REPORT.

EDUCATION DEPARTMENT,
19th October, 1886.

SIR,

I have the honour to submit to Your Excellency the Annual Report of the proceedings of the Education Department.

The statistical returns of the schools in operation, their respective attendance and cost, are made up to the 31st December, 1885. The financial statement shews the receipts and disbursements of the Department up to the 30th June, 1886, when the financial year closed ; and particulars of the accommodation provided in State schools, and of various other matters of interest, are given up to the same date.

The number of schools in operation on the 31st December, 1884, was 1,773. Two of these were closed from that date, so that the year 1885 opened with a roll of 1,771 schools. Seventy schools were added to the roll during the year, and 38 were struck off. The number of schools in operation on the 31st December, 1885, was therefore 1,803.

Of the 70 schools added to the roll during the year, 10 were old schools re-opened, 5 were branches of half-time schools constituted independent establishments, 5 took the place of schools which were closed, and 50 were opened in places that were previously unsupplied with means of education.

Of the 38 schools struck off the roll, 3 were replaced by new schools, 23 were attached to others and worked with them on the half-time system, and 12 were closed for want of sufficient attendance.

The 1,803 schools in operation on the 31st December, 1885, comprised 1,673 conducted as full-time and 130 as half-time. The corresponding numbers on the 31st December, 1884, were 1,665 full-time and 108 half-time. There was, therefore, during the year an increase of 8 in the number of full-time schools, and of 22 in the number of half-time, or a total increase of 52 in the number of places for which school provision was made.

The number of night schools in operation during 1885 was 23. One was discontinued during the year, leaving 22 in operation on the 31st December, 1885. Of these, 8 were open to boys only, 3 to girls only, and 11 were attended by both boys and girls.

The following table shews the number of schools in operation, and the number of children enrolled and in average attendance during the year:—

	Number of Schools.	Total Number of Children Enrolled during the Year.			Number of Children in Average Attendance throughout the Year.

General return for the year ...	1,826	115,982	108,703	224,685	62,196	57,292	119,488

The total number of children enrolled in day schools during the previous year was 216,839, and the average attendance was 118,764. There has therefore been an increase of 2,898 in the number enrolled, while the average attendance has decreased by 1,057.

Number of distinct individual children attending State schools.

In order to determine the actual number of distinct children that were under instruction in State schools during the year, the gross enrolment stated above—219,737—must be reduced on account of those who attended more than one school. The usual inquiries on this head were made on the 9th December, 1885, when it was found that, of 118,838 children present at roll-call on that day, 14,129, or 11·88 per cent., had attended one other State school during the year; 1,511, or 1·27 per cent., had attended two other State schools; and 217, or ·18 per cent., had attended three or more. The effect of these repeated enrolments would be the same as if 17,802, or 14·98 per cent. of the children, had been enrolled twice; and if the gross enrolment be reduced proportionately, we obtain 186,821 as the number of distinct individual children that attended State day schools during the year.

The corresponding number for 1884 was 185,488. The absolute increase in the number of children that were under instruction during the year was, therefore, 1,333.

The proportion of duplicate enrolments is slightly higher than in 1884, though it shews no marked change for some years past, the percentage for the last five years being as follows:—14·48 in 1881, 15·1 in 1882, 14·55 in 1883, 14·45 in 1884, 14·98 in 1885. Under the Board of Education, when the payment of school fees acted as a check upon a capricious moving about from one school to another, the latest published percentage was 12·845. Frequent and unnecessary changes are alike prejudicial to the interests of the children and of the schools; and in the amending Education Bill, now before Parliament, a provision has been introduced with a view to restricting changes, as far as possible, to the commencement of a new quarter.

The total number enrolled in night schools was 4,948, and the average attendance was 1,781. As compared with the year 1884, this shews a decrease of 267 in the gross enrolment, and of 156 in average attendance.

The former decrease is found upon investigation to be attributable to the fact that the duplicate enrolments in night schools were fewer than during the previous year, and does not indicate that a smaller number of scholars were under instruction. From a similar return to that furnished by day schools, it appeared that, of 1,696 children present on the 9th December, 1885, 543, or 32·01 per cent., had attended one other State school during the year; 76, or 4·48 per cent., had attended two other State schools; and 12, or ·70 per cent., had attended three or more. It will thus be seen that, in respect of these scholars, 731 names, or 43·10 per cent., had been entered on the roll more than once. The corresponding percentage for 1884 was 47·2.

When the gross enrolment in night schools—4,948—is reduced in the proportion determined above, it is found that the number of distinct individual scholars who attended State night schools during the year was 2,816. This shews a slight increase on 1884, when the number was 2,750.

The combined returns for day and night schools give a total of 189,637 distinct children enrolled during the year. The corresponding number for 1884 was 188,238. There was, therefore, an increase of 1,399 during 1885.

Progress under the Education Act as regards number of schools and attendance.

The following table shews for each year since 1872 the continual increase in the number of schools and the changes that have taken place in regard to the number of children enrolled and in average attendance:—

* The figures marked (*) are an approximation only, the returns of numbers on rolls of night schools for these years being incomplete.

Notwithstanding the increase that has taken place in the number both of schools and of scholars, it will be seen that the average attendance compares unfavourably with that of the preceding year. One great cause of the falling-off is to be found in the unusually large amount of sickness during the year. In the monthly returns furnished by the teachers any circumstance that has sensibly affected the attendance is specially noted; and on 3,040 occasions during 1885 the prevalence of sickness was reported in explanation of a reduced attendance, as against 2,093 representations of a similar character in 1884. From the same cause, on 159 occasions schools had to be closed for periods varying from a fortnight upwards.

The provisions of section 85 of The Public Health Amendment Statute 1883, and the interpretation of a "dangerous infectious or contagious disease" adopted by the Central Board of Health, have also had a marked effect in reducing the attendance at schools. The section referred to forbids under penalty, except upon the certificate of some legally qualified medical practitioner, the attendance of any child "who, within the space of three months, has been suffering from any dangerous infectious or contagious disease, or who has been resident in any house in which such disease has existed within the space of six weeks"; and as some of the diseases included under this head by the Central Board of Health, such as whooping-cough and measles, are frequently treated without the intervention of a medical man, the result is that, from the unwillingness—probably, in some cases, the inability—of parents to incur the expense of a certificate, children are debarred from attending school for considerable periods. There is little doubt, too, that others, to whom the expense of a certificate would be a matter of little moment, readily avail themselves of the excuse thus afforded them for withholding their children from school.

One other circumstance cannot altogether be overlooked in comparing the attendance in 1884 with that in 1885. During the former year the classification of schools, upon which the present position and future prospects of the teachers in great measure depended, was being determined by the Committee of Classifiers, and it is idle to doubt that, in many cases, extraordinary efforts were made to secure a large attendance. The class of the school being once fixed, these special efforts appear to have been somewhat relaxed, and the attendance returned to its former standard. It is, indeed, only in comparison with the exceptional year 1884 that the regularity of attendance appears at a disadvantage, as will be seen on reference to the following table, which shews the percentage of average attendance to the gross and net enrolment respectively for each of the last five years:—

schools.

The following table, compiled from returns furnished by the head teachers, shews the age and sex of children enrolled in day schools during 1885 :—

The relative proportion of the sexes is nearly the same as obtained during the previous year, 509 out of every 1,000 children in attendance being boys and 491 girls. The numbers for 1884 were respectively 508 and 492.

If the figures be grouped with reference to the statutory school ages, it appears that there were—

Under 6 years of age	...	...	...	28,292
Between 6 and 15 years	...	...	...	180,329
Above 15 years	...	...	...	10,016

and if these numbers be reduced so as to correspond with the number of distinct children that attended school during the year, we have—

Under 6 years of age	...	...	...	24,175
Between 6 and 15 years	...	...	...	154,088
Above 15 years	...	...	...	8,558
Total	...	...	...	186,821

The returns furnished by the head teachers of night schools comprise a total of 4,771 scholars, made up as shewn below :—

Age.					Boys.	Girls.	Total.
12 years of age and under 13 years	...	...	...	...	349	83	432
13 " " 14 " "	...	...	...	...	899	257	1,156

15 " " 16 " "	...	...	...	...	874	215	1,089
16 " and upwards	...	...	...	...	650	110	760
Total	...	...	...	...	3,823	948	4,771

There were, therefore, 2,922 of the statutory school age, and 1,849 above it. Reducing these numbers so as to correspond with the number of distinct children that attended night schools, we have—

Between 6 and 15 years	...	...	...	1,725
Above 15 years	...	...	...	1,091
Total	...	...	...	2,816

The number of distinct children at the different ages that were under instruction during 1885 will, therefore, be as under :—

				Under 6 Years of Age.	Between 6 and 15 Years.	Above 15 Years.	Total.
Day schools	...	...	...	24,175	154,088	8,558	186,821
Night schools	...	...	...	...	1,725	1,091	2,816
Total	...	...	...	24,175	155,813	9,649	189,637

So that, out of every 100 children attending, there were—

Age.		Day Schools.	Night Schools.	Total.
Under 6 years of age ...	...	12.94	...	12.75
Between 6 and 15 years ...	...	82.48	61.26	82.16
Above 15 years ...	...	4.58	38.74	5.09
Total ...	...	100.	100.	100.

The following table gives the percentage of children at the different ages that have attended State schools during the last five years:—

Age.		1881.	1882.	1883.	1884.	1885.
Under 6 years of age ...	...	14.41	12.85	13.15	13.15	12.75
Between 6 and 15 years ...	...	79.89	81.74	81.52	81.91	82.16
Above 15 years...	...	5.67	5.41	5.33	4.94	5.09
Total ...	...	100.	100.	100.	100.	100.

The returns furnished by the heads of private schools, in accordance with section 10 of the Education Act Amendment Act, shew that the number of such schools increased by 4, and the number of children enrolled by 1,124. In 1884 there were 676 private schools, with an enrolment of 42,228 children; in 1885 there were 680 schools, with an enrolment of 43,352. It is noteworthy that the proportion of "mixed" private schools, that is schools attended by both boys and girls, shews a substantial increase, as will appear from the following statement:—

PRIVATE SCHOOLS.
		For Boys.		For Girls.		For both Boys and Girls.	Total.
1884 ...	...	88	...	87	...	501	676
1885 ...	...	82	...	76	...	522	680
Increase	...	—	...	—	...	21	4
Decrease	...	6	...	11	...	—	—

It would appear from this that the system of teaching boys and girls together, which prevails almost universally in State schools, is growing in favour with the parents of children attending private schools.

Annexed is a statement shewing—with regard to the children enrolled at private schools—the number of school age, below school age, and above school age, with similar information for 1884:—

AGE AND SEX OF CHILDREN ATTENDING PRIVATE SCHOOLS.

		1884.			1885.
		Boys.	Girls.	Total.	Boys.	Girls.	Total.
Under 6 years of age ...	...	2,339	2,787	5,126	2,479	2,720	5,199
Between 6 and 15 years of age ...	...	14,667	16,889	31,556	15,509	16,986	32,495
Above 15 years of age ...	...	2,356	2,024	4,380	2,103	2,203	4,306
Age not stated ...	...	559	607	1,166	756	596	1,352
Total ...	...	19,921	22,307	42,228	20,817	22,505	43,352

If it may be assumed that the children whose age was not given in the returns included similar proportions of children of school age, below school age, and above school age, as those children whose age was given, and that the duplicate enrolments in private schools were about as numerous as in State schools, the number of distinct individual children attending private schools in 1885 was as follows:—

Under 6 years of age ...	...	...	...	4,562
Between 6 and 15 years of age ...	...	...	...	28,517
Above 15 years of age ...	...	...	...	3,779
Total ...	...	...	...	36,858

Adding to these 209 children in Industrial and Reformatory Schools, not included in the returns of private schools, the number of children under instruction in schools other than State schools was—

Under 6 years of age	...	...	...	4,565
Between 6 and 15 years of age	...	...	...	28,652
Above 15 years of age	...	...	...	3,850
Total	...	...	...	37,067

Total number of distinct children under instruction.

Again, if the number of distinct children under instruction in private schools and in Industrial and Reformatory Schools be combined with the number of such children in State schools, it will be found that the total number of children in attendance at school last year was as follows:—

NUMBER OF CHILDREN UNDER INSTRUCTION AT SCHOOL IN 1885.

Schools.				Below 6 Years of Age.	From 6 to 15 Years of Age.	Above 15 Years of Age.	Total.
State	...	...	...	24,175	155,813	9,649	189,637
Private	...	...	...	4,565	28,652	3,850	37,067
Industrial and Reformatory
Total	...	...	...	28,740	184,465	13,499	226,704

Of the total number of distinct children enrolled at State schools as has been shewn above—

12·75 per cent. were below the school age.
82·16 „ „ „ of the school age.
5·09 „ „ „ above the school age.

In private schools the proportions were—

12·31 per cent. below the school age.
77·30 „ „ „ of the school age.
10·39 „ „ „ above the school age.

As might be expected, while the proportion of children below school age is much the same in private as in State schools, the proportion of children above school age is very much greater in the former, viz., 10·39 per cent. of the children enrolled at private schools as compared with 5·09 per cent. of those enrolled at State schools.

In the following table a comparison is instituted between the years 1884 and 1885, in regard to the number of children under instruction in school. The percentage of such children at the school age, below school age, and above school age, is also shewn.

NUMBER OF CHILDREN UNDER INSTRUCTION IN SCHOOL IN THE YEARS 1884 AND 1885 RESPECTIVELY.

Year.			Below 6 Years of Age.		Between 6 and 15 Years of Age.		Above 15 Years of Age.		Total.

1884	...	...	29,253	13·03	182,087	81·08	13,244	5·89	224,584
1885	...	...	28,740	12·67	184,465	81·37	13,499	5·96	226,704
Increase	...	...	...		2,378		255		2,120
Decrease	...	...	513		...		...		...

It will be noted as a satisfactory feature in the foregoing statement that the total increase in the number of children under instruction in school is more than accounted for by the increase in the number of children of school age.

It remains to inquire how many children of school age were not known to be under instruction in school. The mean number of children of school age in the colony last year is estimated by the Government Statist at 202,379, and of these, as shewn above, 184,465 were in attendance at school. The remainder then, viz., 17,914, represents, as nearly as can be ascertained, the number of children not enrolled at either State or private schools (but not therefore necessarily without instruction). The corresponding number for the year 1884 was 17,976. As stated in the Report for that year, included in the children not returned as in attendance at school are all those who are under private tuition at home, and who, it would appear, number at least half of the children not under instruction in school. A considerable proportion of the remainder is known to consist of children who, having attained the standard of education, have been withdrawn from school before arriving at the age of fifteen. It would appear then, as previously stated, to be but a reasonable inference that the number of children whose education is being wholly neglected is by no means large.

In support of this view it may also be pointed out that the estimated mean number of children of school age in 1884 was 200,063, and in 1885 was 202,379, shewing an increase in the number of such children of 2,316. It will have been observed that in 1885 the number of children of school age returned as in attendance at school increased by more than this number, viz., by 2,378.

From the quarterly returns furnished by teachers of State schools it appears, as will be seen from the following table, that the average number of children on the rolls during each quarter of last year was 173,709, and that of this number 72·9 per cent. attended the 30 days per quarter required by law.

In 1884, the mean quarterly enrolment was 173,812, and the percentage of children who completed the statutory attendance 73·6. Although then, as shewn on page iv, the total number of distinct children enrolled was somewhat greater than in 1884, the average number on the rolls was slightly smaller. The chief reason of this, no doubt, was that, owing to the greater prevalence of sickness and to the operation of the Health Act alluded to above, the number of children who were absent from school for such prolonged periods that their attendance was intermitted for a whole quarter was larger than in 1884. In the latter year, sickness affected the returns chiefly in the December quarter: in 1885, its effects, as will be observed from the annexed summary of attendances, were felt to a greater degree than usual throughout the year:—

The average number of children for whose failure to attend the requisite number of days there appeared to be no sufficient excuse was 6,495 last year, and 6,773 in 1884; and the percentage of such defaulters to the number enrolled was 3·73 and 3·87 for 1885 and 1884 respectively. The return for last year cannot therefore but be regarded as satisfactory, as it compares favourably not only with that for 1884, but with those of all previous years since the present Education Act has been in operation.

The usual statements of the expenditure are given in Appendices A (1), A (2), and A (3). Appendix A (1) shews the amounts voted or transferred under each head of general expenditure (including rent of leased school buildings), the sums actually spent, and unexpended balances; Appendix A (2) furnishes similar information with regard to the expenditure on buildings; and Appendix A (3) shews the payments made out of Special Appropriations. In the following statement the several purposes to which the funds provided by the Legislature have been applied are shewn in detail, together with the proportion expended under each head. Similar information is furnished for the preceding five years.

The cost of instruction for each child in average attendance, calculated as in former years on the amounts expended under heads 1 and 3 in the preceding table, was—

Day schools	...	...	...	...	...	£4 3 9 $\frac{1}{4}$
Night schools	...	...	...	...	...	1 13 10 $\frac{1}{2}$
Day and night schools combined	...	...	...	...	...	4 3 0 $\frac{1}{4}$

The corresponding amounts for 1884 were—

Day schools	...	...	...	...	...	£3 19 8 $\frac{3}{4}$
Night schools	...	...	...	...	...	1 10 4 $\frac{3}{4}$
Day and night schools combined	...	...	...	...	...	3 18 11 $\frac{1}{4}$

The total expenditure for the financial year 1885-6 was £672,786 6s. 9d. Included in this amount, however, is a sum of £18,900 for the Melbourne University, for Schools of Mines, and Schools of Designs, distributed as follows:—

(a) Melbourne University—

					£11,500
(b) Schools of Mines	...	...	...	...	6,000
(c) Schools of Design	...	...	...	...	1,400
					£18,900

Deducting this amount from the gross expenditure, £672,786 6s. 9d., it will be seen that the expenditure for purely State school purposes was £653,886 6s. 9d. The corresponding amount for the previous financial year was £621,597 7s. 9d. A comparative statement of the expenditure for the two years is given in the following table:—

Increase ...	40,373	7	1	...			11,500	1	7	43,789	0	7
Decrease ...	...			8,084	8	1	...			...

It will be observed that there was a decrease of £8,084 8s. 1d. in the expenditure on buildings, but an increase of £40,373 7s. 1d. in that for general purposes, the net increase in the expenditure on primary education being £32,288 19s.

It should not, however, be supposed that the ordinary yearly expenditure increased by this amount. A sum of a little over £16,000 was required to pay to teachers, who were entitled to them, increments to their salaries for the previous financial year, and to preserve to others the salaries they enjoyed at the time of the passing of the Public Service Act No. 773. It will be remembered that although the Public Service Act passed in November, 1883, the Classified Roll of teachers was not published until the 1st January, 1885; and, under the construction at first placed on section 68 of the Act, it was considered that teachers were not entitled to receive increments until the 1st July next ensuing after the publication of the Classified Roll, viz., 1st July, 1885. Subsequently, a different interpretation having been given to the section referred to, it was decided that teachers' increments were payable from the 1st July succeeding the passing of the Act, viz., 1st July, 1884; and the necessary funds to pay such increments had to be provided in the Additional Estimates for last year, and therefore appear in the expenditure for that year. Again, it was urged on behalf of teachers that, seeing the new Act preserved (subject to certain conditions) to the other members of the Public Service previously unclassified the salaries they enjoyed at the time of the passing of the Act, even though the salary received exceeded the maximum of the class corresponding to that in which the work performed by the officer was placed, a like privilege should be accorded to teachers similarly situated, and that the latter should not be subjected to reduction, as contemplated in section 68 of the Act. On a full consideration of the circumstances of the case, the Government decided, with the generally expressed approval and concurrence of the Legislature, that this concession should in fairness be made. Consequently, teachers in receipt of salaries above the maximum of their class were granted the option of either retaining the salaries they enjoyed at the time of the passing of the Public Service Act, or suffering reduction to such maximum, and taking the compensation provided by the Act. Of the teachers affected, 92 per cent. elected to retain their salaries, and declined compensation. Thus, while all those who were in receipt of salaries below the maximum of their class proceeded to the next higher salary of their class from 1st July, 1884, very few teachers were reduced; and those who were reduced received compensation. This concession necessarily involved extra expense, as was explained by my predecessor on the 1st December, 1885, when the Estimates were before the Legislature; but it was felt by the Government that, in view of the inducements held out to teachers in some of the neighbouring colonies, and of the attractions of other branches of the service in this colony, such additional expenditure was really necessary in order to secure and retain the services of efficient teachers.

Another matter which contributed to swell the expenditure for last year was that the payments to teachers by way of results increased by £13,768 7s. 10d. This augmentation was due partly to the higher rate of fixed salary, which raised the maximum amount obtainable for "results," and partly to the improvement in the percentage of results at the annual examinations of the schools. So far as it is due to the latter cause, it may be regarded as an evidence of increased efficiency in the working of the schools.

School books and requisites.

The cost of supplying maps, books, and other requisites was almost exactly the same as for the preceding year, viz., £2,896 15s. 2d., as compared with £2,897 in 1884. The changes in the course of free instruction, and in the programme of examination of pupil teachers, have necessitated the addition of certain elementary works to the text books supplied for the use of teachers and pupil teachers. Parkes' "Personal Care of Health" and Balfour Stewart's "Physics Primer" are now included in the list, and it is intended shortly to add Creighton's "Shilling History," and Murché's "Animal Physiology, Book II," (Blackie's Elementary Text Books). The addition of these books, the enlargement of the reading books, and the issue of the new school map of Victoria prepared by the Lands Department, will, of course, somewhat increase the expenditure under this head, but the slight additional expense will doubtless be more than compensated for by the benefits resulting from the improved course of instruction under the new programme.

Inspectors.

The present staff of inspectors has been found scarcely adequate for existing demands, including certain duties lately allotted to inspectors in connection with the Railway and the Public Service examinations; still less will it be sufficient for the increased work caused by the adoption of the new programme, on account of the more ambitious character and wider range of the new course of instruction. No change in the inspectoral staff has occurred since the publication of the last Report; but, for the reasons already assigned, it is proposed to appoint two additional inspectors.

A conference of inspectors was again held this year for general purposes, and specially with the object of making due arrangements for the carrying out of the new programme. The scheme of examination for results proposed for future adoption has been devised with the aim both of covering the whole ground of the new programme of instruction, and of seeking to make the attainment of a high result percentage not more difficult than hitherto. It is hoped to effect this by a judicious system of examining, and by somewhat relaxing the stringency of the present plan. With the view also of promoting general intelligence, poetry, history, and "general lessons" are in future to become matters for examination, in addition to the present ordinary programme subjects, while a noteworthy feature of the new system will consist in its taking account, in its estimate of result percentages, of the discipline and general tone of the school.

Instruction.

A perusal of the inspectors' annual reports, which will be found in Appendix H, will shew that on the whole the teaching imparted in State schools is sound and good. Except in rare instances, the scholars are properly classified and thoroughly taught; while the proportion of indifferently conducted schools is very small, and apparently becoming smaller. Nor is excellence of teaching in any way confined to schools in the centres of population. For efficiency, control, and progress, the average bush school will bear a fair comparison with the average town school; and it may be regarded as a matter for congratulation that the present system, whatever may be its shortcomings, has at least the merit of spreading education liberally and impartially over those sparsely populated districts for which it is most difficult to provide, and which under some other systems might receive less consideration.

The discipline of State schools continues to be maintained at a high standard; notwithstanding the many thousands of children taught, very few cases are reported where serious difficulty arises with respect to its due maintenance.

The passes at last year's result examinations reached the very high proportion of 84·39 per cent.—the highest yet attained. The percentage recorded for 1884 was 82; but the difference is partly accounted for by some concessions which, under certain circumstances, are now made in favour of pupils unavoidably absent from examination. In any case, however, such a result shews that very accurate and careful work prevails, or so high a proportion of passes could not possibly be secured.

For the purpose of comparison, two tabular statements are here given, shewing the proportion of passes obtained in subjects and classes at the result examinations.

Of these, Table I. gives the general percentage of passes for each subject; while Table II. furnishes similar information for each separate class.

From an analysis of the inspectors' reports of the result examinations held during the year it is found that there were present thereat 143,593 pupils, who were distributed among the various classes in the proportions shewn below:—

Proportion of pupils in the different classes.

30·67 per cent. were in Class I.	13·97 per cent. were in Class V.

From this it appears that about 35 per cent. of the whole number of pupils were in the fourth, fifth, and sixth classes; in the lowest of which, viz., the fourth, most of the “standard of education” work is accomplished. It is almost needless to remark that an advanced programme of instruction would indicate little if it could not be generally carried out, or if but few of the pupils reached the higher classes. When, however, we find more than one-third of the pupils in the upper classes, it may safely be believed that a large proportion of them, during their school course, receive a fair measure of the highest ordinary instruction that the State provides. The number of pupils who last year attained to the standard of education was 7,667, making a total of 83,895 who have thus qualified since the inception of the Education Act. For the last two years the number passing this examination has become less, in consequence of the increased stringency of the the tests adopted.

The following statement shews the number of pupils who passed in each year since the introduction of the Act:—

Extra subjects.

A diminution has occurred during the past three years in the number of schools at which extra subjects are taught, the falling-off being, perhaps, owing to the establishment of grammar schools in places previously unprovided with them. Thus, while such instruction was given in 185 schools in 1885, it was given in 204 schools in the previous year, and in 210 in the year 1883. The subjects taught, and the number of students in each subject, were as under:—

Fees for this instruction to the extent of £3,749 5s. were paid by the parents to the teachers.

Singing.

A considerable increase took place last year in the number of children under systematic instruction in singing from qualified teachers, the attendance at the classes having risen from 32,746 in 1884 to 35,199 in 1885, and the number of schools in which such instruction is given having increased from 225 to 237.

The additional attendance has been provided for without any increase in the number of visiting teachers, who, as in 1884, numbered 27; but the qualified members of the ordinary staff paid for teaching singing numbered 99, as compared with 87 in 1884.

The desire for instruction in singing is very general throughout the colony, and it is gratifying to find that it is becoming possible to meet it in this way. In the present state of settlement there are many schools in which it is desirable that singing should be taught—not merely singing by ear, which is to be taught without the aid of a specially qualified teacher, but singing from notes—to which, from their isolated position, it is not possible to send a visiting teacher. With a view to meet the case of such schools, and of the junior classes in the large schools in which visiting teachers are employed, without greatly adding to the cost of this subject, as would be the case were the number of visiting teachers largely increased, classes for the instruction of trainees and pupil teachers, both in the knowledge of vocal music and in the art of teaching it, were formed some few years ago in all the principal towns. The results of this step are now gradually becoming apparent. Five years ago the number of the ordinary teachers paid for instruction in singing was 49, whereas, as stated above, last year the number of such teachers was 99. This represents, however, only the increase in the number who have passed the examination in music, and who are employed in schools of sufficient size to allow of special payments being made for instruction in singing. A very much larger number of junior teachers have attended the classes, and acquired sufficient knowledge of the subject to enable them to teach it to the lower classes at least, but have either not yet passed the examination, or are not placed in schools in which they can be specially remunerated for teaching singing.

The total number of teachers, therefore, now capable of imparting instruction in singing is by no means inconsiderable, and it is but reasonable to expect that intelligent—if not advanced—teaching in this subject will, ere long, be almost universal.

From the report of the Inspector of Singing, which will be found in Appendix I, it will be seen that the instruction, whether given by visiting teachers or by the members of the regular school staff, is, in the main, of a highly satisfactory character. The cost of teaching this subject, including inspection, was £7,025 11s. 7d.

Drawing was taught to an average attendance of 22,896 children in 193 schools. As in the case of singing, the number of children under instruction shews a considerable advance upon the number for the previous year, when the average attendance was 20,854, in 170 schools.

The additional instruction required was provided almost exclusively by qualified members of the ordinary staff, whose numbers increased from 92 to 113. One additional visiting teacher, whose time, however, is only partly occupied, was appointed, making 17 visiting teachers in all.

Similar means to those employed in the case of singing, viz., the establishment of classes for teachers in most of the principal towns, have been adopted to render the teaching of drawing more general, and they have been attended with equally, if not more, encouraging results. The number of teachers other than visiting teachers employed in giving instruction in drawing has risen from 45 to 113 in the last five years.

The cost of teaching this subject was £4,254 16s. 8d.

Military drill was taught in 196 schools, and the average attendance of pupils was 12,051, which is a slight increase on that of the previous year. Instruction in gymnastics was given in 5 schools, and the average attendance was 335 pupils. Gymnastic apparatus is being provided in a few other schools, in which qualified instructors are on the staff.

It has been stated above that there were 23 night schools in operation last year, with an average attendance of 1,781 pupils. The regulations relating to night schools have been altered in several important particulars. The old regulations permitted teachers to enroll children from 12 years of age, but the age at which the attendance of a child may now be recorded at a night school has been raised to 13 years. It was considered that the former rule afforded too great facility to children to leave the day schools before obtaining a certificate of having passed the standard of education. Another alteration, which it is hoped will be attended with beneficial results, is that the course of instruction in night schools may now, at the discretion of the teacher, be restricted to reading, spelling and explanation, dictation, composition, writing, and arithmetic. By concentrating his attention during the short time at his disposal on the subjects of the greatest practical utility—those in which, as a rule, instruction is most desired by the children who attend night schools—the teacher will, it is thought, be best able to secure their interest and attention, and kindle and foster a desire for further advancement and self-improvement.

The reports on the management of night schools are, almost without exception, favourable, and shew that they are for the most part taught as well as the circumstances of such schools will permit, and that good order and discipline are maintained.

The usual State school exhibition examination in December was attended ^{Exhibitions.} by 56 competitors, or 9 less than in the previous year. The eleven exhibitions were gained by candidates from the following schools:—

122.	Creswick	...	...	...	...	...	1

There are now 56 exhibitors who, in accordance with the prescribed regulations, are attending the University lectures or grammar schools as below :—

During the year 1885, 3 exhibitors resigned; 6 completed the full term of their tenure; and 2, through failure to pass the necessary examinations, forfeited their exhibitions. Twenty-one exhibitors passed various examinations at the University, which may be thus tabulated :—

Very favourable reports of these exhibitors are received from the head masters of the grammar schools at which they are studying, and some of them are achieving exceptional success in their studies. Thus, H. F. Gilchrist, “Dux” of the Scotch College, carried off the “Argus prize”; while Francis J. Grey, of the same school, won the “Ramsay prize,” and passed the matriculation examination, taking honours in English and history, and first class honours in mathematics, and ranking fifth among all the candidates. Harry E. Hill, of the Geelong Grammar School, matriculated, taking second class honours; and, at the Wesley College, John W. Grove, “Dux” of the college, was the successful competitor for the Walter Powell Scholarship.

Teachers.

The statement below shews the number of teachers of all ranks employed on the 31st December, 1885, with the positions severally occupied by them, and their classification under the Public Service Act No. 773 :—

It may seem singular that the number of head teachers in the foregoing table should be smaller than the number of schools in operation ; but it is not difficult to see how this arose. During last year, owing to the time necessarily taken in the compilation of the Transfer List, without which appointments could not properly be made, no promotions or permanent appointments to the position of head teacher or assistant could for many months take place. The Transfer List was not completed until June, 1885; and from it appointments were straightway made. But for some time it was necessary to fill vacancies from the Transfer List alone ; as, by the tenor of the Public Service Act, transfers in a class take precedence of appointments or promotions to it. Hence, while a large number of teachers, through their own expressed wishes, or because of the exigencies of the service, were transferred to other schools, no new appointments or promotions could be effected until these transfers had been made. Thus, at the end of the year, a great many vacancies existed, caused by resignations, the establishment of new schools, and by an extensive process of transfer. To occupy these vacancies until they could be permanently filled in accordance with the Public Service Act, temporary teachers, who are not included in the above tabular statement, were appointed under the powers conferred by section 67. These temporary teachers at the close of the year comprised—

15	Relieving teachers.	}	Acting as head teachers.
36	First class pupil teachers (due for promotion)
55	Qualified candidates for employment
15	First class pupil teachers (due for promotion)	}	Acting as assistants.
1	Qualified candidate for employment

Formerly a staff of 20 relieving teachers, supplemented by a few first class pupil teachers, and by such trainees as were awaiting permanent appointments, sufficed for the temporary vacancies caused by illness, absence, or other causes. Under the new system the operation of the Transfer List has made changes more frequent, and the need of relieving teachers has, therefore, become much greater. To meet the increased demand for teachers' substitutes, I am taking steps to add largely to the staff of relieving teachers, establishing for the first time a regular staff of female as well as of male relieving teachers; and I have also instituted a system of paid monitors, who will take the place of such first-class pupil teachers as may be required to act temporarily as head teachers or assistants.

By these means it is expected that any inconvenience to schools arising from the absence of teachers will be lessened, and that all necessary changes will be effected with smoothness and with a minimum of delay. It will be understood that this large addition of relieving teachers does not involve a corresponding outlay in the way of salaries, as very often the salary of a relieving teacher is paid, not in addition to the salary of some other teacher, but in lieu of it.

The new system introduced by the Public Service Act having been for some time in full operation, experience is being gained as to any shortcomings which it may be necessary to remedy by fresh legislation. It would be too much to expect that so great a change should work without friction ; and it may be deemed a matter for congratulation that on the whole there has been so little difficulty or conflict with pre-existing interests.

The improvement in the classification of teachers which has been noted in successive years still continues, as the following statement testifies :—

HEAD TEACHERS AND ASSISTANTS.							Qualifications of teachers.
		Certificated, including those Classified in Honours.	Licensed.	Partially Classified.	Total.	Percentage of Teachers with Certificate. &c.

" " 1885	...	1,291	1,162	4	2,457	52·5

It is, however, right to say that, owing to the causes which last year delayed the promotion of many junior "licensed" teachers to the fifth class, the increase in the percentage of certificated teachers is a little higher than it would otherwise be; and on account of a large number of junior teachers having been appointed in 1886, it is possible that a slight diminution in the proportion of certificated teachers may have to be recorded in next year's Report. This circumstance does not, however, alter the undoubted fact that the classification of teachers is rising in a highly satisfactory degree; and also that no teacher without the prescribed literary qualification holds office in the State schools of Victoria.

The following tables shew for the last five years the proportion of female teachers employed in the several positions of head teacher, assistant, and pupil teacher :—

The falling-off in the proportion of female teachers indicated by Table I. is more apparent than real, as the large number of vacancies before referred to would mostly be filled by the appointment of female teachers.

Thirty-eight candidates, 8 of whom were first class pupil teachers, applied at the beginning of the year for admission to training, and 14 received appointments to the Associated Schools. In the second half of the year there were 39 candidates, of whom 28 were admitted as first-year students in training, 14 of these being first class pupil teachers.

Details of the students admitted during 1885 are shewn in the following table :—

July, 1885 ...	...	...	...	...	9	5	5	9	28

During the first half-year, 68 students in all were going through their work of study and preparation for the teacher's office; 33 of these, having advanced to the second year's course, were studying in the Training College, the remainder being in the Associated Schools. In the second half-year, the total number of students in training had risen to 73, of whom 31 were in the Training College. As, apart from other advantages, to pass successfully through a course of training secures priority of employment, besides conferring the literary qualification prescribed for third class teachers, it is expected that the number of applicants for training will, after a while, be greatly increased.

The usual examinations of pupil teachers and of candidates for the certificate of competency were held in December, and of students in training in June and December. The general result is shewn below :—

Details of the passes in the examinations held last year for the trained teacher's certificate are given in the following table :—

To this it may be added that the training examinations for the first half of the current year have been most successful, two-thirds of the first-year students passing, while in the second year's course, for the first time on record, every student passed the examination for the trained teacher's certificate. The total number in this latter case was only 11, as, for some time after the passing of the Public Service Act, admissions to training were restricted through delays incidental to the establishment of the new system, and to the adoption of new regulations, which, under section 47, had to be drawn up by the Committee of Classifiers.

Examinations in music and drawing were held at the usual centres—Melbourne, Geelong, Ballarat, Castlemaine, and Sandhurst.

Music and drawing examinations.

The general result is shewn in the table below; but, in addition, 4 candidates completed the examination for licence to teach singing, and 7 the examination for licence to teach drawing, by passing the test in the practical teaching of those subjects. Two candidates similarly qualified themselves for certificates, one in singing and the other in drawing.

Lists of the teachers who passed in these subjects since the Department's last Report will be found in Appendices G (1) and G (2).

Military drill and gymnastics. Of 47 candidates examined in the theoretical part of military drill, 35 passed; 9 other candidates also succeeded in passing the practical test.

In gymnastics, 34 candidates were examined, 24 passing fully, and 5 others partially.

Science. In December the usual science examinations were held to enable candidates to gain one of the literary qualifications prescribed for third class teachers. On this occasion 94 candidates presented themselves, of whom 51 passed. The corresponding numbers in the preceding year were 91 and 46. One candidate also, who had previously partially passed in geology, completed his examination.

The names of the teachers who were successful are given in Appendix G (3); and the results of the examination may be thus summarized:—

Buildings. The amount expended in erecting and maintaining school buildings during the year 1885 was £62,983 11s. 11d. Full details of this expenditure will be found in Appendix E.

From 1st July, 1885, to 30th June, 1886, 71 new school buildings were erected in various parts of the colony, and 5 buildings, removed from neighbourhoods where they were no longer required, were re-erected in new localities. Of the 71 new buildings, 54 were either provided for the accommodation of newly established schools or replaced leased premises, while 17 superseded portable schools and old buildings which had become unserviceable. Thirteen school buildings were enlarged. It was also found necessary, in consequence of changes in the population, to remove 5 schools to new sites in the same neighbourhood. As regards teachers' residences, 8 new ones were built and 17 enlarged; 41 of the new school-houses erected had teachers' quarters attached, and the portable school buildings which were replaced by permanent ones were converted into residences.

The following are among the more important of the buildings enumerated above:—

A complete list of the school buildings owned by the Department, brought up to the 30th June, 1886, is furnished in Appendix D, of which a summary is given below. The totals, it will be seen, shew 1,853 school buildings, with accommodation for 172,286 children, and 1,353 teachers' residences.

In the last Report it was shewn that the amount required for school buildings to meet the then known wants of the colony was £109,000, towards which a sum of £50,000 was available from Loan Act No. 805. During the past year a further sum of £28,266 was obtained under Act No. 848, thus leaving a balance of £30,734 still unprovided. Owing to the demands for additional accommodation to meet the rapid increase of the school population in the suburbs of Melbourne, and to the necessity for providing new buildings in country districts where the accommodation has become unsuitable or is altogether wanting, the last-named sum has now to be increased by £51,839, making a total of £82,573 which must be provided in order to complete recognised requirements to date. To meet this need no provision has yet been made, as the whole of the funds from existing loans have been already allotted. In order, however, that the most urgent of the works may be undertaken without unnecessary delay, a sum of £20,000 has been placed on the Estimates for 1886-7, in anticipation of money being provided for State-school buildings in some future loan.

In June last, 192 buildings were being leased for school purposes, the aggregate rent of which was at the rate of £2,731 12s. per annum. The amount disbursed for rent during the financial year 1885-6 was £2,700.

Although much was done in the past year in repairing and renovating the school buildings, three-fourths of which, it will be observed, are of wood, it was not found possible to undertake more than the most urgent works. Since the vote of £20,000 per annum for maintenance of buildings was first made, there has been an increase of 286 school properties without a corresponding increase in the vote; and, as all expenditure for the removal of school buildings, additions to residences, grants in aid of fencing school sites, and the supply of furniture and tanks is charged to this vote, it is tolerably certain that unless additional funds are provided it will not be possible to maintain the school buildings in proper repair.

In the amending Education Bill before referred to it is proposed to make to the Boards of Advice an allowance for each school in their districts, in order that they may attend to any small necessary repairs without the delay of a reference to the Department. A sum to give effect to this proposal has been placed on the Estimates for the current financial year.

The question of improving the water supply to schools in arid districts has received considerable attention, and tenders have recently been accepted for providing sixty-eight underground tanks, where most needed, in the northern and north-western parts of the colony. In some other cases the supply of additional iron tanks has been determined on. It is further proposed to supply filters in cases where the water is of inferior quality, and information is now being obtained as to the most suitable filter for adoption.

School districts. At the beginning of 1885 there were 328 school districts. The assimilation of the boundaries of the school districts to those of the municipalities or their subdivisions was effected in the early part of the year, as stated in last year's Report; and the change resulted in the number of districts being increased to 329. Subsequently, 3 new districts were constituted, and 1 was abolished. At the end of 1885 there were consequently 331 school districts. The new districts were the following:—

- No. 364.—Shire of Huntly, South Riding, excised from School District 159.
- „ 365.—Shire of Broadmeadows, Campbellfield Riding, excised from School District 112.
- „ 366.—Shire of Avon, North Riding, taking the place of School District Wonnangatta East, which was abolished.

The 10 following school districts were, from various causes, without Boards during the whole or part of the year:—

- No. 27.—Eaglehawk.
- „ 137.—Shire of Dundas, West Riding.
- „ 143. „ Eltham, South Riding.
- „ 192. „ Minhamite, North-East Riding.
- „ 199. „ Mortlake, Darlington Riding.
- „ 209. „ Mount Rouse, Penshurst Riding.
- „ 211. „ „ Dunkeld Riding.
- „ 249. „ Talbot, East Riding.
- „ 283. „ Whittlesea.
- „ 301. „ Wannon, Balmoral Riding.

In school district No. 177 (Shire of Lilydale, North-Western and South-Western Ridings) the number of members on the Board of Advice was increased from 5 to 7.

During the year, 655 members retired by effluxion of time, 78 resigned, 15 died, and 7 forfeited their seats—5 through non-attendance at Board meetings, and 2 on account of having left the colony.

During the same period, 353 elections were held, at 104 of which no candidates were nominated. The number of members elected was 655, and 169 were appointed by the Governor in Council, 3 of the latter being for districts in which there were no ratepayers. The cost of the elections was £624 14s. 8d.

Compulsory clause. The following table shews the arrangements for enforcing the compulsory clause of the Act during the year 1885:—

The number of districts in which the Boards of Advice undertook the prosecution of parents for non-compliance with the compulsory clause of the Act was about the same as in the previous year.

The number of prosecutions instituted during the year 1885, with particulars and results, is given in the table subjoined:—

As in the previous year, special officers were deputed to inquire into the cases of children found during school hours in the streets, parks, or gardens of Melbourne and suburbs. Only two officers were employed on this duty from July, 1885, to June, 1886, as against three during the greater part of the preceding twelve months; but this circumstance will but partially explain the great diminution in the number of such children that were brought under notice. The average number of cases investigated by each officer on duty during the earlier period was 1,425, during the later, 865. Nor is this believed to be due to any diminished zeal on the part of the officers, but to the simple fact that the evil they have been appointed to check is really abated. A summary of the reports of these officers is appended:—

* Eighty-five of these belong to the period between 1st July and 31st December, 1885, and are included in the 1,277 convictions shown in the preceding table to have been obtained at the instance of the Department.

It will be observed that, as has previously been found to be the case, a very large proportion of the children accosted were either regularly attending school or had a legitimate excuse for their absence, and that in only about one-seventh of the cases was there reasonable ground for prosecution.

A conference of delegates from the several Boards of Advice was held in Melbourne on the 20th July, 1886, and the two following days. The resolutions passed thereat have recently been submitted to me, and it is needless to say that they will meet with early and careful consideration.

The work of collecting the school census, as required by the Education Act Amendment Act 1876, was commenced in the early part of the year. It was hoped that when the boundaries of the school districts had been assimilated to those of the municipalities, as had just previously been effected, the collection of the census would be generally undertaken by the persons whose local knowledge should render them most competent for the task, viz., the municipal officers, and that thus the accuracy and completeness of the new census would be, as far as possible, ensured. This expectation was, unfortunately, not realised. Although, recognising the superior value of their services, the Department was prepared to remunerate these officers at a considerable advance on the rates at which other candidates for the work were willing to undertake it, in only about two-thirds of the districts was the desired assistance obtainable, and the remainder of the work had to be let by tender. The result was very disappointing. No tender was accepted simply as being the lowest without reasonable evidence that it was likely to be satisfactorily carried out ; but it was subsequently found that many of the tenderers had but a very imperfect conception of the extent of the work to be undertaken. Its execution in some cases was spread over many months, and then brought to a very imperfect conclusion ; in others, the contractors after a short trial abandoned the work, which had to be completed by truant officers, necessarily at a great disadvantage, as in many instances parents refused to supply the required information on the ground that they had already furnished it ; and in one district the contractor failed to send in a return at all, nor could any tidings of him be heard. Many of the returns received, though confirmed by statutory declaration, were palpably deficient, exhibiting, as compared with the census of 1881, a much smaller number of children, even though the population of the particular district had in the meantime increased ; and the gross total of children between 3 and 15 years of age shewed, when compared with the same census, a decrease of 30,545. It is true that the former census embraced the whole of the colony, while the latter one was confined to school districts ; but the tracts of country not included in school districts are very sparsely populated, and the discrepancy must be held to be almost entirely due to the faulty manner in which the contractors performed their work.

The Amending Education Bill proposes that the duty of collecting the school census shall in future be imposed on the municipalities, and it is hoped that by this means a full and accurate return of the children of school age in each district may be obtained. Should this plan fail, the only alternative would seem to be the adoption of a system of compulsory registration.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your Excellency's most obedient servant,

CHARLES HENRY PEARSON,

Minister of Public Instruction.

To His Excellency
Sir Henry Brougham Loch, K.C.B.,
Governor of Victoria.
