under my notice. Indeed, with the exception of two enquiries into the management of schools, my references have contained nothing of a disagreeable nature.

Mr. Philp, in his last report, points out the want of local supervision. In those parts of the district where Boards of Advice take an interest in the schools this want is not felt. I gladly recognise the good they do. In other parts, however, Mr. Philp's remarks apply, but I do not think that the proposed remedy—placing the schools in charge of the shire councils—would be a change for the better.

In my last report I alluded to the desirability of holding out greater inducements to pupil-teachers to enter the Training School. At present the feeling amongst them is that they can get on as well without the extra qualification as with it. Were this state of things altered, we should have a sufficient supply of candidates from the pupil-teachers alone. We should thus be spared paying, as we now sometimes do, lads without any experience in teaching over £100 per annum for the privilege of preparing them for the certificate examination, for which we can get outside candidates to prepare at their own cost. We should then, too, probably be able to dispense with the somewhat expensive associated training schools, of which the advantages are not, I fear, commensurate with the cost.

The regulation of 1880 has reduced the number of night schools in this district to three. The benefits derived from these are hardly commensurate with the cost (though the teachers certainly earn their money); yet I should not like to advise any further reduction in the number.

The only schools in which science forms part of the programme are No. 260, Geelong, and No. 2143, South Geelong.

In the Geelong district classes in extra subjects are not found outside the town, except in the case of one school. Considering the strain on the minds of the pupils which the combination of these and the ordinary subject entails, the results are as good as, or rather better, than one could expect. I find, however, a tendency to allow these subjects to trench on the time that ought to be given to the ordinary work, especially singing and drawing. In school No. 260 preparatory classes in Latin, &c., are taken by the assistants, while the matriculation and exhibition classes are taken by teachers not on the staff. In this way the attention of the staff teachers is not taken away from the ordinary work, nor the general interests of the school made subservient to those of these classes.

I hope soon to see more suitable reading tablets than those now in use in our infant rooms. Nelson's are not sufficiently graduated.

The opposition—too often successful—which is met with from those locally interested to attempts at reasonable economy—e.g., the amalgamation of schools, transfer of pupil-teachers, &c.—often makes one wish that the principle of local rating was in force. Were the money thus raised, we should have fewer applications for the establishment, and less opposition to the amalgamation, of schools in localities where the population is not sufficiently numerous.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

The Secretary, Education Department.

ALFRED C. CURLEWIS.

REPORT OF JAMES HOLLAND, ESQUIRE, M.A., BALLARAT DISTRICT.

SIR,

Ballarat, 15th April 1882.

I have the honor to forward my report for the year ending 31st December 1881.

The district is still substantially the same as at last inspection. It has been made up of parts of the old Ballarat West, Ballarat East, and Ararat districts, alterations in the boundaries being necessitated by the over-growth of the Ararat district. Ballarat No. 1, as now constituted, extends considerably to the north of the centre of both the Ararat and Maryborough districts.

BUILDINGS.

The district is, on the whole, supplied with excellent school buildings. During the year new premises have been completed at Sailor's Gully and Moonlight. Necessary repairs have been effected at Trawalla, 1150, and Charlton, 902. Prior to forwarding my last report, additions had been made to Waterloo Flat, 717; the attendance has now increased to such an extent that still further accommodation is required. I believe steps have already been taken to meet fully the increased wants of the place. The buildings at Piggoreet, Golden Lake, and Illabarook are old and more or less defective. I was informed that necessary repairs to Golden Lake, No. 1065, had been recommended by the building officer, and this school has probably been repaired since my last visit to that place. At Piggoreet an entirely new building is now required. In the face of a fast decreasing attendance, there is some difficulty in making any definite recommendation as to size. In many localities like this, if matters go on as they are, a school built for the present attendance will soon be too large, while any new start in the mining prospects of the district may, in a very short time, render an increase of accommodation necessary. One can only take the present condition of affairs into consideration, and recommend a school to accommodate, not an almost certain decrease or a possible increase in the attendance, but the actual average number of children now on the rolls.

FURNITURE.

This is generally sufficient and of good quality. The free stock is, as a rule, kept with a very fair degree of care. In some schools the books are neatly and strongly covered, and every precaution taken to prevent injury to the school property; in others again, while there is no great carelessness, there is no extraordinary carefulness shown in the preservation of the school belongings. I still think there might be a better supply of diagrams, pictures, &c., in the schools; on the other hand, economy might be practised in the issue of free books, slates, &c. These, in my opinion, should be supplied to those children only whose parents produce a properly signed certificate of being in indigent circumstances. It is not always the poorest parents who depend on the bounty of the State for their children's books, &c. Often the more well-to-do parents refuse to buy anything that the State provides, whilst their poorer but more independent neighbours prefer to supply the school wants of their children from their own pockets.

ORGANIZATION.

In nearly all cases this is quite satisfactory, in many cases noticeably methodical and good. The faults, when any exist, arise generally from the difficulty of supervising several classes at one time, from the want of a careful and equal distribution of the time of the teacher among the different classes, and from the occasional leaving of a class without any supervision whatever. The practice of stating definitely on the time-table the means adopted for the supervision of each class is a very necessary one. It may not be advisable to follow slavishly such plan of supervision, but it should be generally adhered to.

INSTRUCTION.

If the main object of State instruction is to teach children to read well, to write legibly, to have a useful knowledge of arithmetic, and a satisfactory acquaintance with the grammatical rules of the language, there is much reason to be satisfied with the work now being done in the State schools. There may be, and are, better methods of teaching these subjects than those adopted by some of the teachers, but the defects are in comparatively unimportant matters of detail. With regard to the amount of earnestness, intelligence, and ability brought to bear on the work, little complaint can be made. In important matters of general progress and proficiency, the schools of this district are, with few exceptions, in a really creditable state.

I have purposely not mentioned defects. There are faults in most schools, slight ones even in the best. It is well that these should be pointed out, and that endeavours should be made to eradicate them; but by dwelling on them at length in our annual reports year after year, I find we are liable to give the general public an erroneous idea of the work done in the State schools. The deficiencies are remembered, and at times made the text of articles in the press, and of general attacks on schools and teachers; the excellences are too often forgotten.

DISCIPLINE.

Good in nearly all the schools. The rule is to find the children well behaved and diligent. In some schools one cannot help being struck with the smartness with which class movements are effected, and books, slates, hats, &c., given out and returned. In many there is room for improvement in these latter particulars. These are not matters of vital importance, but attention to them saves time, gives a smart and business-like appearance to the working of the school, and is calculated to inculcate in the children habits of order and readiness.

EXTRAS.

I think mensuration (and perhaps history) might be included among the free subjects in the programme of sixth class, and that other extra subjects might be struck out from the State-school course. I believe that those who obtain any benefit from learning them would still continue to do so, that they would be willing to pay higher fees, and that those who give instruction in "extras" would not suffer any appreciable pecuniary loss, whilst those pupils who are not intended by their parents to continue these studies after leaving the State school might advantageously devote their attention to more essential subjects.

If the plan above suggested were adopted, candidates for exhibitions could be examined in all the subjects of the programme, and all the schools in the colony could possibly compete. At present, I have little doubt, there are left in the schools better and abler pupils than some of those who obtain exhibitions, but such pupils are unable to compete, from the simple fact that extra subjects are not taught in the schools which their place of residence compels them to attend.

ROLL CALL AT RESULT EXAMINATIONS.

The rule for calling roll on the afternoon of inspection and carrying on the afternoon school not infrequently works badly. Children who happen to be kept in, say till 1.30 p.m., have attended their full school hours, and should, in my opinion, be dismissed for the day. If this is not done, one of two evils occurs—either the children are allowed to go home and do not return; they thus injuriously affect the attendance, and they are, I think, illegally deprived of credit for four hours' attendance at school; or, on the other hand, some of them are kept in fasting. It may be said that inspection work should be arranged so as to allow children to go at the usual hours. Those who have examined large schools know that to do this without loss of time is, in many cases, impossible, and, in nearly all, most inconvenient. Even in small schools, strict compliance with the rule causes, at times, considerable loss of time and trouble.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

The Secretary, Education Department.

J. HOLLAND.

REPORT OF WALTER M. GAMBLE, ESQUIRE, SANDHURST DISTRICT No. 2.

SIR,

Sandhurst, March 1882.

I have the honor to submit the following report for the year 1881:—

My prescribed duties for the year have been almost identical with those of 1880. My immediate district for inspection remains unchanged territorially; five new schools have been added to my list, while one (Echuca south) has been closed—112 schools in all; there remains only one night school in Sandhurst District No. 2.

The months of January, February, and July were spent in assisting the Board of Examiners and in attending to Provincial Examinations in Music in conjunction with Mr. Inspector Summers. During the year I inspected, under G. or H., twenty-two schools in the Eastern Metropolitan district.

The following statistics may be useful as bearing on the above:—

No. of miles travelled	...	...	...	...	7,684
No. of school inspections	...	...	...	...	211
No. of pupils present at principal inspections	...	...	...	...	22,349
No. of standard of education certificates issued	...	...	...	...	825
No. of hours spent in travelling	...	...	...	...	823
No. of hours spent in school	...	...	...	...	937
No. of hours spent in result work	...	...	...	...	165
No. of hours spent in Board of Examiners' work	...	...	...	...	360
No. of hours spent in writing reports H. H 2.	...	...	...	...	113
No. of hours spent in miscellaneous work	...	...	...	...	241
No. of hours spent in official duty	...	...	...	...	2,639

There were 13½ public holidays; I was "on leave" 2 days.

BUILDINGS.

While the schoolhouses erected by the Department are in every way excellent internally, it appears to me that one most urgent improvement is required in all schools where the windows are in the walls on the north and west. The intense heat admitted during the summer combined with the close atmosphere on sultry days, is prejudicial to the health of teacher and pupils; while the glare of light, notwithstanding the green "frosting" on the glass, cannot but be destructive to the teachers' eyesight. Every school, in my opinion, would be made more serviceable and comfortable, permitting more continuous work by pupils, and conserving the health and energy of teachers, were an inexpensive verandah placed on the sides facing the north and west. All the two-storey town schools should be provided with shutters similar to those at Richmond Central, No. 1567. Were teachers to obtain a Fah. thermometer and note the temperature daily, say at 2 p.m., some startling data would be obtained.

It gives me great pleasure to bring under your notice cases where teachers have exerted themselves, outside their prescribed duties, in the interests of their schools. A case worthy of special mention has occurred in the Echuca school, No. 208. The head teacher has raised sufficient funds to defray the cost of placing in each of the schoolrooms "punkahs," by which the air on sultry days may be easily and readily agitated, to mitigate the effects of the intense heat of summer. In other matters he has been equally thoughtful of the health and comfort of his pupils; and the attention paid to the various trees and shrubs planted in the school-ground deserves particular mention. I regret that I cannot say that such care in regard to school-ground plantations is the rule; it is, unfortunately, the exception.

ORGANIZATION.

Under this head I am able to report that a gradual improvement is observable, giving proof that the desire to amend old plans and to adopt suggestions, actuates the large majority of teachers.

I desire, however, to urge strongly the adoption of a new, and, doubtless some teachers will say, a sensational departure; which is, for the Department to require the head teacher of every school, where the average attendance exceeds 250 pupils, to post up in a conspicuous place, every Monday morning, a time-table of his own proposed duties for the week; such document to be amended, if necessary, in order to show the actual work done by him; the amended time-tables to be filed and preserved for the information of the district inspector. I am informed that a somewhat similar practice prevails in New South Wales. The earnest, honest teacher would not be affected; whilst the mere "supervisor," or the would-be ubiquitous individual, would see the necessity of altering his plans; otherwise the district inspector would report that there was a general manager, and not a head teacher, in the school.

INSTRUCTION.

In a large proportion of the schools inspected, a steady and satisfactory improvement on the work of 1880 was observable. The highest percentage gained during the year was 98.594. In the school which gained it, 53 pupils were examined; every child could read, besides being able to write its name on a slate. It is in charge of a young trained teacher, assisted by an ex-pupil of the school, as workmistress. The very satisfactory condition of the school is not owing to any exceptionally favorable circumstances, for in 1879 the school was under a very negligent teacher; but simply to earnest, faithful work, intelligently directed, worthy of the highest mark of approval—a speedy promotion. Teachers who have failed to attain equal success must not imagine that they have greater difficulties to contend against; equal earnestness, hard work, and intelligence must produce similar results. I may add, as another good feature in this school, corporal punishment is unknown.

Here, I may be permitted to urge on the Department the advisability of securing the insertion in the proposed Factory Act, of clauses making it a heavy penal offence to employ, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the ordinary school days, at wages or gratuitously, any child under fourteen years of age, who has not passed the standard of education test. If it were known that a serious pecuniary penalty, besides the public disgrace of being summoned before a court of justice, followed the employment of uncertificated children, I am satisfied that the compulsory clauses of the Education Act would become very nearly a dead letter. No employer would run the risk of prosecution, while the most careless parents would see the necessity of their children attending school with fair regularity, in order to secure, at the earliest opportunity, the then indispensable certificate.

And that children may have no impediment thrown in their way, it should be an all-important matter that only efficient teachers be retained in the service of the Department. The case of an important country school in my district is illustrative. During the four preceding examinations prior to the appointment of the present teacher, not 2 per cent. of the average attendance secured standard of education certificates, but within two months of the change of teachers, 10 per cent. of the average attendance presented themselves for examination for certificates, and every one passed.

Where the teacher is inefficient as an instructor, or too indolent to do his duty, a speedy and effective remedy should be available; a transfer to a less desirable position is not always effective. Dismissal should stare every negligent and every incompetent teacher in the face. The interests of the school population should far outweigh those of persons who have mistaken their calling. "A thoroughly inefficient teacher had better be drafted out of the service before he is too old to employ his energies more usefully."—Pearson.

SCHOOL RECORDS.

No case of wilful falsification has come under my notice during the year. In one school, under the care of a negligent and otherwise unsatisfactory female teacher, I found that the class rolls had not been marked for more than a week, the excuse being "there was no ink." In another case, the teacher professing to be almost blind, delegated the roll-marking to his wife, who was also blind to the necessity of being accurate. These cases were fully reported to the Department.

GENERAL.

In conclusion, I wish to say emphatically, "that, on the whole, the country has reason to be satisfied with its teachers and proud of its schools, and I would bear willing testimony to the generally faithful and painstaking work of the teachers" under my supervision.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

WALTER M. GAMBLE.

The Secretary, Education Department, Victoria.

REPORT OF ALEXANDER STEWART, ESQUIRE, WARRNAMBOOL DISTRICT.

Sir, Warrnambool, 11th March 1882.

I have the honor to forward you my annual report for the Warrnambool district for the year 1881. There are 91 full-time and 10 half-time schools. Each of these I have visited twice, and several oftener. I am glad to say that on the 31st December all the work was brought up to date.

BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS.

Every year the school accommodation is gradually but surely improving, and the buildings are, for the most part, in good repair. In those localities, such as Yambuk and Elingamite, where there are buildings which, for lack of better, were gladly made use of, new buildings are being erected; while in others, such as Peterboro' and Prince Town, where the school population is very sparse and scattered, the residents, by persistent petitioning, which may in the future be crowned with success, show their appreciation of the boon enjoyed by their more highly favored fellow-colonists. To a tourist many of the school buildings do not present that appearance of comfort that is desirable, owing to the grounds being unfenced and unimproved. Very little planting has been done. This is a work that I should like to see Boards of Advice take a greater interest in, as, while affording them pleasure, the trees and shrubs would in a short time contribute materially to the comfort of the scholars. When the teachers are unmarried, the residences attached to the school buildings are for the most part untenanted, as they find it more convenient to reside at a neighboring hotel or private residence. Untenanted residences, and sometimes the school buildings in connection with them, are, speaking generally, not so well kept as the others, while these teachers think they suffer a hardship in having to pay rent for what they do not use.

FURNITURE AND APPARATUS.

The schools are provided with the necessary furniture, and in almost every case it is of a satisfactory character. It would be an improvement were all the smaller schools supplied with a ball-frame and every one with a timepiece. There is very seldom occasion to report that the furniture and apparatus are not taken proper care of. At Penshurst and Hawkesdale the teachers, at their private expense, have provided some additional apparatus of a useful description.

ORGANIZATION.

The school furniture is all arranged on a uniform system. In the smaller schools the scholars are divided into five classes, but in the larger ones a sixth class is added. The attainments of the scholars in each class purport to be equal to the requirements of the programme of instruction, but it occasionally happens that scholars are found in a class for the work of which they are really unfit. Sometimes this occurs in consequence of the attainments of scholars being over-estimated, but more frequently on account of the teacher promoting either exceptionally young or old children, to reduce the average age of the classes. This action is taken when the age of the children increases faster than their knowledge. When this practice plays any prominent part in the classification, disaster is surely and speedily the result. It cannot be impressed too strongly on those teachers who are anxious to secure good work and a high percentage that sound classification is one of the first requisites. Before promotion, scholars should pass a satisfactory examination in the subjects of the programme of the class in which they are. As a rule, the scholars are kept constantly employed. In a small school with five classes, a teacher, with but the assistance of monitors, and that of a workmistress in the afternoon, shows considerable tact and ability if he has all his scholars under satisfactory supervision, and his work so arranged that all are kept fully employed and receive the amount of actual instruction from their teacher to which they are entitled.

INSTRUCTION.

The methods employed and the quality of the instruction are much the same as those of last year. The work, as a rule, proceeds diligently and in accordance with the requirements of the programme, and for the most part suitable progress has been made. In a few instances the improvement is very marked, while the changes that have taken place in the personnel of the teaching staff will, I hope, prove beneficial. Reading is a subject which should have much individual practice, sample illustration, and intelligent, lucid explanation of the subject-matter. The following unique explanation that accompanied a reading lesson in a fifth class I had an opportunity of listening to some months ago:—Teacher (to class): "What is a météor?" No answer. Singling out one of the scholars, the teacher continued: "Pat, did you ever see a falling star?" "No, sir," he replied. Said the teacher: "Your motto is, I suppose, 'Early to bed and early to rise'—what's the rest?" "'Makes a man healthy, wealthy, and wise,'" Pat rejoined. "Next boy, read," said the teacher. There are many failures in this subject, the result oftentimes of the explanation being either verbose or obscure. In writing more care is shown, and in several schools the neatness of the written work at the result examinations makes its correction more a pleasure than anything else. Arithmetic.—Questions in notation and numeration too often prove fatal to fourth-class scholars, while those in the fifth class, and sometimes in the sixth, are frequently found not properly grounded in the four simple rules in decimals. The failures in arithmetic are to some extent attributable to neglecting to arrange the scholars at desks, so as to secure independent work. Whenever any serious weakness is found in grammar or geography, it is usually traceable to insufficient class teaching. The time set apart for these subjects is, in such cases, too often taken up with slate-work. Needlework is successfully taught. Extra subjects.—Drawing is not taught, but several schools have the advantage of instruction in singing. In State school 1743, Warrnambool, this subject is taught by one or other of the members of the staff. Regarding the other subjects under this head, there is nothing deserving special notice. Military drill.—I am well pleased with the precision and steadiness which the boys displayed in their evolutions at Warrnambool (1743), Penshurst and Belfast (1188), the only schools where the subject is taught.

RESULTS.

The following are the schools which obtained the highest percentages at the examination for results during the past year :—

Number of School.	Name of School.	Head Teacher.	Number present.	Percentage.	Date of Examination.
1926	Ballangeich South ...	E. P. Hood Hill ...	41	93.617	12.4.81
1860	Framlingham East ...	Jas. A. Muirhead ...	36	91.981	13.4.81
344	Kirkstall ...	John Reidy ...	212	90.875	8.8.81
114	Camperdown ...	John Hillard ...	371	89.351	31.5.81
1011	Yarpturk ...	Whitfield Raw ...	117	87.417	28.6.81
1411	Laang ...	R. A. Moore ...	61	87.407	4.10.81
1308	Warrior ...	Wm. Cruickshank ...	48	86.750	8.9.81
1545	Boothpool ...	Lydia Bennett ...	27	86.666	7.3.81
482	Ondit ...	Thos. Oates ...	83	86.138	7.9.81

DISCIPLINE.

I have seldom to report other than that the discipline is satisfactory, and, as a rule, it appears to be maintained without any difficulty or harshness. Most of the teachers keep corporal punishment as their last resource, and it is pleasing to state that there have been no complaints as to the violation of the provisions of the circulars on this question.

TEACHERS.

It is a matter for regret that so many pupil-teachers fail to obtain promotion at their annual examination. I do not think that the blame is entirely theirs. Ineffective or spasmodic teaching may be credited with a fair share of it. All the teachers are classified, save two, who have yet to pass in the art of teaching for a license to teach. I cannot help noting that while there are some teachers looking out so eagerly for promotion as not only to interest themselves in the failing health of a fellow-teacher, but also to apply for the position which the holder may live many years to enjoy, there are others who, perhaps more deserving, though not so clamorous, rise, it may be slowly, but none the less surely, by discharging satisfactorily the duties which lie to their hand. It appears hard when children have for any lengthened period to suffer from the incompetency of their teacher; but the removal of such an one to another school is very like the removal of a blister. As a rule, the teachers are discharging their duties faithfully and diligently.

RECORDS.

The records are correctly kept, with but one or two exceptions, when the ages were found incorrectly entered: I may also add that I have frequently to call attention to the infringement of the direction regarding the entering of the teachers' time of arrival and departure.

NIGHT SCHOOLS.

There are no night schools in operation.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

ALEXANDER STEWART,

Inspector of Schools.

The Secretary, Education Department.

REPORT OF ROSS COX, ESQUIRE.

SIR,

Castlemaine, 11th February 1882.

I have the honor to furnish my report for the year 1881.

During the year I examined every school in my district for results; but I regret to say that, in consequence of an illness that lasted for some weeks, I was prevented from visiting 33 schools a second time.

There are now 106 State day schools in the Castlemaine district, of which four are worked on half time; leaving 104 head teachers. No applications for new schools have been made during the year; but in two or three cases movements have been set on foot to have the sites of existing schools removed, in consequence of changes in the population: I have to report again on the question of amalgamating Yandoit 691 with Yandoit, Bald Hills, 2052. I would suggest that the question of closing Winter's Flat 652 and Sandy Creek 704 should also be taken into consideration. In both cases the children in attendance could, with little inconvenience, attend at neighboring schools.

BUILDINGS.

The schools, as a rule, are in good order, but fencing is still much needed in a number of cases. The want of ceiling is severely felt in many schools. I may specially mention Fryerstown 252, both heat of summer and cold of winter being freely admitted. And the tank accommodation, especially in the case of schools where quarters are provided, and the teacher has to pay rent to the Department, is insufficient. One teacher—an Irishman—said that if he could resist the payment of rent he would do so, but that the Department took away the opportunity of raising the "No rent" cry by deducting rent from salary.

FURNITURE AND APPARATUS.

There are few schools, if any, where the supply of desk and sitting accommodation is not sufficient. The apparatus, such as black-boards, maps, notation-frames, easels, &c., is ample; and I am pleased to record that there is not the same disposition shown to fly to the Department for every small repair that is needed for the furniture and apparatus. A majority of the teachers now get the children to procure their own reading books and copy books.

FREE COPY BOOKS.

Regarding copy books, the rule in a number of schools appears to be for the children from the 3rd class upwards (inclusive) to purchase their own books, which they can take home with them when finished, in order that their parents may judge of their progress. The head teachers, however, as a rule, keep a small supply of free books on hand for those who are unable to purchase them. In the 2nd class a much larger proportion of the children are given free books, which of course are retained in the school. It is quite exceptional to find parents objecting to furnish their children with copy books; and where all the pupils in a school use books belonging to the Department it may be fairly assumed that the teacher has neglected to exercise his proper influence.

TIME-TABLES.

Year by year the time-tables are of a more satisfactory character. In the majority of cases supervision is more carefully shown than it has been, and the head teacher devotes a fair proportion of his time to the junior classes. But there are still teachers who appear to be unable to see any reason why one time-table should not suit every school. One of these could not understand why I objected to a time-table which she worked her school by, because "she had copied it from one lent her by a trained teacher." She could not see that a time-table that would suit every school would be as great an impossibility as a railway time-table that would suit every line.

RESULTS.

The results show fairly as compared with those of the preceding year. I was able to compare the work done in 101 schools (or 103, counting those worked on half time) with that done in 1880. I find that 49 schools show an increased percentage, while 52 lost on the results of the previous year. But the average gain is, notwithstanding, slightly in excess of the loss. The following schools obtained 85 per cent. or over, viz. :—

School No.	Name of School.	No. present.	Teacher's Name.	Percentage obtained.
931	Leonard's Hill	39	Geo. Tilley	93·776
185	Eganstown... ..	115	Edwd. Shepherd	93·423
1609	Daylesford... ..	814	John Lamont	92·812
119	Castlemaine	392	Thos. W. Courtney	92·083
1538	Strangways	94	Chas. Harris	91·107
765	Telegraph Saw-mills	10	Alice N. Tetley	89·473
299	Harcourt	85	Alexr. McMacking	89·154
1985	Vaughan	133	John Smyth	86·757
220	Elphinstone	75	Jno. Thos. O'Connor	85·831
1139	East Campbelltown	45	Chas. H. Talbot	85·756
2051	North Castlemaine	446	Clement Etchells	85·674
378	South Kyneton	88	Wm. Attwood	85·308
1129	Campbelltown	51	Fredk. Palmer	85·082
2080	Musk Vale... ..	124	Evan Bond	85·051
1053	Joyce's Creek	46	Thos. R. Currie	85

Of these, four were below last year's percentage, while eleven were above it. Eleven schools obtained an increase of more than 10 per cent. on the results of the preceding year, and nine lost more than 10 per cent. There was only one school that obtained less than 50 per cent. in results, as against four in the year before. This school, however, though only obtaining 49·4 on the possible results, gained 12·8 per cent. more than in 1880.

PROGRESS.

For the purpose of forming an estimate of the progress made by individual children in the twelve months, I had entered in the inspector's register the class that each child presented last year was in in the year 1880, with the number of passes that he then obtained. Without counting schools examined for the first time in 1881, I examined 101 schools for results last year, in which there were 7,344 children in classes from I. over 7 to upper VI. The following statement will allow a comparison to be made of their passes at each examination :—

				Average Passes obtained in the years—
				1880.		1881.
Number of children presented in the same class as in 1880...	2,515	...	5·09	...	5·88
Number presented in a higher class	3,583	...	5·51	...	5·68
Number who were not present in 1880, and whose progress cannot be compared	1,246

This of course includes every class of school, both where the progress has been much above the average as well as where it has been much below it. In the schools where the progress might be counted as good, there was an average of about two children presented in a higher class to one presented a second time in the same class; and the children promoted obtained an average of about half a pass more in the higher than the lower class, while those examined a second time in the same class obtained from a pass and a half to two passes more than in the preceding year.

READING.

I have noticed a considerable improvement in reading. The faults of which I have complained—viz., the undue stress laid upon articles and prepositions, and the neglect of punctuation—have, in a large proportion of cases, been rectified, down even to the lowest classes. In a few schools, I regret to say, the reading is as careless as ever, the teachers declaring that it is impossible to cure the children of the faults I called their attention to.

WRITING.

Writing is well taught, and programme is observed; but, with a very few creditable exceptions, no attention is paid to the way the children sit at their desks or hold their pens. I must again suggest that these points should be taken into account when estimating the pass for writing at a result examination.

ARITHMETIC.

Arithmetic, according to the programme of the Department, is about the best taught subject in our schools. As a rule, the classes are kept to their programme work. The plan of using books in school, instead of slates, is becoming prevalent, by means of which the back work of the children can be shown. In many schools children never work during school hours in the programme of the class below, according to which they are examined for results, the practice for result work being reserved exclusively for home exercises.

MENTAL ARITHMETIC.

But outside the programme prescribed by the Department, I cannot say much for the teaching in this subject. In my report for the year before last I suggested that mental arithmetic should be included in the list of subjects in which children would be examined for results. With a view of ascertaining to what extent mental arithmetic is now taught in our State schools, I examined the four higher classes in 27 schools which I inspected during the year—the majority being among the best in the district—and the result shows how little attention is bestowed upon this subject. In class IV. (programme work: "To compound rules and reduction inclusive"), I gave two questions for the children to work mentally, allowing them one minute for each. The children stood before their slates, upon which they were only to write the answers to the questions I gave. My first question was, "Add together 45 and 55." Out of 514 children examined, only 197, or 38 per cent., answered this correctly in the given time. I then gave, "From 84 take 17," which was answered by 238, or 46 per cent. To class V. (programme work: "To simple proportion and practice inclusive, and the four simple rules in decimals"), numbering 444 children, I gave as my first question, "Add together 17s. 10d. and 15s. 9d." I allowed two minutes in each school for the children to work out the answer mentally, but there were only 103, or 23 per cent., who had it right. I then gave, "Take 11s. 7d. from 19s. 4d.," which 111, exactly 25 per cent., answered correctly in the given time. There were 185 children in class VI. (programme work: "Compound proportion, interest, vulgar and decimal fractions"), and to this class I gave three questions, allowing two minutes for each. To the first, "Multiply .05 by .25," I got 39 correct answers, or 21 per cent. of the number examined; to the second, "Multiply $\frac{3}{4}$ by $2\frac{1}{2}$," there were 60 answers, or 32 per cent.; and to the third, "Multiply £1 19s. 11d. by 11," there were 19 answers, or 10 per cent. There were only 36 children in the upper VI. (programme work same as VI.). They are examined for results in programme work, while the VI. are examined in V. class programme, and so on. I gave two questions, and allowed two and a half minutes for working each mentally. The first was, "If 5 lbs. of tea cost 12s. 6d., what will 16½ lbs. cost?" and this was only answered correctly by 8 pupils, or 22 per cent. My second question was, "If 3½ oz. cost £5 5s., what will 8½ oz. cost?" and this was only answered by 4, or 11 per cent. of those examined. If any attention had been bestowed on mental arithmetic, the children would have found no difficulty in answering these simple questions; but, as most of the teachers pointed out, Mental arithmetic is not a programme subject, and we do not teach it. The children who failed were able to work on slate or paper stiff questions of incomparably greater difficulty than those I gave, but they seemed to be unable to think unless they had a pen or pencil in their hands. Mental arithmetic is one of the subjects that teachers of every grade have to pass an examination in; but that they seldom apply the knowledge they have acquired may be seen by the result of my examination. I have no doubt that the same is true of other subjects.

NIGHT SCHOOLS.

In the whole of the Castlemaine district there was only one night school left in existence in 1881, through the action of the new rules, viz., North Castlemaine 2051, and the teacher thought it very doubtful whether he should keep it open for the present year. The teacher of that school is intelligent and energetic, and devotes himself honestly to his duties; but his opinion was that his work was thrown away, as, with hardly an exception, the lads who attended his classes did not value in the slightest the instruction they received, and did not attend with sufficient regularity to profit by it. This is the opinion of all teachers to whom I have spoken on the subject, and quite coincides with my own. I do not believe that one pupil in fifty profits to any extent by the instruction he receives; and I consider that, in the great majority of cases, night schools are positively injurious to the children who are allowed to attend them.

Your most obedient servant,

The Secretary, Education Department.

ROSS COX.

REPORT OF HENRY SHELTON, ESQUIRE, B.A., NORTH-WESTERN DISTRICT.

SIR,

Stawell, 18th May 1882.

I have the honor to submit my general report upon the North-Western district for the year 1881.

There are now in operation 148 schools, while applications for a number of others, chiefly in the north-western portion of the district, have been favorably reported on. The district is well supplied with school accommodation, the number of children beyond the reach of a State school being comparatively small; and I expect that within the next twelve months the wants of these will be met. During the year a school, among others, was opened at Lillimur, a town about eight miles from the western border of the colony, and an application for one at Leoor, a parish still nearer our South Australian neighbors, was favorably reported on. It will thus be seen that the advantages of the Act are not confined, as has often been remarked, to the older localities, but that the ramifications of the educational system are spreading to the remotest corners of the colony.

The district, during both half-years, was considerably in arrears, it being quite impossible to visit, with regularity, the large number of schools named. Moreover, I met with an accident in the first half-year which incapacitated me from duty for about a month. At the end of the year there were 32 schools left uninspected, and I see no reason to hope for much improvement in this respect during the current half-year, as the other members of the staff appear to have their hands full, and the work here is still increasing.

BUILDINGS.

There is not much to report under this head. The old portable buildings, in I think every case, require repainting, their present appearance being decidedly shabby. Where practicable, they should make way for those of the new style; they are totally unsuited for the climate of the Wimmera.

The remarks upon ventilation in my last report appear to have been not without effect, as during the year I had little fault to find in this matter. I observe that some of the new buildings are not supplied with ventilators in the ceiling. Fencing is not provided to any great extent, nor is it needed in most of the bush schools.

In many cases, however, where a valuable school property with quarters attached has been erected on a main road, it would be a wise economy to supply this want, especially as the residence is often unoccupied, and is thus without protection. Tree-planting has not been attempted, except in some of the large towns. The buildings have, on the whole, been well reported on in point of tidiness. Some teachers appear to think, however, that clean windows and well scrubbed floors are matters outside their province, and treat them accordingly.

APPARATUS, ETC.

Free stock is not largely used in the district, most of the teachers having succeeded in convincing parents of the advantages of purchasing books for their children. Providing free stock is, however, in some cases, the less of two evils, as, when children neglect to buy their own books, I often find that these are not provided at all; and when this occurs with such necessities as reading books and copy books, the inconvenience is serious.

ORGANIZATION.

In schools that have been in existence not less than a year or two I find this, on the whole, satisfactory; not so—and this is to be expected from the recruits usually appointed to small country schools—in those recently established. Classification especially has given me a good deal of trouble, few of the new teachers understanding, or indeed making the effort to understand, the principles on which it should be based. In some cases I have felt compelled, before examining, to reduce whole classes; this occurred generally in classes presented as 6th, but which I found had been taught really as 5th. As the fault of over-classification has been frequently pointed out both by myself and others, I intend to show less leniency in the matter during the present year. Apart from the consideration of the infringement of the regulations, I invariably find that when children have been classified fairly, or indeed somewhat low, the progress is more rapid and substantial.

In a former report I pointed out that most head teachers troubled themselves very little with the younger children, especially the infants. There is improvement observable, but things are not yet what they should be. No doubt teaching infants is somewhat irksome to most people, except those endowed with special ability for the work, but where the duty is undertaken, it is remunerative both to the children and the teacher; to the latter directly by way of the "results" secured, and indirectly by the training which the older children imperceptibly acquire for their work as monitors.

In the large town schools there is no difficulty in securing the services of candidates suitable for the position of pupil-teachers. In the country districts the pupil-teachers are decidedly inferior, both in the ability to teach and to acquire the necessary literary attainments. In view of the difficulty of getting young people to leave their homes in the towns and take these positions, this state of things must, I suppose, continue unremedied.

INSTRUCTION.

This continues in a sound state. Detailed reports have been submitted on each of the schools inspected, and the great bulk of them showed that the progress was at least satisfactory, while in a great many it was reported as good. In a small number of cases it was described as not satisfactory. The list of percentages over 90 is an unusually long one. The programme of instruction is, on the whole, well carried out. The most frequent cases of neglect are in respect of disciplinary exercises in the 1st class; grammar, geography, and class-drill in the 2nd; notation in the 3rd; decimals in the 5th; and analysis in the 6th. One case of evident cramming for results, to the neglect of the programme, was reported to the Department, in addition to a number of others of minor importance.

MILITARY DRILL.

This subject is very fairly taught in about half-a-dozen schools.

EXTRA SUBJECTS.

There is little improvement under this head. I remarked, in my report for 1876, that the value of these subjects, so far as they can be taught in State schools, is inconsiderable. A few smart boys may make good progress in them in the few schools in which these subjects are made a speciality, but so far as my experience goes, the majority of those taught receive very little benefit from the instruction. The attendance at school too is often discontinued before any sound knowledge of extras is acquired. The children, I think, would be better employed in increasing their knowledge of programme subjects. Those who desire instruction in higher branches can be better taught in private schools, of which there is no lack in the large towns. Those teachers employed in extra subjects can take little pleasure in teaching boys the mere rudiments of Latin and mathematics, and it would be to the advantage of the school generally if their energies were reserved for the ordinary work. Such teachers cannot bring to the work the freshness of mind necessary to efficient teaching, this extra work being usually undertaken after the ordinary school hours.

DISCIPLINE.

This continues good, so far as an inspector can judge of discipline. I am inclined to think, however, that teachers sometimes get a better report for discipline than the normal state of their school warrants, the mere presence of a stranger having somewhat of a restraining influence upon children. I frequently observe at result examinations that, though the general behaviour of the children is good, there is a good deal of inattention to the few simple directions given as to the work to be done. This seems to indicate a weak spot in the discipline. A well-disciplined school gives an inspector no trouble at the routine work of the examinations. Class-drill, though taught in nearly all the schools, is often so imperfectly known, that it is difficult for any one but the teacher himself to move the classes from the desks to the floor, or vice versa.

RECORDS.

The records generally are well kept. The time-sheet, however, reveals the fact that schools are often closed before the time set down in the time-table, to suit the personal convenience of the teachers, undue advantage thus being taken of the circular making provision for early closing on wet or exceptionally hot days. Since my last report one gross case of falsification of rolls has been reported.

TEACHERS.

The policy of the Department in sending female teachers to the remote country districts has been adversely criticised in some quarters, but I cannot report that any evil consequences have followed from it, and the number of such teachers in this district is very considerable. All, or nearly all, the female teachers naturally prefer assistantships in the towns with the comforts of a home to the responsibility that attends the charge of a small country school and the inconveniences, indeed often the hardships, of a country life; but it is manifestly impossible to furnish all of them with such appointments. It would save them a good deal of disappointment if the gentler sex bore this in mind before embarking in the profession of teaching. Steady work is being done by the female teachers appointed to many of the country schools, but it is hardly equal, in point of quality, to that done by the other sex. The result, however, is not, I think, due to the mere difference of sex, but to the fact that a good many of the female teachers have not been trained either in the institution or as pupil-teachers, while the males have been more fortunate in this respect. On the other hand, I find the females more regular and punctual in their work. In the country places they have no temptation to absent themselves from duty. In the case of males, visits are sometimes paid to neighboring towns, and the results are not always conducive to regularity or punctuality.

Two cases of misconduct came under the notice of the Department during the year, and were duly punished; and, judging from complaints made, these are not the only cases. This would seem to point to the necessity of providing, as Mr. Philp suggests, some more efficient local check upon teachers than exists at present. The personal supervision exercised by inspectors is, owing to the size of their districts, necessarily inadequate and imperfect.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

The Secretary, Education Department.

H. SHELTON.

REPORT OF SAMUEL SUMMONS, ESQUIRE, M.A., LL.B., BALLARAT No. 2 DISTRICT.

SIR,

Ballarat, April 1882.

I have the honor to submit my general report on the Ballarat No. 2 district for the past year.

The boundaries of this district remained the same as they were in 1880, except that Korweinguboorra 2016 was transferred from the Castlemaine district. During the year Spring Hill 573 was closed, not being required, as the children were able to attend existing schools; and a new school was opened in rented buildings at the recently formed mining township of Allandale.

The district comprised ninety day and only two night schools; this small number being the result of the regulation raising the minimum average on which payment could be made to thirty. In addition there were in operation fifteen Roman Catholic schools. All the State schools were inspected and examined during the year, except Langdon's Hill 961 and Mount Pleasant 1436. The examination of both these schools was postponed to the ensuing half-year.

Since last report substantial buildings have been erected at Kingston, Cabbage-tree (near Creswick), and Glendaruel. New buildings are in course of erection to provide accommodation for Clunes 136, Gordon 755, and Langdon's Hill 961; and additions are to be made to Blakeville 1247 and Smeaton 552. In regard to Glendaruel 281, I regret to state that the average attendance has fallen considerably since the erection of the new building, owing to a number of the inhabitants leaving the locality.

The district, when the new buildings are ready for occupation, will be well supplied with schools. Bolwarra and Smeaton have each two schools barely over a mile apart, and Allandale 2420 is about a mile distant from Broomfield 1719. Ballarat East has nine schools, while Ballarat West, with a much larger population, has only six.

Two applications for schools at Allandale and Opossum Gully (near Amherst) were dealt with, also one for the removal of Graham's Hill 925 to a site nearer Creswick. The average at this school is mainly kept up by the attendance of children who should go to Creswick 122.

Very little in the way of improving the school grounds has been done. The school sites at Amherst 1459 and Ullina 763 were planted during the year. Fencing is required for North Creswick 2041 and Broomfield 1719, to prevent outsiders trespassing on the school premises. In some few cases I was compelled to report a want of sufficient supervision of the out-offices.

The district contains two associated training schools, Ballarat 34 and Clunes 1552. In my opinion none but specially qualified teachers should be appointed assistants in these schools. Another matter deserving the consideration of the Department is whether two training schools are required in Ballarat.

I cannot add much to my previous report on the organization of the schools. In the majority the teaching staff was well distributed; the supervision and control of the classes effective, and the employment of the children constant. In some the employment was not sufficiently active, little effort being made to arouse the inattentive and dull. The classification was generally reported on as approved. The time-tables in use, as a rule, make suitable provision for the subjects of instruction. The order of lessons in many instances can be improved so that the work may be more varied. In very few schools is provision made for systematic instruction in mental arithmetic.

The reports on the instruction observed have, for the most part, been favorable. The following defects, however, have been noted—"confounding telling with teaching," being content with imperfect answers to questions, and not keeping simultaneous answering within narrow limits. I have also observed that the form of the questions set and the mode of giving them, especially in arithmetic, were unduly influenced by the result examinations. I have repeatedly pointed out that suitable devices should be adopted to secure the active attention of the children; and to prevent mechanical work. Some improvement was shown in the writing, yet I cannot say that I was satisfied with the work done. In addition to presenting carefully kept copy-books, fully written up for inspection, this subject should be tested in all the classes on the day of examination in the presence of the inspector. In the reading lessons observed very little use was made of the numerous illustrations in the Royal Readers.

The instruction, as tested by the result examinations, continues to make steady progress. No less than twenty schools obtained over 90 per cent. The following schools gained the highest percentages:—

Roll No.	Name of School.	Head Teacher.	No. present.	Percentage.
925	Graham's Hill ...	J. M. Thomsett ...	46	96·763
987	Happy Valley ...	R. Lewis ...	46	96·590
1101	Mount Cameron ...	Annie Ferris ...	26	94·630
1412	Dunach ...	J. Brewer ...	99	94·252
840	Moorabool Sawmills ...	W. H. W. Rail ...	88	94·095

It is generally admitted that the course of free instruction requires revision in respect to the subjects taught, the order in which, and the time when, the subjects themselves should be taken. This is a matter of urgent importance, for in this way only can some of the defects in the instruction be removed.

The discipline was generally good, especially in the country schools; order, as a rule, being well maintained. Class movements might be smarter and steadier. I regret, however, to state that home influence was not always on the side of the teacher.

The Secretary,
Education Department, Melbourne.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
SAMUEL SUMMONS.

REPORT OF RICHARD PHILP, ESQUIRE, M.A., LL.D., MARYBOROUGH DISTRICT.

SIR,

Maryborough, 17th March 1882.

I have the honor to forward my general report on this district for the past year.

During that period 117 schools were examined, and more than eighty visits of inspection were also made. The list for examination was very nearly finished, only three schools being left unexamined, and these it was thought better to leave till the next half-year. The list for inspection under the visiting form has not been completed; and so long as so many schools are kept on the list, either it or the examination list must remain unfinished at the end of the year. The fact is, the district is too large, and there are more schools in it than any one inspector can properly attend to. Every half-year the number is increasing. There are now 123 schools open at work; many of them too are of a considerable size. At the examinations held last year, there were present—at the Maryborough school, 533 children; at St. Arnaud, 487; at Timor, 363; at Avoca, 293; at Inglewood, 274; at Inkerman, 251; at Dunolly, 217; at Tarnagulla, 214; and at seven or eight more, there were between 200 and 150 children present. The inspection of each of these schools occupies two or three or even four days; and when they are finished, there remain more than 100 yet to be done. With only five school days in the week, and with that number considerably reduced by the holidays, it is evident that the lists for inspection for the half-year cannot possibly be overtaken in the allotted time. Some schools must necessarily be left uninspected for more than six months, and during the long intervals between the inspector's visits they are left entirely to themselves.

Although all the schools have not been inspected twice during the past year, I think the district may be said to be in a satisfactory state. A high percentage is not necessarily a criterion of a well-taught school. Certainly no well-taught school can fail to obtain a high percentage, but it may be got by a school in which the teaching is not of a high character. It indicates not so much the character of the teaching as the amount of work which is done, and the trouble that is taken with each pupil. Evidence of these things, however, speaks highly for a teacher, and he deserves all credit for them.

The percentage obtained by each school is published by the Department in its annual report, and I shall here only point out the general result of the examinations.

It appears that, of the 117 schools examined during the year, 72 got 75 per cent. and upwards. Of these 72 schools, 18 got over 90 per cent., the highest getting 97·867, and some 40 more got between 80 and 90 per cent. I think these figures show that good work is being done in this district. It is worthy of notice too that many of the high percentages are obtained by the small schools, each with only one teacher, some 30 of them getting between 80 and 90 per cent.; most creditable results to them, for it is an exceedingly difficult thing to organize and teach a small school.

In connection with the general state of the district, I may also mention that, though inquiries into the management of some schools have been held, I have not had to hold a single inquiry into charges of personal misconduct against teachers during the whole past year.

The instruction given in the schools is made to suit the requirements of the Department, and, for that purpose, does its work well. I have, however, always been of opinion that more could be made out of it than there is at present. The senior classes especially are quite able to do higher and wider work, and I believe the teachers would rather have it, if any encouragement were given.

But even in the present course, as it now exists, there is one subject which is not taught as it should be. The reading in the schools is poor; good reading is seldom or never met with; hurried, indistinct articulation, and a want of intelligent expression, is the general thing. As might be expected with such reading, the meaning of the books is not understood. The subject is too serious a one to be left in its present state. As I suggested in my last report, a great deal of time is unnecessarily taken up in the junior classes with grammar and geography. If these subjects were left out of the programme of these classes altogether, more time would be available for the reading; the learning of the words and the mechanical difficulties could be more quickly accomplished, and by the time the senior classes were reached, the children would be better able to undertake the higher parts of reading, and make some more intelligent use of it.

Rhymes also are generally imperfectly taught. Teachers seem to forget that the instinctive tendency to speak in children requires to be cultivated, and that there is no better opportunity for training them in the use of the organs of speech than when they are learning their rhymes. I have always encouraged the committing to memory good pieces of poetry, even by the youngest children. The labor of impressing them on the mind is no greater than what is required to learn the silliest jingle, and they carry with them the advantage that the thoughts will be worth having when the children are old enough to understand them. It is no objection to a poem that it is above the comprehension of the children. What attracts them are not the ideas, but the musical rhythm and cadence of the words, and so long as these are there the impression will be made, though the subject may not be understood at the time.

I would desire to call attention to the great want there is for a complete practicable list of the tables of weights and measures. At present my examinations are a good deal inconvenienced by the want of it. If I venture to go beyond the ordinary tables, to such a one as grain measure, for instance—I am at once met with the objection that it is not in the list issued by the Department. The printing a list of tables suite to the colony would cost very little, and its issue to the schools would be of great advantage to them.

The discipline of the schools is good; all of them are well drilled, and in many of them too there is a good wholesome tone, which is very creditable to the teachers.

Intentional rudeness I have never received in any school. One does occasionally meet with boorish manners, but they have only to be noticed and remarked upon to be mended.

The discipline to which the children of the State schools are subjected cannot but have the best effect upon them. It is no small thing for them to be brought up in habits of order and cleanliness, of obedience and industry. Such training is moral training, and of a good kind too. I am aware that it is not all that parents desire for their children. Something more is wanted. Here in Maryborough and the neighboring township of Alma, for the past fifteen months, classes for the religious instruction of children attending the State schools have been carried on. They are conducted by the incumbent of the English church here and his assistants. They are held once a week, and, to avoid interfering with the State-school work, meet at the early hour of a quarter to nine in the morning, and are dismissed in time to let the children reach the State school before roll-call. Notwithstanding the inconvenient hour, the attendance at these classes since their commencement has been large and regular. The morning I visited the class here there were about 150 children present, of the ages from the third to the sixth class. I believe the attendance is often much greater. At the Alma it is usually between 40 and 50.

The fact that these classes have existed so long, and have been so well and so regularly attended, shows that a large number of the parents do not object to their children receiving religious instruction, and gladly avail themselves of it when they have the opportunity.

Even though it were possible to make such a change, it would be a most ill-advised and impolitic thing to throw upon the State-school teachers the duty of giving religious instruction; but there is no reason why other people who are able and willing to do the work should have so many difficulties thrown in their way.

Singing and drawing are taught by masters specially fitted for the duties, who visit the schools during school hours, and for whose convenience special arrangements of the school work are made.

It would not affect the present system of education, and would probably meet a want which does exist, if the instructor in religion were allowed to visit the schools in the same way.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

The Secretary, Education Department, Melbourne.

REPORT OF ALEXANDER T. LEWIS, ESQUIRE, LL.B., NORTH-EASTERN DISTRICT.

SIR,

I have the honor to submit the following report on the North-Eastern district for the year 1881. The work of the year was divided as follows:—

Time occupied in—Travelling 4,423 miles	...	...	...	655 hours
Inspecting and examining schools	...	...	...	639 "
Reporting on schools	...	...	...	69 "
Investigating applications for new schools and holding special enquiries	...	...	...	111 "
Reporting on enquiries	...	...	...	53 "
Examination of teachers and pupil-teachers	...	...	...	223 "
Correspondence, interviews with members of Board of Advice, parents and teachers	...	...	...	150 "
Total	...	...	...	1,900 hours.

The geographical limits of the district remain unaltered, but during the year new schools have been opened at Tallangatta Creek, Towong, Eskdale, Tallandoon, Byawatha, North Wangaratta, and Carlyle. The applications at Silver Creek, Kergunyah South (half time), and Whorouly East, have been recommended and the necessary steps taken to establish schools at these places.

BUILDINGS.

The schools in operation for the most part provide ample accommodation for the number of children in attendance; a few cases of overcrowding occur, generally to the disadvantage of some neighboring school.

The window accommodation in some class-rooms and infant-rooms appears to me to be insufficient. A good supply of light is a matter of grave moment. To neglect in this respect has been partly attributed the weakness of sight so common amongst German children.

The white ants have done serious injury to the schools in the northern part of the district. It is a rare thing to find a wooden school which has escaped the ravages of these insects. Murray pine is, I believe, the only wood they will not touch; and, as this excellent building timber can be obtained at a cost not much greater than that of the material now used and so freely devoured by the ants, its more general adoption should receive early consideration.

The indiscriminate erection of teachers' quarters in connection with the small schools is of questionable utility. In the majority of schools, with an attendance under 30, the teacher is unmarried, and the quarters are unoccupied, as the unmarried teacher usually prefers to obtain board and lodging in the neighborhood of the school.

The Department furnishes an ample supply of furniture and apparatus. The teachers generally take great care of the property entrusted to them, but the maps frequently receive more than ordinary wear and tear. It is not an uncommon thing to find maps thrown across an easel or a blackboard, and when used in this manner they are soon broken. In some schools an open map is hung over the fireplace, and the heat of the fire during one winter in a country school, when firewood is plentiful, is generally sufficient to discolor and perhaps destroy the map.

ORGANIZATION.

The organization of the schools is steadily improving. The time-tables are judiciously arranged and are rarely departed from. Inadequate supervision is found in many schools. The head teachers confine their attention to the upper classes, and do not bestow sufficient personal attention on the infants and lower classes.

INSTRUCTION.

In most of the schools in this district the subjects of the free course are taught with a considerable amount of success, judging by the test of the "result examination."

The general subjects of failure at examination are comprehension, grammar, and arithmetic. Comprehension and grammar are allied subjects, and failure in the one is a natural consequent of failure in the other, for "unless the children understand the meaning of the words in any passage, they cannot tell their parts of speech, for the one is based upon the other." It is suggested that in the arrangement of time-tables grammar should follow a reading lesson when practicable.

The explanation of the reading lesson is in many cases not general throughout the school, but is confined to those classes which will be examined in comprehension at the result examination.

The methods of teaching adopted are generally satisfactory, but of course there is room for improvement.

The Geography Lesson too often becomes a bald repetition of a string of names without any local application in the minds of the scholars. More attention to map-drawing, and the use of skeleton maps when giving a lesson, is urged upon teachers. The plan adopted in the Rutherglen school (Mr. Camm), of drawing a map in chalk upon the floor is worthy of imitation. It disabuses young children's minds of the notion that the north is up in the air and the south under their feet.

In Reading Lessons teachers in many cases give an excellent model to their classes, but do not exercise sufficient care in obtaining a reasonable imitation of this model. Another matter requires particular attention. Teachers will not make the children speak out. This fault is easily cured. Teachers have again and again been urged to insist upon their children speaking out, low and distinctly. The habit of speaking in a low mumbling tone of voice once engendered can with difficulty be got rid of; but a loud tone of voice can be more easily modulated. The necessity for exercising the lungs to their full extent is desirable from a sanitary point of view. It also claims attention from another aspect. In a community like ours, where one may be called upon at any time to speak before his fellow-men, it is an immense advantage for a young man to have early become accustomed to the sound of his own voice. In the schools of the United States, this matter is considered of paramount importance, and is a great factor in the formation of a nation of ready public speakers.

Writing.—It is a difficult matter to get teachers to make this a thorough class lesson. In too many cases this is looked upon as idle time for the teacher, who walks about the class with his hands in his pockets, satisfied that for half-an-hour at least he can cease from the labor of teaching. Some teachers again who do display activity in teaching this subject confuse examining and teaching. They do nothing more than "go round the class behind the backs of the scholars, and find fault with each individual scholar's work in turn, never showing them how to do better, still less, making the errors and the mode of correcting them, a matter of class instruction." Teachers should remember "to teach every boy to write as well as to examine how he does write."

The percentage of passes at the result examination shows a steady increase. The average percentage of all the schools in the district was 75.

The following schools gained upwards of 85 per cent.

Roll No.	Name of School.	Head Teacher.	Percentage gained.
550	Stanley	Hector M. Mathison	97.860
1883	Bethanga	James Lewis	93.955
1159	Gundowring	William Brown	93.295

TEACHERS.

About one-half of the head teachers in this district have certificates of competency. Two are classified in honors, and several have gone through a course of training. It is gratifying to be able to report that those teachers who are licensed only are striving earnestly to obtain the higher qualification. The annual examination of teachers is always well attended, and as the bulk of the country candidates are unable to get any assistance in their studies, but have to grope their way in the dark, their efforts at self-improvement are all the more creditable to them.

The teachers, on the whole, are doing their work faithfully and honestly; and, as far as my limited experience goes, I feel satisfied they will compare favourably, ceteris paribus, with those of any other district in the colony.

I am, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

The Secretary, Education Department,
Melbourne.

ALEX. T. LEWIS.

REPORT OF J. DENNANT, ESQUIRE, SOUTH-WESTERN DISTRICT.

Sir,

Hamilton, 13th April 1882.

I have the honor to forward my general report for the year 1881.

The boundaries of this district have not been altered since my last report, but several new schools have been added, viz.:—Mount Clay, 2,384; Gorac, 1,324; Lower Crawford, 2,406; Ardno, 2,397; Strathdownie East and Killara, 2,378; Merino Downs, 2,112; Gymbowen, 2,356; Duchembegarra, 2,317. The actual number of schools under my charge remains, however, about the same, as many of the new ones are worked on the half-time principle with previously existing schools. Of the 102 now on my list, 10 are double schools, the teachers of which divide their time between two branches a few miles apart, visiting each on alternate days. In this sparsely populated district, this method of working is a necessity, as in many places where an average attendance of only nine or ten is found, the children would not be able to obtain a teacher, but that at some place, six or seven miles away, another knot of children can be gathered together, and two schools can thus be formed into one, with a respectable average attendance.

After two or three years' experience of the half-time schools in this district, I am bound to confess that they have done better work than I at first anticipated, and, when taught by energetic, earnest young men, most satisfactory results have been obtained; in one or two instances fairly surpassing neighboring full-time schools. In cases where special excellence has been observed, the teacher has utilized the off-days by giving abundant home lessons and exercises, to compensate in some measure for the lessened number of school hours. In full-time schools the home work is, I think, often excessive, but in half-time schools a fair amount may be advantageously set, care of course being taken that it is well tested and corrected.

During the year, seventeen applications for new schools have been made, but in five cases only have I been able to recommend that the request of the petitioners be granted; in the others, the number of children has been altogether inadequate. All the schools on my list have been inspected twice, with the exception of five, which I had not time to visit more than once.

The buildings are almost without exception in good repair, and as a rule are kept clean and tidy; wherever I have found any remissness in this respect, I have invariably drawn particular attention to it in my reports. There can be no doubt that it is a matter of the highest importance that the schoolroom should be for the pupils an example of scrupulous cleanliness and orderly arrangements; the best instruction cannot make up for the injury done to children's minds by the continual sight of an ill-kept untidy schoolroom.

Time-tables are generally fairly drawn up. In one point, however, an error is made in almost every school, viz., in the undue length of the rhymes lesson for infants. This is generally half-an-hour long, both for morning and afternoon, while fifteen, or at most twenty, minutes would be quite sufficient, and render the lesson what it was intended to be, a relief to these young children from more irksome studies. If two quarter-hour lessons are not sufficient, then let there be three, or even four, though I would prefer that, where possible, singing should take the place of some of the rhymes lessons. The objection is made,

I know, that it is awkward to work in quarter-hour lessons for infants, when all the exercises of the other classes occupy half-an-hour, but these little ones could with great advantage run out to play for the balance of the time, and the inconvenience is at once disposed of. It is, I believe, positively wrong to keep children under six years of age inside the schoolroom for the whole time of the school meeting. Infants under this age do not require more than four hours' instruction per day, and some of the time they now spend in dummy lessons, such as writing figures, copying letters, &c., would be more wisely given to play.

An improvement might be made in small schools in the arrangements for hearing home lessons. In large schools, with a teacher to each class, these very properly get a special half hour, but in schools conducted by only one teacher, this is not a good plan. I generally find them, however, taken for all classes, from the 2nd to the 6th, at one time, and as this is work which can rarely be done by monitors, the attempt of the teacher to hear all the lessons of his school in half-an-hour is necessarily a failure. Each class, while waiting for its share of the teacher's attention does nothing in particular, and the discipline of the school during that time is at its worst. I would suggest that they should be taken with the lessons to which they respectively belong, grammar during the ordinary grammar lesson, geography at geography time, &c. The half hour devoted to home lessons on the present system I consider wasted.

The use of monitors is general, but they are not always selected with full discrimination—in many cases children not much more advanced than those whom they teach being employed, while monitors should of course be invariably taken from the upper classes. In small schools in the bush it is no uncommon thing to find girls of from fifteen to seventeen years of age in the 6th and upper 6th classes, and too often these get the attention which the junior scholars stand in need of. It should be an understood thing, that these young people, if admitted to school after their education has been so far advanced, should act as monitors for at least half the day, and that almost all their oral instruction should be received before or after school hours. As country schools enter at 10 and dismiss at 3 or 3.30, this would be no hardship, either to them or to the teachers, but rather a mutual advantage. The efficiency of one school in my district was diminished by at least 10 per cent., through the presence of an upper 6th class girl, whose services in teaching were not made available.

A considerable increase has taken place in the percentages gained this year, and the schools may be regarded as in a corresponding degree more efficient. The average percentage for 1880 was 69.9, while for 1881 it is 74.6. This satisfactory result is no doubt due, in some measure, to an improvement in the class of teachers now sent to fill vacancies as they occur. In nearly every instance these are young people who are either ex-pupil-teachers, or have had the advantage of a course of training.

The teaching, however, though more accurate, is not yet sufficiently intelligent. The questions in comprehension of the reading lessons in the 5th and 6th classes are very poorly answered in most schools. In the lines from Byron—

"Nor doth remain,
A shadow of man's ravage, save his own,
When for a moment, like a drop of rain,
He sinks into thy depths with bubbling groan,
Without a grave, unknell'd, uncoffin'd, and unknown," scarcely a child in any of the schools lately examined had the least idea of what was referred to, and these children averaged fourteen years of age, and must have read the lines in their school books over and over again. It is in vain to expect scholars to have any taste for reading when they leave school, if they are not accustomed to realize fully the meaning of what they read. An American writer justly remarks, "Reading must be taught as a means of obtaining knowledge rather than of communicating it." The poetical extracts in the reading books contain a great many allusions which the teacher ought very carefully to explain to his pupils, as a means of developing their minds, and of enabling them to appreciate the beautiful ideas presented to them.

In examining classes I have sometimes been asked to set a question, say in geography, in another and special form, as, according to the teacher, the children are used to it, and he is apparently surprised to hear that this is the very thing to be avoided, if the intelligence of the pupils is to be tested. When the thing is really known and understood, the answer can be obtained by a question put in one form as well as in another, so long as it is framed in simple language.

More improvement has taken place in the teaching of arithmetic than in any other subject, and the standard might perhaps be slightly raised; in fact, in many schools rules are taught in advance of the programme requirements.

In grammar, on the other hand, the teaching is often below what is demanded, especially as regards the inflections specified for the 4th and 5th classes. It is a rare thing to find a 5th class scholar able to conjugate an English verb correctly. This can only arise from neglect, as the learning of verbs is only mechanical, and in a slightly inflected language like the English, there is no excuse for not teaching the little there is to be known. In both grammar and geography the programme is often taught in a slipshod way, leaving the real work to be done in the succeeding class; in other subjects this fault is seldom found.

The dictation lesson often fails from incomplete correction of errors. The usual plan is, after the prescribed portion is read out, to get the slates or books changed, and the teacher spelling, to have the errors marked by the scholars, each one thus examining his neighbor's work. This is, I believe a wrong principle. While young pupils may perhaps read their own writing, they are often quite at a loss to make out another's, and errors pass unnoticed. Moreover, the changing of slates implies a suspicion of the children's honesty, and converts every one in the class into a spy upon his neighbor. In any school where a healthy moral feeling exists, the children will mark their own errors readily enough. It is needless to add, that it should not be considered a misdemeanour for a child to make a mistake; he only does it through ignorance, which it is the teacher's business to remove, not punish. By the method proposed, there is a positive gain of time, which is not its least recommendation. If teachers will give it a fair trial, they will not be likely to revert to the old plan, time-honored though it be.

Too few of our pupils are practised in original composition, including letter writing. It is certainly not mentioned by name on the programme, but should nevertheless find a place in every time-table. It is at once an excellent exercise in writing, spelling, and grammar, particularly the last. It is not necessary to have such exercises very often, once a week being sufficient, but the utmost care should be taken to correct all errors, and to guard against their repetition afterwards. The ability to write a good letter is perhaps more than anything else the world's test of a fair education.

Teachers frequently neglect to suspend the school maps from the walls, and thereby lose a means by which their pupils might get incidental lessons in geography, for maps are like pictures, which, when continually seen, have their outlines firmly imprinted on the memory; in a few instances the outrage is committed of allowing maps and diagrams to hang at other than right angles.

Almost the only science studied in this district is physiology, for the simple reason that for chemistry, physics, electricity, no apparatus can be procured; and for geology no illustrative specimens. In towns an ingenious man may perhaps manage to construct rough apparatus for himself, but in the bush no materials are obtainable, and the difficulties are almost insurmountable. In one case certainly I met an enthusiast who had made a galvanic battery, with a copper preserving pan and some spouting zinc, using milliner's wire for the connections; but the result could not have been very encouraging. Geology needs to be studied practically to be of any use whatever; but not only are specimens wanting, but a geological map of the colony is not procurable, except at a very high price. The benefits to be expected from scientific subjects being treated practically are so great, that some effort is advisable to foster the taste of our teachers and pupils, and nothing is so likely to do this as an easily and cheaply obtained supply of apparatus, &c. From conversations I have had with teachers, I am firmly convinced that the demand for such things exists, and it is remarkable that private enterprise has hitherto made no attempt to meet it.

In only two schools have I heard scientific lessons of any kind given, probably because teachers have not yet the necessary knowledge themselves; but before long such teaching will, it is to be hoped, become general. A great deal might be done by means of object lessons, which for some reason have fallen into disuse lately, rarely being heard except when a teacher has to gain his certificate, or a pupil-teacher to pass for the first class. If they were more frequently used, children would understand better the books they read and the objects they see around them. They should not of course be given at random, upon any subject which may present itself at the moment, but should be systematic, a plan being prepared beforehand for a complete course in any one branch of study.

The discipline of the schools continues satisfactory, and good manners amongst the children are the rule. The records are almost invariably correctly kept, any error noticed arising from inadvertence and not intention.

Frequent complaints are made to me, that children either leave school altogether, or become very irregular directly the "certificate" is gained. This document has no doubt a misleading, if not a romantic superscription. I am inclined to agree with those who think it should not be granted, unless specially applied for, and never under twelve years of age. If gained before this, as it often is, the child's knowledge is not well grounded, and if taken from school at once, he will probably remember very little by the time he is fourteen or fifteen; while, if he remains at school, it is certainly not necessary to him.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

The Secretary, Department of Education,
Melbourne.

REPORT OF R. F. RUSSELL, ESQUIRE, B.A., SANDHURST DISTRICT.

McLaren street, Sandhurst, 14th February 1882.

INSPECTION.

SIR,

I have the honor to forward my general report for the year 1881 on the Sandhurst West district.

I was engaged from the 4th to the 31st of January assisting the Board of Examiners, and on the 1st February I returned to my district.

District.—The district is the same as was under my supervision last year. The number of schools at the beginning of the year was 108. Of these, one has been closed, and another has been placed under the supervision of another inspector. During the year, one new school, Hawkinson, 2431, has been opened.

Summary of Work done.—Of the whole number of schools, 79 received two visits; 29 one visit, while Hawkinson was not visited at all. In addition to the regular visits for inspection and examination, many incidental visits were paid, where necessary. One hundred schools were examined for results, the following eight not having been examined:—Tragowel Plains, 2227; Kerang, 1410; Macorna North and Gunbower South, 2339; Pine Grove East, 2335; Pannoomilloo, 1809; Warragamba, 2304; May Reef, 2379; and Hawkinson, 2431.

I was engaged in June in conducting the examination of trainees in school No. 1609, Daylesford.

Applications for the establishment of State schools from inhabitants at Capel's Crossing, Cohuna Township, Benjerrop East, and Lake Boga, all in the Kerang neighborhood, and at Pompapiel North, near Raywood, have been enquired into, and reports on the cases sent to the office. An important application from the Borough of Eaglehawk, for additional school accommodation there, was investigated and reported on. A site for future use has been reserved at Eaglehawk West, and tenders have been called for a new school building on Belltopper Hill.

The sites on which schools No. 1389, Wellsford, and No. 1291, Tandarra Plains, are situated, not being sufficiently central for the present population, the removal of the schools to more central sites has been recommended.

I have still on hand a petition from Salisbury West, requesting the removal of school No. 1773 to a more central site.

Further reports as to the sites for Meran and Lake Elizabeth have been sent in, as requested.

The following reports were forwarded to the office during the year:—100 Forms G, 114 Forms H, 86 Forms H2, and 98 Forms K.

The number of children examined for results was 9,307, of whom 5,585 were examined in the first half-year, and 3,722 in the second.

I issued 568 standard certificates.

In the official discharge of my duties I travelled 3,858 miles. The following is a record of how my time was spent :—

	Hours.
(1.) Travelling	674.7
(2.) Inspecting and examining schools	776.5
(3.) Writing reports	120.0
(4.) Enquiring into and reporting on special references	63.3
(5.) Examinations, not included under (2)	277.8
(6.) General correspondence, &c.	130.7
Total	2,043.0

RESULTS.

I have to report a decided improvement on the work of the previous year in the percentages obtained by the schools in the district. Certainly, in a few cases the results do not come up to those of last year, but in most cases where decreases are manifest I was satisfied that honest work had been done, and that the deductions in the results were not owing to circumstances under the teachers' control. No less than 33 schools obtained more than 80 per cent. of the marks obtainable, as against 17 schools last year. The average percentage of the district for the year was 72.992. The following schools obtained over 85 per cent. of marks :—

Roll No.	Name of School.	Head Teacher.	No. Present.	Average Attendance.	Percentage.
1564	Millewa	John Clinch	29	29	99.360
1726	Kamarooka Road	B. H. Fernald	39	32	92.148
1650	Elmore South	A. J. Bowden	49	38	91.891

* Temporary teacher.

The following schools obtained more than 80 per cent., and thus did creditably :—Miller's Flat, Mr. Moran; Milloo, Mr. Fleming; Ironbark, Mr. Rae; Pannooabamawm, Mr. James Shugg; Salisbury West, Mr. Allison; Bear's Lagoon, Mr. Collins; Specimen Hill, Mr. Carter; Calivil South, Mrs. Slattery; Bridgewater North, Mr. Broad; Upper Emu Creek, Mr. Beetson; Torrumbarry Central, Mr. Warden; Kamarooka West, Mr. Tynan; California Gully, Mr. Roper; Mincha East, Miss Moynihan; Mincha West, Mr. Thorpe; Mandurang South, Mr. Sumner; and Kerang South, Miss Phillips.

BUILDINGS.

The district is very well furnished with buildings, Bear's Lagoon, 1888, being the only exception. At Terrick East, 1741, quarters for the teacher's family are needed; and the building at Terricks township, 1721, is now too small for the number in attendance. A substantial new building has recently been erected for Pyramid Hill, 1712, but the attendance ever since the erection has been miserably small.

In this district, which is so hot and shadeless, it is a pity that teachers do not make some effort to have the school grounds planted with trees. The number of teachers who do make this effort is very few. At Millewa, 1564, I found two nice elms planted, and Mr. Clinch told me the work had been voluntarily carried out by Mr. Thompson, a parent.

Furniture and Apparatus.—As a rule, the schools are well supplied with all necessary requisites. In most cases I found that the free stock was carefully kept, and I also found the teachers economical in the distribution of free copy-books.

The meagre information contained on the small maps supplied has been frequently brought under notice. At Crusoe Gully, 1274, the teacher, in giving a class lesson, used a map of Australia sketched and filled in by a pupil, rather than use the map sent from the office.

ORGANIZATION.

Though of course some of the faults of organization found at previous inspections still exist, I can, on the whole, report most favorably of the organization of the schools in this district.

The old difficulty of time-table construction—once such a terror to the teachers of small schools—seems now to have almost vanished. Many teachers who a year or two ago were badly perplexed by this difficulty, now point with pride to the time-tables, the ease with which they can conduct their schools being, in most cases, the proof to them that at last their work is properly arranged.

I have endeavoured during the year to get the country teachers to pay greater attention to the training of monitors. In many schools, I found it was the custom to continuously employ one promising boy or girl, to the exclusion of all others, the consequence being that the school was poorly taught in the lower classes whenever the regular monitor happened to be absent.

INSTRUCTION.

The instruction given has been mainly of a good character. In the town schools a weak lesson is the exception, while in many of the country schools the teachers have made it their aim to keep themselves well acquainted with the best and most approved methods of instruction.

The rapidity and accuracy with which the fifth-class pupils at No. 877 answered difficult questions on the "verb" fairly astonished me.

The instruction of the infants still continues to receive due attention, and it gives me pleasure to note the efforts of most of the infant-school teachers to bring their classes to an efficient state of instruction and discipline.

Drill and Gymnastics.—Military drill is taught in a few schools, and the instruction is of a superior nature in the main. Gymnastics receive no attention.

Extra Subjects.—The schools in which extras are taught are few in number; not all even of the town schools have classes for them. The best schools at present are Nos. 877, 210, and 1316; in these the classes passed very satisfactorily.

DISCIPLINE.

The discipline continues to be very good; in few cases have I noticed that the order was not sufficiently good to allow of school work being properly carried on.

TEACHERS AND PUPIL-TEACHERS.

Very few changes have occurred in the teaching staff of this district. I am still enabled, from another year's experience of the teachers, to report most favorably of them as a whole. The exceptional cases have been reported on the usual form.

In many schools the workmistresses give the whole of their time during both meetings. I really think that it would be well to encourage such enthusiasm, by allowing those workmistresses who thus devote all their time to the Department a percentage of the results obtained, especially when those teachers hold the "license to teach" qualification.

I examined 26 pupil-teachers in art of teaching during the year. Of these, 19 passed on their first trial, and 2 on their second; 1 failed on both trials; the remaining 4 had only one opportunity afforded them.

Five teachers were examined in art of teaching, for a certificate, 3 passing on their first trial, and 2 on their second.

Five teachers were examined in art of teaching, for license; 4 passed on their first trial, and 1 failed, to whom as yet a second trial has not been afforded.

These results may be regarded as good.

HALF-TIME SCHOOLS.

There are three half-time schools in the district, and they seem to be doing the work required of them in a satisfactory manner. In one of them (No. 1795) the percentage gained by the combined school under the half-time system was greater than had been obtained by either division last year, when they were worked as full-time.

RECORDS.

I regret to say that in two cases I was obliged to report very unfavorably of the way in which the rolls were found to have been marked. The errors were serious ones, and almost amounted to falsification. Certainly the grossest carelessness was shown in both cases, and I trust that this year I shall have no occasion to find fault with any teacher on account of the way in which his records are kept.

Frequently loss of time has been caused at result examinations on account of the inaccurate statements of the children's ages which are found in the records; and this notwithstanding that I almost invariably add to my notice a foot-note asking the teacher to check the ages before my arrival. The only remedy for this seems to be for the Department to supply the "certificate of age" forms so often suggested, and to direct the teachers to have them filled in correctly, and have them alphabetically arranged for inspection at each visit for results. Often even in schools where age certificates are in use, they are so disarranged as to cause great loss of time in looking for the ones required.

PUBLIC HEALTH.

During the year the district has been visited by a series of diseases, the principal of which have been measles, scarlet fever, and low fever. Several schools lost a goodly portion of the time for instruction from this cause, and Tragowel Plains, 2227; Kerang, 1410; Pannoomillio, 1809; and Warragamba, 2304, lost their result examination on account of being closed during my tours of inspection.

Your most obedient servant,

The Secretary, Education Department, Melbourne.

REPORT OF W. M. M. CAMPBELL, ESQUIRE, M.A., GOULBURN VALLEY DISTRICT.

SIR,

Melbourne, June 1882.

I have the honor to submit my report on the Goulburn Valley district for the year 1881.

SCHOOL ACCOMMODATION.

During the year the demand for school accommodation in the newly settled parts of the county of Moira continued, applications from the following localities being received and reported on, viz.:—Baulkamaugh East, Boosey North, Boweya, Cashel North, Congupna West, Drumanure, Goomalibee, Katandra East, Katandra West, Miepoll, Mokoan West, Naringaningalook West, Pine Lodge, Ulupna West, Upotipotpon, Waggarandall North, Yarrawonga West. In the case of most of these applications (some of which were renewals of previous ones) it was found that schools were really required, but a frequent difficulty in the way of establishing them arose through the impossibility, owing to the scattered nature of the settlement, of getting a site to suit all parties. Applications continued to come in up to the date of my leaving the district—viz., the end of the year—but in decreasing numbers; and at the rate at which the Department has been supplying portable schools, the wants of the county of Moira should soon be well supplied.

In addition to the demands of Moira, applications from Aberfeldy mine, in the Wood's Point district, Big River, near Darlingford, and Emu Bridge, near Benalla, were dealt with. In each instance the number of children was rather small to warrant the establishment of a full-time school, but in the two last cases it may be found possible to provide accommodation on the half-time system.

During the year new schools were opened at the following places, viz.:—Arcadia East (half time with the existing school at Arcadia), Bunbartha, Bungeet West, Congupna West, Naringaningalook, Naringaningalook West, Samaria North, Yarroweyah, Youanmite.

The schools at Samaria North and Elliebank were joined on the half-time system, Warrenbayne, which had previously been worked with the latter, being made a full-time school.

The number of unsuitable buildings in the district is now small. In some cases portable schools originally sufficient for the wants of the district to which sent, have, as time went on, proved too small. These instances have been individually reported to the Department, and where larger buildings have not been erected, temporary relief has been obtained by utilizing the teacher's quarters.

STATE OF BUILDINGS AND FURNITURE.

So far as the teachers are responsible for the state of the buildings, I seldom saw much reason to find fault. The same may be said regarding the furniture and free stock.

ORGANIZATION.

A number of the younger teachers in charge of small schools have profited by experience as regards the construction of their time-tables and general organization of their schools. The supervision, however, was still frequently found very defective.

INSTRUCTION.

The majority of the schools examined showed very fair progress during the year, many of the teachers in charge of lately established schools giving evidence that they had worked hard and well in bringing up to the required standard backward children who had previously been without means of education. The advantage of the present result system (to the community, if not to the teachers) was thus shown forth.

Of 97 schools examined for results, 4 gained over 90 per cent., and 24 between 80 and 90. On the other hand, 17 fell below 60 per cent., the amount allowed to new schools previous to examination. The average percentage for all the schools examined was 73 per cent., which may, I think, be regarded as very fair.

Of 738 scholars examined for standard certificates, 321, or about 43 per cent., passed.

In many, in fact in most of the small schools, too little attention was given to the infants.

In the various programme subjects the prevalent faults noted were the same as in the previous year. Spelling, and in the upper classes arithmetic (2), comprehension, and grammar were in most schools found the weakest subjects.

Writing, in out-of-the-way schools, sometimes suffered through teachers neglecting to apply to the Department for copybooks till their stock was quite run out; scholars being thus obliged for a time to write in unsuitable books, or even reduced to slates.

DISCIPLINE.

Class drill received more general attention than formerly. Good order was, as a rule, maintained, but in many cases sufficient importance was not attached by teachers to the moral tone of their schools. It is worthy of note that where the tone was good the teaching was generally thorough, the scholars' work carefully done, and the percentage consequently satisfactory.

RECORDS.

It is rather too common to find teachers who either have not taken the trouble to read, or else wilfully disregard the Department's instructions regarding the keeping of the rolls. Besides one case of wilful falsification and one or two of gross neglect, I met with numerous cases in which one or more of the printed directions had been ignored. Thus it was quite common to find the rolls made up for the day before the end of the school meeting—no provision being made for possible cancelled attendances. In two instances, on entering a school during a Friday afternoon's meeting, I found the average for the current week already calculated and entered, which was certainly taking time by the forelock. And I am afraid there is a good deal of unpunctuality in the calling of the rolls.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

The Secretary, Education Department,
Melbourne.

W. M. M. CAMPBELL.

REPORT OF THOMAS R. HEPBURN, ESQUIRE, B.A., LL.B., SOUTH-EASTERN DISTRICT.

SIR,

Melbourne, March 1882.

I have the honor to forward my general report on the South-Eastern district for the year ended Dec. 31st 1881.

There are at present 120 schools in operation, and, owing to the amount and the rough nature of the travelling, the district is fast becoming too much for one inspector.

SCHOOLS.

During the year the following new schools have been opened:—Childers and Waterloo South, half-time schools, 2350; Maryvale East, 2382; Mirboo, 2383; Longwarry East, 2377; Paynesville, 2343; Glenaladale, 2373; Dutson, 2368; Upper Moondarra, 2320, half-time with Lower Moondarra; Balloong, 2408; Neerim, 2432; Crossover Junction, 2435; Yinnar, 2419; Driffield, 2433; and Morwell North, 2439.

The establishment of schools has been recommended at the following places :—Lower Boggy Creek North, Labertouche, Traralgon West, Merriman's Creek, Broadlands, and Wurruk Wurruk.

The following applications for schools have been received during the latter part of the year, but have not yet been dealt with :—Cobungra, Newmeralla, Holey Plains, Giffard, Longwarry Township, and Trafalgar South.

Applications for schools at Devon and Eaglehawk were not dealt favorably with, as in both cases the number of children was insufficient.

The half-time schools at Sandy Creek and Yeerung have been closed.

As the permanency of the settlement in many parts of Gippsland is of such a doubtful nature, I have induced the parents in some places to erect a suitable building, the renting of which by the Department I have recommended.

FURNITURE, &C.

With the exception of the ball frame the schools in this district are suitably and sufficiently furnished.

ORGANIZATION.

In no instance during the year has any penalty been inflicted for misclassification.

In the majority of schools in this district the staff consists of but one teacher. In many of these schools the supervision is far from satisfactory ; the lessons poorly or not supervised being the writing on slates of the first class, the transcription of the second, the dictation of the third, fourth, fifth, and sixth, and the writing in copies of all classes. Many teachers do not seem to have any idea of distributing their time evenly among the classes, some teaching one class only, and leaving the others to monitors ; others giving most of their time to one class, and then hastily and imperfectly inspecting the work of the others.

In many schools I would like to see some preparation of the lessons of the day on the part of the head teacher.

The time-tables are now fairly drawn up and appear to work smoothly.

Monitors are now freely appointed, but that they should receive some instruction in their duties is desirable.

INSTRUCTION.

Generally speaking the state of instruction is as follows :—

Rhymes.—Well known, but not understood.

Reading.—Invariably correct, but seldom intelligent.

Geography.—Topography fair, but nothing else. I have often been informed by a third class that the world is round like an orange and that we live inside it. Very few children can tell the name of the planet on which we live.

Grammar.—Improved since last year, but still too mechanically taught.

Dictation and Transcription.—Too much attention paid to the quantity and none at all to the quality of the work. Dictation is considered by most teachers to be a spelling and not a writing lesson.

Writing.—Decidedly weak as compared with that of the town schools examined by me. That this subject is weak is due in my opinion to the following causes :—Neglect of writing in the transcription and dictation lessons, want of supervision of the slate work of the first class, and allowing the children to write on unruled slates with short stumps of pencils, uneven writing and a bad habit of holding the pen being thus acquired.

Arithmetic.—With the exception of arithmetic 2 of the fifth class, this subject is fairly taught.

Needlework.—Always good ; but in some cases I have my doubts as to whether the work shown is the bona fide work of the girls. I have been informed that sewing has been shown to me which has travelled all the way from Ballarat. At any rate some specimens appear to have gone through the ordeal of many examinations.

Programme.—The programme appears to be fairly observed, geography being the only subject neglected.

Mr. Nasmith, in one of his lectures on the Economic Methods of Teaching, said :—"It is the duty of the educator to develop native forces. It is the duty of the instructor to instil foreign elements. It is the duty of the schoolmaster to do both scientifically. To educate his pupil the schoolmaster must throw the burthen of the labor upon his pupil. To instruct his pupil he should take as far as possible the burthen of the labor upon himself."

In preparing their pupil-teachers and their pupils for examination I am afraid that many teachers are not educators but instructors.

Extra Subjects.—These are not much sought after. Those in charge of them do not appear to attach sufficient importance to the necessity of thoroughly teaching the rudiments.

Military Drill.—This is taught in but a few schools, the boys having made fair progress during the year.

Discipline.—Manners in many schools still remain an extra subject not provided for in the programme of free instruction. However, during my stay in the various schools, I find the children well under control.

Teachers.—The frequent changing of teachers still continues in this district. A teacher, anxious for and promised removal, neglects his school, objecting to sow what another may reap. The relieving teachers, part of whose duty it is to reign between the outgoing and incoming teachers, will, I am sure, bear me out in the above statement.

I would like to put in a plea on behalf of the female teachers in charge of schools with allotments between 30 and 50. If a male be in charge of such a school, he is allowed the services of a workmistress. The weaker sex, on the other hand, are allowed no assistance, have to teach sewing, and receive poorer pay. I invariably find female teachers in charge of such schools complaining of being overworked.

Records.—These are generally found properly kept.

Travelling.—The roads in many parts of this district have improved, but in other parts they still remain bad, and the travelling is fraught with danger. On one of my trips, which takes several days to accomplish, my guide, the mailman, to pass away the time, pointed out the graves of several who had been drowned while attempting to cross the rivers. Over the history of one grave he dwelt in particular, informing me that the occupant thereof was drowned but a week before, that the rivers at that time were not so swollen as at the time of our journeying, and that he had had company at the time of the mishap. I smiled at the time, but have since fallen an easy victim to a life insurance agent.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

THOS. R. HEPBURN.

The Secretary, Education Department, Melbourne.

REPORT OF SAMUEL WARE, ESQUIRE, B.A., METROPOLITAN WESTERN DISTRICT.

SIR,

18th May 1882.

I have the honor to submit my general report for the year 1881.

SCHOOLS VISITED.

During the year I have visited 104 schools, viz., 92 examined for results and 12 visited for inspection. Of those examined for results, 22 were visited a second time for inspection; reports on the general management of 52 others were sent in with the result of the examinations, and 7 were night schools.

BUILDINGS.

The buildings in this district are in general good. A new school has been erected for No. 307, Hotham, the only town school which had buildings unsuitable for school purposes; two others, viz., No. 1073, Lygon street, and No. 1912, Footscray, require enlargement, to accommodate classes at present taught in leased buildings at some distance from the main schools. Many of the smaller schools, especially those in portable buildings, are subject to the inconvenience of smoky chimneys, which is so great in some cases that it is impossible to keep the fire alight even in the coldest weather.

FURNITURE.

All the schools are fully supplied with furniture; but in some the easels are of the old three-legged type, which are, almost without exception, in an unsafe state, through the hinges having given way. The new glazed maps do not prove so serviceable as the unglazed ones, as, unless they are handled with very great care, the paper cracks and separates from the linen to which it is pasted.

In two country schools I found small circulating libraries established for the use of the children. This is an example that might well be followed, as there is little to encourage a taste for reading among children in the country, where books are scarce, and as a rule neither very entertaining nor profitable.

TIME-TABLES.

The time-tables are, as a rule, well drawn up; but mistakes to which attention has been frequently called are still too common, such as having too many lessons of the same kind following one another in the lower classes, too little reading or arithmetic for the first class, or too much time given to rhymes in the second and transcription in the third classes, &c.

In nearly every case the time-table was strictly adhered to, and where deviations did occur they were slight, except in one case, where, visiting a school unexpectedly, I found the teacher working entirely without one.

PROGRAMME OF INSTRUCTION.

I have found that teachers make two mistakes, of opposite character, about the programme of instruction; some think that they must give their classes programme work only, and, for want of revision, allow the children to forget what they have learned in the classes below; others consider that the requirements of the Department are satisfied if a small part of the time is given to programme work, leaving the greater portion to be devoted to that on which the children are to be examined; but I am inclined to think that this is, in most cases, a subterfuge to cover their misclassification, as I have almost invariably found that these teachers have great difficulty in keeping their classes within the prescribed ages, and by adopting the plan I have mentioned they manage to keep a nominal classification nearly a degree higher than the real one.

Reading.—This subject is generally well taught, as far as the correct pronunciation of words is concerned, but very little attention is paid to expression, and the explanations are very defective, especially in the lower classes.

In conducting the lessons, some teachers seem to find great difficulty in keeping up the attention of the children when reading individually; the reason is that they do all the correction themselves; they would find that giving the children an interest in this part of the lesson, by making them watch for any mistakes that might be made, would effectually secure their attention.

Arithmetic.—In a few schools I have been pleased to find that problems suited to the requirements of the district have been introduced into the arithmetic lessons. If this were more common, the complaint so often made now, that the work done in schools is impractical, that when boys have gone through their school course with credit they are not able to deal with the simplest problems they may meet with in business, would cease. The teachers' objection seems to be that such questions are not required by the programme, and do not make a return at result examinations; but I am of opinion that, with a little thought, they could construct problems which would materially assist their programme work, by giving the children an intelligent interest in what they were doing.

Grammar.—This subject is in general fairly taught, as far as the parsing of words is concerned, the weak point in the upper classes being usually etymology. The analysis of simple sentences should, I think, be introduced earlier than it is; it should be made an introduction to syntax, rather than syntax to it, as at present.

Geography.—Geography is usually the dry study of some text-book, with the assistance of the map. In several cases I have seen teachers standing book in hand before their classes, giving their explanations and expecting the children's answers to be in the exact words of the book. In only one instance did I see a teacher endeavouring to give his class an intelligent idea of the nature of the country he was dealing with; by this means he made what is usually a dull, uninteresting lesson as entertaining as a book of travel, and the information was more strongly impressed on the minds of the children than it would be by a dozen lessons of the ordinary kind.

EXTRAS.

There appears to be very little demand for extra subjects in the schools of this district. Only about six schools have classes of more than two or three in any subject; and in these, with the exception of a few pupils who are being prepared for the exhibition examinations, the children rarely advance beyond the most elementary work.

DISCIPLINE.

The discipline is in general good.

RECORDS.

As the greater number of my visits have been for examination, I have had little opportunity of ascertaining in what condition the records are usually kept; but out of the few visits I have been able to make without notice (under 40), I have found five or six cases in which culpable carelessness has been shown in marking the rolls. I have, however, had no reason to suspect wilful falsification in any case.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

SAMUEL WARE.

The Secretary for Education, Melbourne.

APPENDIX I.

REPORT OF FREDERICK JOHN GLADMAN, ESQUIRE, B.Sc., B.A., SUPERINTENDENT
OF THE TRAINING INSTITUTION.Central Training Institution,
Melbourne, June 21th 1882.

SIR,

I beg to forward my annual report.

I have visited every associated school twice during the year, and have paid extra visits to some. With two exceptions, I have seen every trainee at work in school, and those due for examination this month have come under my notice twice at least, generally at an interval of about six months. My report on these individual trainees is based upon personal observation and upon the opinion of the associate with whom the trainee is placed.

I have also been able to call at a few schools where ex-trainees are employed, and to advise and encourage as circumstances seemed to require.

Before dealing with the Training System, I desire to call attention to a few matters affecting general school-work.

Two fundamental mistakes are common amongst our young teachers—(1) putting talking for teaching, mistaking their own work for class-work; (2) too rigid and mechanical adherence to certain methods. May I suggest that it would be well for some head teachers to give special prominence to these defects in their lessons on teaching, and that they should talk to their young assistants somewhat as follows:—

1st. "It is not what the teacher does, but what the child does that educates him, and that is of permanent value. Abundant talking, and even earnest hard work, are no guarantee of sound teaching. Always test your work by what you get the children to do; measure your success by the amount and quality of what you get out of them. You must impart knowledge, and instruct, and tell, but, as Stow puts it, 'A lesson is never given until it is received;' we can never be sure that our instructions have been received until we cause the learners to reproduce them in varied ways and of themselves. Much of our simultaneous teaching is especially defective. A class is not being taught properly, unless all the children are working on the lines laid down by the teacher. An inspector will look at your class rather than at you when he is gauging your teaching power.

2nd. "Be methodical, but do not be mechanical." Method must be applied intelligently. Bring mind to bear on your work, use your own resources, invent, scheme, devise, and test for yourselves. Vary your methods, use them, do not be slaves to them. Good teaching keeps the teacher constantly on the stretch, and constantly and variedly inventive. Study approved methods by all means, and incorporate what is good into your own practice. But method in itself is of small value, it is only a tool with which work may be done; the all-important element is the skill with which the workman uses it; the man is more than the method."

All teachers will agree that there should be no appearance of perfunctoriness about their work. Sometimes this evil arises from want of thought rather than from want of heart. For example, I found a large room full of children in a certain school, and four teachers with them. One was conducting a change, and was very properly aiding the movement by singing. The other three, however, were taking no part in the work, and their appearance suggested that they regarded it as an unimportant matter, if not as an infliction. I could not but feel how much better it would have been if they had shown some interest in the exercise, and had augmented the children's enjoyment by sympathetic sharing in it. This of itself is a small matter, but it is one of those trifles which go to indicate character, and which, when added together, often make the difference between "fair" and "moderate," or "good" and "fair." Unpunctuality, which is not unknown even in our associated schools, is a bad sign as well as a bad habit.

Disarrangement of classes, very different from legitimate promotion, sometimes takes place on a large scale "to keep the ages right." It may be impossible to meet departmental requirements without some weeding and forcing, but this should be distributed over the year, that teachers be not discouraged nor classes demoralized. A well-contrived and carefully worked plan for promotion, coupled with due oversight and well-directed pressure, would obviate the necessity for so undesirable a movement. If not, there must be something radically wrong in the classification and work or in departmental requirement.

Object lessons are not given at all in some schools, even in the lower classes; the departmental programme does not ask for them, therefore they are not provided for in the cases referred to. Our school training conforms to modern fashion, and consists too entirely of imparting knowledge, instruction, "putting in." We evidently do not believe that the truest education consists in causing children to use their knowledge, making them think, cultivating observation, and appealing to general intelligence; if we did, we should plan and act differently. Childhood is nature's time for acquiring facts, and we do well to give much systematized information. But it is also the time when the perceptive faculty is exceptionally active, and when observation should therefore be cultivated and trained by suitable exercise. Using Combe's words, "The process of education consists in training faculties and communicating knowledge," and any system which does not recognise and provide for both is so far defective. Educational fashion will alter again, and will probably swing to the opposite extreme, when there may be danger of insufficient instruction and indefinite teaching. Meantime, can we not take precautions against this danger? Ought we not to provide better exercise for certain faculties which are peculiarly active during childhood, and which, if untrained now, will never be so amenable to training in the future? Would not a part of the time now given to Geography, for example, be better spent in lessons of general information, given on system, and arranged on a plan approved by the inspector? And could not the general teaching provide intellectual training of a better kind as well as memory work, and thus subserve the twofold purpose of education more completely?

In one school, where object lessons are given regularly, there was a familiarity with certain semi-technical words of more or less common occurrence, which is not usual in our schools. These words had a meaning for the children; they did really represent ideas. Giving familiarity with words of this class is one of the lowest purposes of such lessons, and I would not make too much of it, for there may be meretriciousness about it. But if we take a low ground, the children's stock of words was being enlarged, and reading (and perhaps speaking) would be more intelligent and easy for them because of their greater familiarity with words as connected with ideas, and this apart from the benefits derivable from a larger and specialized appeal to observation, judgment, and memory.

Taken as a whole, the associated schools are doing good work, though they vary with the character, aims, and methods of the associates, and might be classified accordingly. Weak points have been mentioned in my former reports, and there is little reason to modify what I have there said. I take this opportunity of repeating that, as the associated schools must of necessity serve as model schools to the trainees, fault and defect become serious evils, inasmuch as they are factors in moulding the standard which the young trainee sets up for his guidance. Extreme care (more than seems to be taken in places) ought to be employed to secure punctuality, regularity, good order, good method, and all other excellencies, which go to make a first-class school. Where there is any approach to preventable looseness, an associated school so far does harm.

Associates have certain difficulties to contend with which are not apparent in other schools. (1.) Trainees, being attached to the school for a limited time, do not take so much interest as permanent assistants and pupil-teachers. (2.) The bulk of those trainees who have not been pupil-teachers are unable to maintain ordinary discipline and impart ordinary class instruction for some months of their year, even if they rise to be reliable class-teachers at all. (3.) Where trainees are reckoned on the school-staff (as for economy is often done) the teaching power of the school is materially weakened, and the associates complain with reason that it is unfair to saddle them thus with temporary and weak assistants, especially as an associated school is expected to maintain a high position.

Much soreness exists in some places, because trainees of scanty experience and little power are paid at the same rate as ordinary assistants, and receive nearly or quite as much as assistants of several years' standing. Last November I visited a school in which five trainees were employed. On enquiring into their antecedents I found that not one had been employed in teaching, except as an occasional monitor, yet three of them (one who had passed the Civil Service examination, and two the simple examination for entrance to training), were paid £80 a year and "results," whilst the other two (both of whom had passed the matriculation examination) were allowed £35 a year for board. I pointed out that those paid as assistants, who passed into the second year, would be required to maintain themselves in Melbourne for twelve months; but the very fact of their poor services being remunerated so highly tended to make the ordinary staff dissatisfied. Modifications in our plan of training, such as are suggested later on, would, in my opinion, obviate the difficulties and anomalies indicated in this and the preceding paragraph.

Adverting to the leading features in our first year's training, I have to notice—

(1.) Practice in teaching.—In some schools the time spent at class-teaching used to be minimized, that trainees might sit down to private study. The temptation to this course still exists, and still exerts its influence; but the requirement that at least half the day shall be employed in school-work, together with the plan of making trainees assistants in their schools, have brought about a somewhat better state of affairs. In many, if not in all cases, it is desirable to keep trainees at work during the whole school-day; they want practice above all things. No trainee who is weak in class-management should be allowed to take private study during school-hours. At the same time, I do not think it well to fetter the associates by regulation; they are experienced men, capable of forming a sound judgment, so that they can deal better with individual cases than the Department can. If they will bear in mind and provide for the fundamental requirement, they ought to be free to adopt whatever plan their judgment and their special opportunities suggest. One associate professes to be hampered by the discretion allowed him, and would prefer an authoritative direction that trainees should teach all day. I do not think such a regulation is desirable, and it is in the power of every associate, to make regulations for the immediate control of his trainees.

(2.) Watching and working with good teachers is a most valuable means of training, and I wish our associated schools could always supply it. In every training school good models should be available and even abundant; the staff should be exceptionally strong, and every teacher a model in some way. If a trainee could always work where he could see and be seen by such a teacher, whatever power he possessed would have a good chance of development. This cannot be done on system now, and indeed often cannot be done at all where trainees are reckoned on the school-staff. It is evident that a model staff would be more expensive, but considering the immense advantage which would accrue to young teachers, I feel the country would receive a good return for the outlay. Further, it might be possible to do our training work on this basis with fewer training schools.

(3.) Practice in all parts of the school.—Trainees should have some experience in every class. There is a marked tendency to confine them to the lower classes, because they are new to the school; they stay but a little time, and altogether they "do least harm" there. We cannot in reason expect associates to allow the teaching and discipline of a class to be injured for the sake of a trainee. If we required (as I believe we might do) trainees to show satisfactory teaching power or promise before they were fully admitted, much of the difficulty would be obviated. The fact, and it is an undoubted fact, that many of our trainees are unable to handle a fifth class properly at the end of their first year, points to the necessity for introducing some test of teaching power, or promise at least, before their admission. I would recommend the associates to use their trainees as monitors under an assistant in the higher classes, to require them to take drafts in Reading and Arithmetic, and to give lessons in Grammar and Geography after preparation, their notes being revised, and such hints and directions as seem necessary being supplied before the lesson is given. If a trainee be thus helped and watched, and care be taken not to overweight him, he may in time be trained to deal with any class in the school. But this again demands a full staff of capable assistants.

(4.) Direct action of associate.—I had occasion to complain last year that trainees are sometimes left overmuch to themselves to grope their own way into the light; they do not always get that admixture of judicious advice and assistance which would enable them to tide over their difficulties, and encourage and teach them by showing how to achieve a wished-for result. For training purposes the young teacher ought not to be left to himself, nor on the other hand ought the associate to do his work or manage his class for him, as one at least of our more earnest men seems inclined to do. In teaching children to read or write, we first set up a copy or give a pattern, and put it within the power of the learner to do what is expected of him, by making every step of the way practicable and clear; then we demand a series of tentative efforts on his part, whilst we watch, and guide, and correct. So, in teaching young people to teach, a standard should be set up and made clear to the trainee, who should be kept up to the mark by constantly referring his plans, modes of action, and their results to such standard; the associate criticizing, pointing out, or getting him to see wherein he falls short, and advising and it may be showing him how to put things right. How and when such advice and help are to be given is a matter for the tact and judgment of the associate. Trainees ought not to be left alone, except with discretion and for a purpose. The associate should let them know exactly what he requires, give them clear and detailed directions, and then bring his force of character to bear that his ideas may be carried out. An associated school, which does not show decided evidence of such active training, does not fulfil its purpose.

(5.) Lectures and instruction in school-management.—Whilst practice under the conditions just laid down is the best teacher, systematic lessons on the principles and art of teaching and on school organization should be given, care being taken to give them a practical turn, and illustrations being drawn from school-work, and from the practice of the associate. All associates, I believe, take advantage of those opportunities for informal but effective training which spring out of class-examinations or any noteworthy excellence or defect observed in a teacher. For useful training such short, pointed hints are of the highest value. But more is wanted, and each associate should either prepare and give lectures of his own or go systematically through a course of lessons on school-management as laid down in a good text-book. This is not always done. It may be well to remind those concerned that "method" is not the whole of school-management, and that any method, however strongly recommended, is only a tool with which we may work, and not the tool with which we must work.

(6.) Criticism lessons.—Experience has convinced me of the great value of the criticism lesson as a means of training, and I have felt myself compelled to urge associates to employ it freely. In most schools such lessons are arranged for and given regularly. I wish it were so in all, for there is perhaps no other means for introducing practical advice and comment in so telling a way. There is difficulty in taking trainees from their classes during school-time (especially when they are employed as assistants), and difficulty in detaining children for lessons after ordinary lessons are over; but in view of the grand possibilities connected with the exercise I am recommending, associates would do well to provide for it.

(7.) Study.—I find trainees and associates narrowing their attention more and more closely to the subjects prescribed for the first year's training, although these subjects form no direct preparation for after-work, and although students who come into the second year without knowing anything of what they have to attack, find it extremely difficult and trying, and often impossible, to do the work. The only effective remedy is to alter the programme. Knowing, however, what I do of the ill effects following from inadequate preparation, I have felt it my duty to press associates to do more towards preparing their trainees for what they will meet in Melbourne. For a time there was a fair response, but matters are fast drifting back to the old condition. I can only request and advise; I cannot direct: the Department must move in the matter before it can be set right. The bonus to the associate now depends on the trainee passing his examination, and not to any extent on extra instruction he may have given. Indeed, it can scarcely be otherwise as things are. But he is thereby led to confine his attention to those things which will pay. Then the admission of the trainee to the second year also depends solely on his passing an examination, in which no one of the subjects—Latin or French, Algebra or Geometry, History or Literature, or Science—finds a place, although fair knowledge is expected of these during the second year. The trainee is disinclined to damage his chance of passing by taking up extras, and he does no more than he is obliged. Associates have expressed their readiness to deal with any subjects the Department may desire, if a mandatory regulation be made, as I suggest it should be.

(8.) A serious evil.—The first year's training is affected very injuriously by a prevalent notion that teaching skill avails nothing, and want of it deprives the candidate of nothing, until he gets into the second year. Absurd as the idea seems, it exists, and is a chief obstacle I have to combat. I might appeal to the tendency manifested by associates and trainees to minimize the time allowed for actual teaching in school, although they are reported on after my visit. But I also find young people, who are quite unpractised, "studying for the certificate" or for "the entrance examination," and doing nothing except sit down to book-work. What one would naturally regard as the most essential qualification of all—ability to teach—and what one would regard as the most important part of the preparation—learning how to teach by practising it—seem to be not seriously thought of. Such young people get a recommendation from the inspector, who is not required to see them teach, but, so far as I can learn, forms an opinion respecting their general suitability from a personal interview and a few minutes' conversation. Having become trainees the superintendent sees them at work two or three times during their first year, and sends in a brief report on each. A wholesome idea used to exist that these reports had some influence in determining the fitness of the candidate for admission to the second year. But associates and trainees have discovered that teachers of extreme weakness yet get through, if they can pass the written examination; and I feel assured there is now a widespread feeling that, provided one does so pass, teaching does not matter. Such a state of things ought not to be possible, and I think we need submit to it no longer. With the candidates who are, or, as I think, might be made available, we can pick and choose our material, and demand a degree of teaching promise as an essential for admission to training. Further, if poor teachers get into the service, there is a difficulty in getting rid of them, and they become permanent sources of weakness in our schools. I wish I could impress others with my conviction that it is unwise and unnecessary to saddle the country with those who, to use the words of an English inspector, are "doomed to perpetual mediocrity."

My report on the outgoing second year trainees is sent herewith.

I am glad to have another opportunity of expressing my obligations to my colleagues, and to thank them for their zealous co-operation.

Our year's work in the Central Institution has gone on very smoothly. The great majority of our students are sensible young men and women, and are earnest and hardworking, whether their previous training has fitted them to deal with the work or no. I forbear to repeat what I have said before about the depressing and painful disappointment which tells on the spirits and sometimes on the health of our weaker and more imperfectly prepared trainees.

The introduction of certain branches of elementary science into the curriculum has, in my opinion, been attended with gratifying results. So far as my observation goes, the lectures and lessons on Science are more popular than any others, and I think they are the most valuable also. All the outgoing students, except one, have taken physiology, ten have taken physics, and eight chemistry. I am especially gratified at the impetus which has been given to the study of Botany by the painstaking teaching of Mr. Hurly; and I would thankfully acknowledge the kindness of the authorities at the Botanical Gardens, who have supplied us with numerous specimens from week to week, and have taken other trouble on our account. Baron von Mueller has also helped us, and we have just received a valuable set of dried specimens which cannot fail to be useful.

Our plan for school practice and for instruction and training in teaching remains the same as during last year. It is not without its defects, but it is the best I can contrive under the circumstances.

To get hold of good material for training, and so to deal with it as to produce teachers of the best type—to get good trainees, and then work to a suitable plan or syllabus—are manifestly the two essentials in a sound national system.

As a rule, ex-pupil-teachers are the best subjects for further training; they have spent some years as junior teachers, have shown fair skill in class-management, and are able to appreciate and profit from lectures and hints on the principles and art of teaching. They have also been accustomed to habits of study, which stand them in good stead during the second year, although the pupil-teacher course requires altering to make it fit in with a good advanced course. Other candidates need not be excluded, but they should show a reasonable degree of skill in teaching, and be subjected to a severer test as to general acquirement before full admission. All candidates who have not shown teaching power and knowledge approximately equal to that demanded from a first-class pupil-teacher should undergo probation before full admission to training. Our training system, instead of being regarded as a necessary completion to the pupil-teacher course, serves too much as a convenient mode of entry into the service for those who wish to obtain remunerative employment as quickly as possible.

There has been no little agitation of late as to what constitutes a suitable syllabus, or as to the kind of training teachers should undergo. All are agreed that cultivation of teaching skill should be paramount; but there are wide differences of opinion even amongst those qualified to judge respecting the best mode of meeting this requirement. Some advocate an almost continual practice under good supervision; others recommend observation of good teachers, visits to good schools, and occasional practice mainly with a view of illustrating some principle or method. Not only do educationists differ, but old students who have passed through various English training colleges take opposite views, each naturally advocating what he feels would have suited his own case best. The question really depends on the quality of the trainees, and in an institution like ours plan must be adapted to average character and the average development of teaching power. A fundamental point is that sound training requires time; average people cannot be made into good teachers in a hurry; only those who are largely gifted with the teaching instinct (some of whom we do meet with) can become good teachers without lengthened studious practice.

Some also would confine training college study to narrow limits; it is enough, in their opinion, if a head teacher can teach ordinary school subjects and instruct his pupil-teachers properly. Others hold that a teacher cannot be too well furnished; that additional knowledge means additional power, that, other things being equal, the more fully the man is disciplined, and the more fully his mind is stored, the better is he equipped for his work. At the present time those who hold the latter opinion, and therefore advocate a liberal training, are in the ascendant. The Hon. L. Stanley recently advocated in one of the magazines the opening of the English universities to elementary teachers. He says—"It is much to be wished that our old universities could open their doors somewhat to elementary teachers. At present unattached students at Oxford can live and study there for £50 a year. The State pays £100 for a student who completes two years at a training college; why should it not pay for a two years' residence at Oxford or Cambridge? In that case the universities might organize a course by which elementary schoolmasters might graduate there, and so come in contact with a wider range of social influence than he now does at the training college; and the universities might appoint special teachers, who should give instruction in all the branches which are more especially needed for schoolmasters." So also Mr. Sykes, President of the National Union of Elementary Teachers in England, not only calls attention to this influential opinion in his inaugural speech at Sheffield, but regards it as a source of pleasure to all earnest educationists to find that the university degree is not considered too high a mark of scholarship for teachers in elementary schools. He also remarks that such a training "would doubtless tend greatly to the social elevation of the teaching profession. It would bring teachers into closer contact with men in other walks of life, would expand their views, broaden their sympathies, and tend to a higher and more expansive culture than that obtained at the training college."

Now we require teachers for small country schools, as well as men and women who can teach "extras" in larger schools. If the associated schools be continued, the syllabus amended, and the candidates carefully weeded, the improved first year's training would be a good preparation for teachers in small schools. The superior men and women who then passed into the second year might perhaps be dealt with on some such plan as the Hon. L. Stanley suggests. The experiment, however, has never yet been tried, and, as usually happens, it will probably be found that its advocates have been over sanguine. One thing is certain: trainees and training must be fitted to one another; to attempt too much will bring disappointment and failure. Whilst we try to advance with the times, and to keep a front place, we have to consider what is desirable by the light of what is practicable.

Last year I mentioned in brief some leading weaknesses of our training system, and tried to show how, in my opinion, an amended syllabus might be introduced without any serious derangement of existing plans. I beg to bring these matters under notice again.

(1.) Training is not esteemed so highly as it deserves.—Young teachers think that little or nothing is gained by going through the institution. If we are to get hold of pupil-teachers, and induce them to submit to the temporary loss of income as well as to the self-denial and hard work involved in our college course, we must hold out an adequate reward. A distinct professional value should be placed on the trained teacher's certificate, and its possessor should feel sure of making more rapid progress towards the better positions in the service than he would otherwise do. I do not think that this feeling prevails now. Cases have come under my notice where a pupil-teacher has stayed on at the school, and has been appointed to as good, and sometimes to a better, post than a fellow pupil-teacher who has gone through the college. Thus the advantage has been on the side of the teacher who has remained at home, and the idea that the Department attaches little value to training has gained ground.

(2.) Sufficient care is not taken in selecting candidates.—The examination for admission should be of a higher and more searching character. "Persons who have passed the literary examination for a license to teach" (Reg. xiii., 9), but who have done no more than is implied in this, either as students or teachers, do sometimes develop into useful servants of the Department. If too the Department have need of extra teachers, it can fall back on candidates of this kind. But first-class pupil-teachers are available, or might easily be made so. These are the best subjects for further training, and it seems likely that there will be a sufficient number of them to supply our requirements. If others be admitted, it is only reasonable that they should pass an admission examination equivalent to that passed by a first-class pupil-teacher, except perhaps in class-teaching.

(3.) Teaching skill is not made sufficiently prominent.—Trainees get into the first year, sometimes without any experience as teachers; we have some of this kind now. Then their admission to the second year has not depended at all on the teaching power and promise they show in the associated school (Reg. xiii., 13). It is only after they come into the Central Institution that teaching skill becomes essential to success. This could be met by admitting outside candidates on probation only, until they showed fair teaching promise, as first-class pupil-teachers have already done. No one should be admitted to the examination for entrance to the second year until he or she have shown fair skill in class-management and class-teaching.

(4.) Our training syllabus is not graduated and consecutive.—In framing a course, the second year's training should be kept in view from the first, and all the earlier stages should be so constructed as to lead up to it. This implies certain changes in the pupil-teacher course, and a complete recasting of the work of the first year.

The alternative of reducing the second year's work so as to make it fit in with the present lower stages may be mentioned. One of the most experienced and most deservedly respected of our associates thinks we should look in this direction. I think not. It would be a step backward, and I am convinced that a re-arrangement of the syllabus on the opposite principle would be practicable and far preferable.

To illustrate my meaning, and to indicate the lines upon which an amended syllabus might come into gradual operation, without involving of necessity any violent or sudden change, I would submit the following draft scheme, by way of suggestion and for criticism :—

* Satisfactory answers in these subjects will, for the present, entitle the candidate to pass the examinations for pupil teachers (and for admission to the second year). But fair knowledge of an extra subject will be held to compensate for some weakness in the principal subject with which it is connected, always provided that at least [] per cent. of the total number of marks obtainable be obtained in each principal subject.

At and after the [] examination for admission to the second year in [], candidates will be expected to show a fair acquaintance with at least [two] of the extra subjects.

Temporary arrangements would have to be made for introducing the new scheme side by side with the present. These need only apply to trainees and pupil-teachers now in the service of the Department; any who are subsequently appointed might come in under the new scheme. The following suggestions are offered, but they are not to be regarded as essential:—

The Arithmetic paper for admission to first-class pupil-teachership, and to first year's training, and that for admission to second year's training, will also contain questions on Algebra and Geometry.

The Grammar paper for the same examinations will contain questions in Latin and in French. Candidates must confine their answers to English and French or English and Latin.

The Geography paper for the same examinations will also contain questions in English History [and in Elementary Science].

All candidates for admission to the second year are required to prepare notes of lessons on at least [] subjects, [] of which shall be prepared for a second class, and [] for a fifth class. They may be required to give any one or more of these lessons before an inspector. No one will be considered eligible for admission to the second year unless he or she can manage an ordinary class fairly.

Suggestions for plan of papers until the scheme has got into full work:—

- (1.) Mathematics.—Paper to contain [6] questions in Arithmetic together with [2] in Algebra, and [2] in Geometry. Candidates may attempt all the questions, and they are expected to attempt [6] at least. They may choose their questions from any part of the paper.
- (2.) Language.—Candidates must attempt the questions on English Analysis and Parsing. They are expected to attempt at least [4] other questions, which they may choose from either Latin and English or French and English, but not from more than two languages in all. Paper to contain say [4] questions in English, as well as the Analysis and Parsing, [3] in Latin, and [3] in French.
- (3.) Geography and History.—Candidates to attempt at least [6] questions. Paper to contain [6] questions in Geography and [3] in History.
- (4.) Elementary Science.—Simple questions on the matter in the selected text-book. If Huxley's "Physiography" be adopted, it may well be read with the Geography.

There was a time when the Department was forced to put up with inferior material; there is, to my mind, no need for this now. We have more candidates than we can find places for, and, if we attach due value to training, we shall I think obtain good trainees in sufficient number for our purpose. Our mode of admitting and training teachers can and should advance with the altered conditions.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

FREDK. JNO. GLADMAN.

The Secretary, Education Department.

APPENDIX J.

REPORT OF J. SUMMERS, ESQUIRE, INSPECTOR OF MUSIC, ON SINGING.

SIR,

Windsor, 23rd July 1882.

I have the honor to submit a report of the state of singing in our schools.

Singing.—The subject is undoubtedly a most popular branch of our State-school education, and is now regarded as an essential part of our programme of instruction. Besides being a valuable factor in elementary education, the singing lesson is welcomed by the pupils as a recreation and enjoyment.

Number of Children Taught.—About 35,000 children, comprising the III., IV., V., and VI. classes, are taught programme work, and are subject to my examination and inspection.

Professional and Staff Teachers.—There are 25 professional teachers giving instruction to about 30,500 children, and 71 staff teachers, possessing the license to teach, giving instruction to about 4,500.

Organization and Classification of Voices.—All children above the 2nd class are taught programme instruction in classes. Special care is now taken to arrange the voices as high, medium, or low, according to their natural register. Boys at 14 years of age are not allowed to strain their voices by singing high treble, when they naturally possess a low or medium range of voice.

Adaption of Buildings to Singing Classes.—In some schools the children are densely packed in galleries when receiving their singing lessons. The want of a suitable room has been the plea put forward to meet the many objections against this arrangement. Our long narrow rooms are not well suited for singing, and it is satisfactory to find, in the schools recently built, one large room especially adapted for class singing and lectures. In schools of a higher grade than elementary schools, there is always, in addition to the ordinary class rooms, a large room capable of holding all the pupils, and especially used as a place of assembly for lectures, daily addresses by the principal, and such purposes as class singing. Perhaps in future buildings for elementary State schools it might be thought well to include such a room (called in upper schools, "big school"), or to dispose folding doors between successive class rooms, in such a manner as to facilitate the impromptu arrangement of such a room.

Time devoted to Singing.—Two lessons per week of forty-five minutes' duration are given to our classes. This appears to be a reasonable medium in time between the insufficient, short half-hour lessons, and the longer time devoted to singing in the elementary schools of Europe. Half-hour lessons are of little value, and always prove disappointing at the result examinations.

Programme of Instruction.—Our elementary standard is in no way below the level, and in many cases above level, of the standard of other countries where singing is considered an essential part of education.

Song Singing and Books employed.—Much difficulty has been experienced in finding a book of songs suitable for adoption in the Victorian State schools. Pending the publication of such a song book, I propose, every half-year, to issue a leaflet containing six songs, from which my examinations will partly be made.

Number of Children Examined and Inspected.—Since my last annual report, I have examined and inspected about 28,000 children, and obtained good results. Regular and systematic inspection should be given to all classes receiving instruction for which a grant is made by the Department, so as to prevent that unsatisfactory state of singing here, of which Professor Hullah complains in England and some parts of Europe.

Professional Teachers.—The professional teachers employed are generally energetic, conscientious, and competent, and the work performed by them may be highly commended. Good results are usually obtained from good teachers, and I believe, as a body, that these zealously perform their duty with a desire to advance our standard of singing. They have so well succeeded, that our singing classes may favorably compare with those of the most advanced elementary schools of Europe or America. In the light of the reports of Professor Hullah we may now claim a high position, even when compared with Switzerland, Holland, or Belgium.

Results.—I have obtained the best results in singing, both practical, and theoretical, for the year, in the following districts:—

Collingwood ...	...	...	Mr. Bonwick, S.M.
Prahran ...	...	...	Mr. Rennie, S.M.
Melbourne ...	...	...	Mr. Allen, S.M.
Geelong ...	...	...	Mr. Buchan, S.M.
Ballarat ...	...	...	Mr. Brightwell, S.M.
Stawell ...	...	...	Mr. Matthews, S.M.

Staff Teachers of Singing.—We have many able staff teachers giving instruction in singing to the junior classes, and producing results equal to those obtained by the professional teacher.

On the other hand, in many cases, even where the staff teacher is known to possess decided musical power and taste, the results have been most disappointing, and prove that some rule should be adopted as a condition on which the payment to staff teachers for singing lessons should depend.

The Training Institute.—I strongly advocate that singing be made one of the test subjects at examinations to training, more especially as it is now considered advisable to authorize the staff teachers to give instruction in the subject when appointed to their respective schools. Much good work in singing is done practically and theoretically at the institute, and as the children now taught singing in our schools advance to the position of teachers, a knowledge of the art will be more universally diffused.

Infant and Junior Classes.—In the infant classes the method adopted of teaching singing is that by ear only. I am pleased to report that, as a rule, head teachers take pride in the singing of the infant and junior classes, and attach especial value to the subject as a means of education at that early stage of the curriculum.

I find in many schools the infant and junior classes do not sing, in consequence of the inability of the teachers to instruct them. I recommend, where this is the case, that some of the most advanced girls from the senior classes be sent into the infants' rooms to lead the singing. The Kinder-garten Song Book is the very best for adoption in our infant classes.

Teachers' Classes.—Teachers' classes are still held in large districts. Changes have been recently made whereby the teachers receive only one lesson per week instead of two. The results of the examinations prove that the alteration has not been beneficial, and we cannot hope for better results till the two lessons per week are again given.

Musical Exhibitions.—During the time that the late International Exhibition was open, about 12,000 children sang a festival programme of songs with unqualified success, and to the delight of the numerous foreign commissioners and distinguished visitors. One thousand children were selected from the metropolitan and suburban districts weekly, and sang on each successive Friday, special holidays being granted by the Honorable the Minister of Public Instruction for the purpose. It would be but fair to observe that these children received no special training for these great festivals. They were taken from the schools and sang the programme of songs which had been taught during the previous half-year, without any full rehearsal together, and it redounds to the credit of our professional staff that, even under these manifest disadvantages, the whole series of performances was eminently successful. Great credit is also due to those head teachers and assistants who marshalled the children. The easy drill on those occasions evinced sound discipline.

Instrumental Music.—Drum and fife bands are well kept together in many of our large and best conducted schools; those most worthy of mention being at Maryborough, Ballarat, St. Kilda, and Brunswick. I hope to report that bands are established in other districts. A love of music, and some common intellectual ground, however elementary, upon which our growing youth might meet in their leisure evening hours, would do much to alleviate the growing evil to this colony known as "larrikinism." This was at once recognised by Captain Evans, when he was appointed by the Government to the superintendence of the Reformatory School. His first measure of improvement was to inaugurate a military band for the boys.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

J. SUMMERS,
Inspector of Music.

The Secretary of Education.
